Today's Roundup

THE only hope of getting out a decent vote for the May 18 primary election is the circuit judgeship contest between Judge David L. Vandenberg and District Attorney Clarence Humble.

EPLEY

This one could have oomph in it. Other phases of the election offer little promise of stirring the interest that is necessary to get people down to the polls in these times of indifference to local politics.

The circuit judgeship is not only the highest-paid office within the gift of Klamath county people, but this time, the final heat is going to be run off in the primary.

In this non-partisan contest, the candidate who wins a majority in the primary is "in" barring the extremely remote possibility of a successful write-in contest against him in the fall.

If the judicial contest generates enough interest to get people out to the polls, they will of course also mark the party ballots that will be handed them. Otherwise, we fear, the voting in the 1946 primary would be even lighter than the low-volume primary voting of 1942 and 1944.

Registration Down IT will be pretty bad, anyhow, if advance indications are reliable. In past years, a hot election was preceded by intense registration activity.

Latest figures from the county clerk's office show 15,473 persons registered to vote in Klamath county, a decrease of about 5600 from the total registration at the time of the general election in November, 1944.

This decrease represents names that have been eliminated as "dead timber" from the rolls. There is no such population decrease here—in fact, population may be somewhat higher than it was in 1944.

It hasn't come, so far, because people just aren't interested.

Policy THERE is some evidence of incipient activity among the partisans of the two circuit judge candidates, and that brings us again to the point of reminding the public of certain policies that have long prevailed at The Herald and News with respect to political campaigns.

It is our determined purpose to cover the straight political news in our news columns. Stories will not be slanted purposely to aid the cause of a political candidate.

Comet Timmers Under Study From Various Observatories

By J. HUGH PRUETT Astronomer, Extension Division, Oregon Higher Education System

So numerous are the little comets that every year clutter up the skyways in the general vicinity of our old earth that astronomers seldom bother the general public with them.

On February 2, the announcement came from Rome that M. Timmers of the Vatican observatory had discovered a comet of magnitude nine.

Within the next few nights Comet Timmers was observed at Lick, Yerkes, Lowell and the U. S. Naval observatories, and its positions at the various times carefully noted as to right ascension and declination.

CIO Head Favors OPA Control Curb

PORTLAND, March 30 (AP)—Controls should extend only to food, clothing and rentals because "these items make up a large part of the cost of living," Van A. Bittner of the CIO National Executive board said here.

"Adequate control of these would offer more protection to consumers, he declared, and would mean 'better luck enforcing the law' for OPA.

Bittner, since 1942 assistant to the CIO United Steelworkers of America president, said the suggestion was his "personal opinion." He planned to travel to Seattle and Washington, D. C., from Portland in the union's drive to organize industries.

Letters

WHILE The Herald and News welcomes letters on any public issue, we like best the letters that are the spontaneous and voluntary expressions of the people who write them.

Letters on political issues should be signed and carry the address of the signer, both signature and address to be published. Defamatory material, which might be construed in the courts as libelous, will not be published.

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

BACK from adventures in foreign fields just in time for the encouraging declaration by UNRRA's new chief, Fiorenzo LaGuardia, that he is going all-out (those aren't his words but they are his meaning) in providing food to hungry countries.

There's no doubt in my mind, after a survey in the field, that the global food shortage is the number one crisis of the moment—and it's urgent. The political and economic problems on hand, while pressing, are long term affairs as compared with the plague of hunger which is sweeping many parts of the world and is increasing in intensity daily.

There's no use giving a man machinery for economic recovery if he's too weak from starvation to work it.

Crude Truth LET'S state this thing in terms of the crude truth. Millions of people are going to die from lack of food during the next six months—and even the best efforts we can make will not prevent that.

There are half a billion hungry folk in the world. There is food enough for only three-quarters of them. In other words some 125,000,000 unfortunates are condemned.

We hear more about Europe because it is closer to us, but the hand of hunger lies heavy on many parts of the Orient—notably India, China and Japan.

The question of food relief isn't one for tomorrow. It's today's big issue. The situation in the undernourished countries is deteriorating rapidly, and will continue to do so until the next harvest brings relief. That harvest is months away, and we have no assurances that it will be a good one.

Face Situation IN any event, my observation is that this crisis won't by any means be confined within the period between now and harvest time. We shall be wise to face that right now.

The bulk of the relief naturally must come from the Western Hemisphere, and Uncle Sam has the greatest resources to meet the emergency. However, Canada and the Argentina will be looked to for heavy contributions.

Mr. LaGuardia's announcement that he will appeal to the Argentine for grain is good news, since the under-privileged countries are banking much on help from that great country.

Boy Undergoes Major Surgery

Three-year-old Jerome Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johns of Bray, Calif., was brought into Hillside hospital for an emergency operation Friday night.

The little boy underwent major surgery and was reported "doing well" Saturday morning.

City Police Make 4 Traffic Arrests

Four traffic arrests made yesterday by city police were dealt with in municipal court this morning. Darrell Herrington, 1779 Etna, posted $20 bail on a charge of reckless driving and having no operator's license.

