

Today's Roundup

OREGON is not the only state that is looking at military installations with the idea of establishing educational centers there.

Several other states are pressing proposals such as has been advanced for the Marine Barracks, though Oregon may have been first in the field.

It seems that a number of other states are more actively at work in behalf of their projects than is Oregon, where there has been a tendency to dilly-dally and where certain selfish interests have been heckling the efforts of sincere officials trying to meet an emergency educational problem.

Some of our journalistic brethren are still fostering the fiction that this is all a Klamath Falls promotional scheme, despite full public disclosure of the origin of the idea and the course of its support and progress.

Among these critics, there is an apparent resistance to information about the need for facilities which cannot possibly be supplied in time at the established institutions, and about the ability of the Klamath installation to meet that need.

A certain high official is reported to have said he was somewhat dubious about the proposal at first; after he received the protesting arguments he became convinced the scheme was sound.

is waving its fists" . . . "It is tragic that this nation has the atom bomb" . . . "There should be no secrets in the hands of the military."

These present a completely erroneous, unreasonable and absurd distortion of the facts of the situation. Have you seen anyone in this entire nation waving any fists, much less our government? No one wants war; no one is advocating it directly or indirectly.

A strong diplomatic game is being played for our way of life, and such extreme distortions of it as to call it "fist waving" work our people into false beliefs.

It is fully as unreasonable to assume that it is "tragic" that we, a peace loving nation advocating freedom of individuals and all nations, have control of the bomb. We should thank God we have it instead of aggressive nations with ambitions for control of people and their freedom.

Making Inroads In Russia
So any reasonable person must be led to the conclusion the new stronger Truman-Byrnes stand for the cooperative way of doing things is making inroads in Russia, bringing her now to defense of the UNO she has refrained from entering wholeheartedly.

And can any thoughtful person think our government, our people or even our military is "militaristic"? It is not militaristic politically, as are the armies of totalitarian nations. It is demobilizing. It is not invading anyone. Its whole military theory is defense, not aggression.

We do not need censorship. That is the unreasonable, undemocratic way. But we do require that the people get the facts in the face of plain attempts to influence their judgment and corrupt their free minds.

Russian Secrets
RUSSIA, which the scientists had in mind, not only has military secrets, but civil, political and every other kind of secret, behind her complete censorship. The scientists never advocated that she drop her isolationism and open up to armament inspection, as UNO provides.

Then, simultaneously a reputable New York gossip columnist, professes to present Stalin's thoughts (which are completely censored from all the rest of the world including our diplomats.) He reports: "Stalin's top advisors are discussing quitting the UNO" . . . and "Stalin's belief is that militarists here (United States) are deliberately building up a case against Russia to get continuance of the draft and other wartime powers."

They should know Russia has the draft of teen agers for compulsory military training already in effect, but they neglect to mention this. Furthermore Pravda, the official Russian mouthpiece, said upon the very same day the first strong kind words about UNO that I have heard of being circulated within isolated Russia.

Ashland Is Fair

ONE of the fairest expressions from an Oregon community on the Barracks plan came from Ashland.

That city is the home of the Southern Oregon college of education, and on the face of the proposal might well consider the Barracks plan a threat to the welfare of its own institution.

But Ashlanders held their fire until they could get some information. They talked the proposition over with Edgar Smith, member of the state board of higher education, who visited that city after an inspection tour of the Barracks and a meeting of the state education board here.

Ashland then made a pronouncement that it did not object to the education center here if it were established on a temporary basis and did not take funds from the established schools. That was fair enough.

Unity Needed

THE federal government with its myriad agencies is difficult to deal with in a situation of this kind. To get the best possible proposition for Oregon has taken a lot of work, and will take a lot more.

Those people who are working on it deserve support and encouragement in their efforts. They need the united interest of Oregon people to realize on this opportunity to meet a serious problem.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, March 14—Now that the Truman-Byrnes leadership has decided to take a stand for our way of life around the world, a new type of propaganda is beginning to appear in the news.

The World Today

By DeWitt MacKENZIE AP World Traveler

VIENNA, March 14—Your correspondent has come away from a highly interesting but informal conversation with Gen. Mark Clark, American commander in chief in Austria, with the distinct impression that he would like to see all the allied forces of occupation—Russian, British, French and American—withdrawn from this country by next fall and the administration turned over to the Austrian government.

MacKENZIE

As a matter of fact, I understand that there is before the allied council a proposal for a withdrawal. However, one suspects that if I've interpreted the general's feeling correctly, he is indulging in a wish rather than any strong expectation that such a withdrawal may take place.

No Withdrawal Seen
While the British, French and Americans might be prepared to pull out under a four-power agreement, I've found no indication that the Russians would subscribe to any such procedure at an early date. The signs have been that the Muscovites figure a long period of control in Austria to be necessary. Certainly there will be no withdrawal unless all four participate.

