Schools Learn Fire Cautions

At the end of this week approximately 1800 school children in Klamath Falls will have been informed on practical fire prevention methods.

In connection with the Stop Forest Fires program, John Sarginson, district ranger, is speaking to schools all this week. The film, "Scout in the Forest," is being shown to bring out the main points of Sarginson's talk, which are, proper methods of putting out campfires, care with matches and carelessness with cigarettes. He is giving special emphasis to grass fires in areas adjacent to Klamath Falls.

Hal Ogle, superintendent of KFFPA, is in charge of details for the banquet in connection with the program, which will be held
