

Umberto Becomes King Pending June Ballot On Italian Monarchy

ROME, May 10 (AP)—The Italian cabinet approved today the assumption of the throne by Crown Prince Umberto, but specified his powers would extend only until June 2. On that day the Italian people will decide whether to continue the monarchy.

The ministers decided Umberto could sign decrees "Umberto II, King of Italy" but not use the phrase traditionally following the signature, "By Grace of God and Will of the People." Umberto's father, Vittorio Emanuele III, abdicated last night after a 45-year reign and sailed for Egypt.

Communists oppose Umberto, and the socialist press today called him the "King of May" and declared in its headlines "fascist prince succeeds fascist king for 23 days."

The socialist newspapers said the abdication was a "useless political maneuver" intended to influence the outcome of the June plebiscite.

Greece also prepared to settle speedily the fate of her king, George II. Premier Tsaldaris announced that Greeks would vote on the question as soon as electoral lists are revised. Previously the Greek government had not planned to hold a plebiscite until 1948, but the populist party, largely monarchist, came into power in recent elections. Recent announcements from Athens said the British and United States governments had agreed to the holding of an earlier plebiscite.

Rome's communist party organ L'Unita charged that the abdication had "broken the truce on monarchy." When the allies captured Rome two years ago the Italian government and crown agreed to a truce on the question of the monarchy pending a voters' decision, but a British foreign office spokesman in London said recently the decision to hold the election June 2 was interpreted as ending the period of the truce.