I found General Clark viewing the Austrian position from a horse-sense standpoint based on a wide knowledge of the whole European problem. We covered a lot of territory in our conversation—and his vision reaches far beyond the borders of his personal command. It's my guess, too, that more than a bit of the humanitarian is involved in his calculations.

Private Chat
We had our chat in his private office at the American headquarters and he promptly robbed it of any formality by coming out from behind his big desk to

Shall O.P.A. price Milk off the Market as they have Butter?

O.P.A. PRICE POLICY MEANS MILK FAMINE FOR KLAMATH

Fresh bottled milk will soon be as rare as butter! This is no exaggeration. The government's price policy on dairy products during the past four years has disillusioned American dairy farmers. Dairymen cannot continue to produce milk at present prices because of increasing costs of labor, feed and equipment. They are selling their cows. They are turning to other crops. The entire dairy industry—and your daily supply of milk—will soon disappear unless the price policy of the O.P.A. is corrected. The milk problem is your responsibility. Study the reasons for today's serious milk shortage.

RELIEF EXPECTED AFTER WAR
Only 40% of Klamath's dairymen remain! They believed when the war was over, price ceilings would be off and normal price relationships of dairy products would be restored in the market place. However, it now appears that price controls will be on indefinitely.

Now that the war is over, dairymen do not feel obligated to produce milk at LESS THAN COST! Here are prices of what the dairyman buys now, as compared to what they were when the 85c milk price was established:

Table with 3 columns: Item, WAS, NOW. Hay, per ton: $8 to $10 vs $28 to $30. Grain, per ton: $24 vs $66. Labor, per mo.: $50 to $60 vs $200.

Andrew H. Trice District Price Exec. 1208 Bedell Building, Portland, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Trice: With reference to your reply to our telegram of March 1, 1946, we wish to advise your office that we have made definite plans to divert our supply of market milk to other channels effective on the morning of March 16, unless the price structure is corrected as outlined in our telegram.

Over three years ago the Klamath Dairy Association representatives met with OPA officials from the Portland office to discuss the need for a raise in the price of milk. At that time about half of our local producers declared that unless an immediate price raise was granted that they would be forced to sell their herds. No relief came and these men sold their herds. About a year later we asked for relief by letter to your Portland office and at that time about half of the remaining dairymen declared that they would be forced to sell their herds, unless there was a raise in the prices. No relief came and they sold their herds. Over 90% of these cows going into the California market leaving this milk shed entirely. Those people were able to purchase these cows because they received considerable more for their products than we are permitted to get here.

At our meeting of March 1st, this year, practically all of the remaining dairymen stated that unless an immediate price raise came they would be forced to go out of the dairy business. In 1938 it was estimated there were over 7500 dairy cows in this milk shed. Today it is estimated there are less than 3,000. This cannot go on indefinitely. It is going to take years to build back our dairy herds to supply our local demand. This time we have decided it is time for us to take action on our own to try to save the remaining dairy herds if possible, as we are still producing milk at the same price we were getting for quite some time prior to the time the price freeze took effect, while prices of all commodities, including labor, that we have had to purchase, has increased from 50% to 200%.

With respect to your request for additional time to study the cost structure it cannot be granted because it is now time to break ground for other crops that are profitable. Unless we know immediately this price will come we are positive that these herds will be sold to the California market. The pasture and hay land supporting the herds will be plowed up and planted to other crops. If this is permitted it would be impossible to put the fields back into producing for dairy uses in less than two or more years.

Yours very truly, Klamath Dairy Producers Assn. Wilbur Relling, President, Box 1069, Klamath Falls, Oregon.

DECISION UP TO O.P.A.
Klamath dairymen cannot delay further. It is not possible to get action through common sense reasoning or public demand, therefore the dairymen must consider turning to other crops in order to earn a living. The responsibility is squarely upon O.P.A. which now stands between the consumer and a continued supply of fresh milk. Dairymen are ready and anxious to produce milk at a fair price. The O.P.A., in a few hours' time, can grant a slight increase which will prevent a serious milk famine in Klamath.

Our town has a Housing Shortage

Yes, sir, there's a real housing shortage in our town, as I guess there is in yours, too.

Keefer Cole, for instance, is sharing his home with a brother-in-law from Connecticut. Six children and a dog in one family; four children and three cats in the other.

I asked Keefer how they got along together—especially the grown-ups. Didn't they get a little edgy from the noise and crowding?

Keefer looks at me with a twinkle. "Sure," he says. "And when that happens, Sara and I just pass around four sparkling glasses of good beer . . . and that reminds everybody that there are still a lot of friendly, gracious pleasures that can help us make the best of things."

From where I sit, it's great to be able to relax during this strain of postwar living with a beverage that's truly moderate and wholesome, truly friendly.