Shorty Clark, a cab driver, and Oliver Smeltz, 4205 Bisbee, were charged with violation of the basic rule. Clark posted $10 bail and Smeltz $5. Joseph E. Anderson posted $10 bail for violation of the basic rule and having no windshield swipe on his automobile.

Three drunks and one disorderly charge appeared on the docket, with one drunk and one drunk and disorderly bailing out of jail.

ON LIABILITY Klamath Falls, Ore. (to the Editor): The letter regarding liability in March 20, Herald and News, points to the interesting problem of settling the differences between people who drive carefully and those who don't.

Wouldn't it be a step forward to apply our present state automobile liability law to drunken or reckless drivers also, so that anyone convicted of reckless or drunken driving would have to provide liability thereafter just as is required in our present law for those involved in accidents?

Our present law can do nothing to prevent people from becoming permanently injured from another's irresponsibility.

Vaccine Supplies Run Low In Cities Hit By Smallpox

By The Associated Press Supplies of vaccine ran low in Pacific northwest cities today (Saturday) as Seattle fought to curb an outbreak of smallpox that has taken five lives and her neighbor cities sought to bar their doors to the disease by large scale vaccination programs.

Alarmed, also, was California, with San Francisco reporting eight cases. The navy transport La Salle arrived in the bay city yesterday with another case aboard and the quarantine station said none of the 1428 navy men and marines on the La Salle would be permitted ashore until April 1, at the earliest.

No deaths had been reported in California. In all but two of the Seattle deaths, physicians said, there were complicating factors such as heart trouble and old age.

There were 22 known cases in the city. The hospital where most of these were held was under quarantine. One small hotel was quarantined and a police guard placed at the door when a case was discovered there.

In Portland, Ore., vaccine supplies ran low and city health authorities said that, in some cases, one vial of vaccine was used for two persons.

At Tacoma, Wash., police were called out to keep in line the crowds that gathered at the city-county health department center for immunization. The supply of vaccine was exhausted at Spokane, Wash., by a sudden demand for the protection.

School officials at Aberdeen, Wash., canceled the high school team's entry in the state swimming meet today in Seattle.

A program of mass vaccination was underway in Seattle, the city health department designating 26 fire stations as immunization centers. Mobile units are visiting the region's schools.

Coast Guard—Chief Roger Herenden, coast guard recruiter for southern Oregon, will be in Lakeview Thursdays, starting April 4, at the employment service office for the convenience of anyone interested in the peacetime duty in this branch of service.

Highway Jobs Up For Bids

Bids for contracts on six state and federal highway jobs in Klamath county will be opened at the state highway commission office, Portland, April 4 and 5, according to the state highway commission bulletin.

Bids will be considered for installing a lighting system on Washburn way and Altamont drive which is a state project; grading and surfacing curbs and sidewalks on a portion of S. 6th; widening of the bridge across the canal on S. 6th.

The job of clearing the right-of-way and grading a total of 35 1/10 miles from Mazama junction to the present junction of the Chiloquin and The Dalles-California highways, is divided into three separate contracts.

Grading and clearing right-of-way for 25 1/10 miles from the top of Spring creek hill to Mazama junction near Beaver marsh; 2 1/10 miles on Spring creek hill; 8 88/100 miles from the bottom of Spring creek hill to the junction of the Chiloquin and The Dalles-California highways.

Two Boys Held In Car Theft

Two 17-year-old Bonanza youths are being held in the juvenile detention cottage today awaiting a court hearing on the theft of a 1938 black Lincoln Zephyr from the Balsiger used car lot last Tuesday night.

The boys, neither of whom have any past juvenile record, were arrested at Bonanza by state police and admitted taking the car and abandoning it near Henley.

One boy was arrested Thursday night and the other today. The car was reported to have been driven hard and was in bad shape when located by state police. It belongs to Fred Duke of Klamath Falls and was up for sale by the Balsiger Motor company.

March Bowling Out With Snow, Wind

March was going out like a rather tired lion today with all its huffing and puffing and blustery weather climaxed by a light snowfall in the valley last night.

About two and one-half inches of snow was reported in the vicinity of Tulelake this morning and about one inch in Hot Springs district and downtown.

An icy film which covered streets and sidewalks and snow on the roofs downtown had all melted by noon.

Maximum temperature was reported at 43 degrees, and minimum this morning at 26 degrees. Light falls of rain and snow are predicted for Sunday throughout Klamath basin mountain area.

INJURIES FATAL PORTLAND, March 30 (AP)—Death last night of John George Hahn, 58, injured when struck by a car here, brought Portland's 1946 traffic toll to 12.

Patrolman V. A. Nicholson said he apparently was jaywalking. The driver was not held.

Salvation Army Men To Inspect Program

Major H. D. Goldthwaite, divisional secretary for the Oregon and southern Idaho branch of the Salvation Army work, will inspect the Klamath Falls program of the local youth program from March 30 to April 2.

The major will be present at the weekly corps institute, 6:30 p. m., for both youth and adult classes.
