Woodcock Popular In Loss To Mauriello By Knockout

NEW YORK, May 18 (AP)—The latest invading British heavyweight champion, willing Bruce Woodcock, wound up his debut in the accepted fashion here—which is somewhat horizontal—but for the first time the bash bolevardiers in these parts wanted one of the invaders to come back and try again.

Bruce headed back home today after his fifth-round knockout at the hands of Tami Mauriello, the Bronx fat boy, in Madison Square Garden last night before 13,479 customers who contributed a $98,590 gate.

A fast, sudden right cross late in the fifth heat did the trick for the only knockdown of the fight, all the more surprising since up to that point the Doncaster Dynamiter had been touching Tami quite liberally, to the apparent displeasure of the meaty Mauriello and the consternation of the charitable betting gentlemen who had installed the tubby untown thumper as a 1 to 6 favorite.

And despite the finish at 2:16 of the fifth, with Bruce trying to brace his wobbly legs after coming off the floor a moment too late, there is no doubt the willing Woodcock was the most popular empire nose-mashing boss ever to make a beachhead in an American ring.

The large difference between all the rest and Bruce is that when the others finished the boys and girls were glad to see them go, but they gave Woodcock a hand leaving the ring last night that was as good as an engraved invitation for him to come on over again some time after his June fight in London with Freddie Mills.

That one, incidentally, probably is a consolation prize of one sort or another, since Mills was stopped by Light-heavyweight Boss Gus Lesnevich last Tuesday in ten heats.
