

Elusive Girls Still Sought

Still missing are the two girls whom police spotted on the roof of the Kern hotel last Friday night. When a police officer was climbing up the hotel fire escape after the girls they crossed over to the roof of the Klamath hotel, went down through the building and disappeared.

The older girl is described as 16 years old, five feet four inches tall, weight 137 pounds, fair complexion, brown hair and blue eyes. She was wearing a light blue skirt, tan blouse, tan coat, earrings and black high-heeled shoes Friday afternoon.

The other is 15 years old, five feet nine inches tall, weighs 140 pounds, fair complexion with dimples, has brownish blonde hair, grey eyes and wears glasses.

She was reported wearing a blue sweater, black and white checked skirt and a light blue coat with a black velvet collar. Police and juvenile officials are searching for the girls. They were heard at the Klamath hotel Friday afternoon to mention "leaving town."

Cotton Bag Clothes To Be Shown Here

The cotton bag wardrobe arranged by the national cotton council of America and the textile bag manufacturers association, which is being displayed throughout the country is on its way to this area, according to Mrs. Leon Andrieu, home economics chairman of Midland grange 781.

Made entirely from cotton sack material which first was used to package flour, meal, chicken feed, and other commodities, this set of garments will be displayed at the Midland grange meeting in the Midland grange hall Wednesday, at 9:30 p. m.

Including approximately 15 garments with various accessories, this set is one of several being offered currently for display purposes before sewing groups, particularly in agricultural areas.

HOUSING SHORTAGE LICKED

MOLALLA, May 6 (AP)—They still build their homesteads of logs in this great northwest—they have the pioneer spirit.

Paul Miettunen, faced with a June marriage and no home, got busy with an axe on a tract near Colton. The log house is now ready for his bride-to-be, Aiene Ringo, Portland, when the two are wed June 16.
