Today's Roundup

SOME of the most vigorous arguments we have seen against regimentation are coming from organized labor.

The specific measures to which labor objects are different, but the idea is the same.

Interdependence

NOBODY likes regulation when applied to himself. It is one of those things that looks better when somebody else is getting it.

They can stop it if they recognize their dependence on each other—when industry realizes that well-paid, happy workers are good for business.

It all boils down to something we have talked about repeatedly in this column—the importance to all Americans of adopting principles of give and take and sympathetic understanding.

Early Day Good Roads

REMINISCENCES of early-day good roads movement in this area are inspired by a faded clipping from a 1912 Oregonian.

The clipped story is a Klamath Falls dispatch in the Oregonian, telling of the arrival here of a "pathfinder car" which was carrying a party of good roads enthusiasts over eastern Oregon.

The group was welcomed in the dining room of the White Pelican hotel by John Irwin (still a local attorney) and speakers included the late County Judge W. S. Worden and S. O. Johnson, local business man.

"Juke-Box" dance was given today by the junior class at 3:20.

Senior hostesses last night voted against keeping a section of the USO open for the remaining servicemen in Klamath Falls.

It was hoped originally that part of the USO building, probably the kitchen and check room, would be used.

The senior hostesses will be present to participate in the USO closing ceremony Thursday night.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 12 (AP)—John A. Archinal, of Allentown, Pa., the former army staff sergeant who gave his blood to save the life of Ex-Premier Tojo of Japan last September, seeks the democratic nomination for Pennsylvania's state house of representatives.

The 39-year-old bartender filed his nomination petitions for the May 21 primary with the elections bureau yesterday.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 12—The original confusion over the confirmation of Mr. Truman's choice of Edwin Pauley, became a maelstrom of confusions when Mr. Pauley stood up and announced no honest man could make such a retirement as had been projected for him.

The astonished members of the senate naval affairs committee trying him for the post of under secretary of navy, went immediately into a secret session in which the furniture is reported to have been damaged—and if not, reputations were.

Wants Hannegan's Scalp

TO make the matter completely unsimple, such a party pillar as Boss Ed Crump of Memphis had sent his legislators in here to side with the republicans and had gone as far as to call for the scalp of Party National Chairman Hannegan.

The new depth in confusions was only about a foot lower than the evidence for and against Mr. Pauley built up by PM and championed by the Ickes-Pepper leadership to the utter demoralization of the record.

Job Inconsequential

FACT one is the job of undersecretary of navy is practically inconsequential. It is the bottom rung of the political ladder usually given to bright young men of promise, not yet dry behind their political ears.

Fight For Party Control

THIS circumstance would lead any reasonable analyst to the firm conviction that the real essence of the struggle was for control of the democratic party—or the wielding of power over it and in it.

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE AP World Traveler

BERN, March 12 (AP)—This is a revolver, Switzerland, for we must get ahead with our job of globetrotting.

We've had a grand time, for you've been mighty fine to us and we are appreciative. Our feelings about you were well expressed by a Yankee sergeant with whom we were chatting.

Well, that's the way we feel about you, too, Switzerland. You are 100 per cent.

There are many things like about your glorious little state perched among the Alps, but I think we must place first your sturdy character and fine principles.

You're modern and yet live in a setting of days gone by—combining the old with the new so changingly that the blend is perfect.

Mrs. Mack and I have spent hours among historic buildings which have grown gray from centuries. We've been fascinated by that huge, 300-year-old clock in the stone tower of Bern's ancient city gate—still faithfully recording the seconds, minutes, hours, days and months, while the life-size figure of a man strikes the hours with mighty swings of his hammer.

And I don't know how many times we've stopped to look at the quaint statue of the fat ogre about to swallow a baby, with other squirming youngsters in a bag ready to follow. They say mothers of days long past used to warn naughty children that the ogre would get them if they weren't good. I tried that with Mrs. Mack but she only sniffed and said she didn't believe in ogres.

Yes, you have a wonderful country for sight-seeing, but even more impressive is the spirit of cordial friendliness everywhere. Let the visitor pause at a street corner to get his bearings and immediately he will have an offer of assistance.

It was a Swiss—a stranger—who bought Mrs. Mack and me breakfast at a frontier railway station when we had no Swiss francs.

We've had a memorable experience here, but we must be going. It's so long for now, Switzerland. Good luck, we'll be seeing you.

Building Projects Okayed On 3 Oregon Campuses

PORTLAND, March 12 (AP)—Building projects totaling $400,000 for facilities on three Oregon campuses were approved yesterday by the state board of higher education building committee.

Final board approval will be asked today. The projects include addition of wings and book facilities of the University of Oregon library which were proposed in the blueprints when the library was built 10 years ago.

The third project would complete the third floor of the administration building.

Emergency classroom and office space at Oregon State college totaling $85,000 was approved, subject to approval of the state board of control.

Highway Group To Hold Meet

LAKEVIEW, March 11—The first post-war convention of the Three Flays Highway association will be held here April 6 and 7, according to an announcement made today by County Judge Jess Allen of Canyon City, president of the organization.

Delegates numbering 50 or more will be here from 16 counties in California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon and Washington. The Three Flays highway serves all of these states, running northward from the Mexican border to Canada.

The highway association, which suspended operations during the war years, will give special consideration at the forthcoming meeting to existing tourist accommodations along the route. Plans also will be discussed for expansion of these facilities during this year and 1947.

Allen went on to say that general discussion will ensue on tourist promotion activities and the adoption of the slogan, "Air Conditioned Route," suggested in view of the highway's avoidance of hot valley travel during summer.

A widespread viewpoint is expected to be developed, Allen pointed out, in view of the convention delegation representing all principal points along the road from Southern California to Northern Washington and Idaho.

Convention speakers will include Alfred McVey, manager of the Walla Walla chamber of commerce, and Jack Early, assistant Reno chamber manager.
