velopment can't be regarded wholly as a joke, even if the school "strike" has been carried on in a good-natured, show-off sort of way.

It is probably a part of the general spirit of unrest and futility that now pervades the world. People WANT to do something to get back to a normal peacetime way of life, but wherever they turn they face frustration. If they try to build a house to live in, they run into a shortage of materials that stops them in their tracks. Whatever of a constructive nature they attempt seems to end up against a high wall. Only the raw materials of disturbance and discontent seem to be present in unlimited supply. That isn't a hopeful state of affairs.
