

Benefits To Jobless In Oregon Rise

SALEM, April 9 (AP)—Unemployment compensation benefits in Oregon totaled $10,105,473 in the first three months of 1946, with $7,121,250 going to jobless workers and $2,984,223 to veterans under the GI bill of rights, the state unemployment compensation commission said today.

During March, $2,855,118 went to civilians and $1,225,544 to veterans, the amounts being higher than for the entire year of 1945. March benefits were up 19 per cent in March compared with February.

The commission said it thinks that the peak might have been reached in March, since the number of claims is dropping slightly.

The commission's reserve fund fell below $70,000,000, the commission predicting it will drop to $60,000,000 by the end of this year.

Of the $7,121,250 paid to veterans in the first three months of this year, $4,405,074 was paid out of the commission's Portland office.

Sponsors Of Plan Given Run-Around

Mayor Ostendorf then said that he understood the VFW would take the lead in getting finances for the baseball project whereupon Zell said:

"This is the first time I've ever heard of it. It's certainly news to us."

Councilman Rollin Cantrall advised Zell that the mayor was "speaking for himself there" and said that he had no knowledge of such a step.

"I was talking to one of your men and he thought your organization would raise $500, the Legion, $500 and other organizations similar amounts to make up the $2500," the mayor advised.

Zell then asked if the VFW had an invitation to the proposed meeting.

"Yes, sir," replied the mayor. "When?" queried Zell.

"I don't know," said the mayor. "Recreation Deal"

Cantrall then, after a brief interlude of other council business, urged the city fathers to get back to the "recreation deal."

He stated that he felt something should be done and it was time for the recreation and finance committees and ball players to get together.

Cantrall then advised Landry that he, Landry, had forced the mayor's hand and "now you'll get told off like I did."

The mayor told Landry that the rodeo association would make an offer and when he asked the council what they would like to do, the council requested the matter be tabled.

The baseball question is now right where it started. Sponsors of baseball, including softball, are making an effort to get a field on which to practice and also play home games where admission will be charged.

Baseball sponsors had sought a meeting with the finance committee of the council but no meeting was scheduled. Last night's session failed to yield any further advance in getting hold of either finances with which to handle the proposed season, or a place to play.
