Today's Roundup
By MALCOLM EPLEY

How soon will the first United Airlines mainliner set down on the Klamath airport?
Since United's application to serve Klamath has been approved by the CAB, United officials have begun talking to very indefinite terms about the start of the service. They mention lack of equipment, plans to construct a building at the airport, and other factors of delay.

EPLEY

Equipment And Buildings

We don't pretend to know United's equipment situation, but we remember that when there was a question as to whether United or Western Airlines would be better for Klamath Falls, one argument offered in behalf of United was that it was already operating a north-south coast run, and would be in a position to give almost immediate service if granted an OK by the CAB.

There was talk that United could start with alternate schedules, using equipment on the run here that would merely be diverted from its alternate coast run.

As to the airport building situation, the idea of anything being held up pending construction of a building at the Klamath municipal airport is almost ludicrous. The place is lousy with buildings.

United may have good reason to want to put up its own permanent structure, but certainly it can find adequate and satisfactory building quarters there for temporary use. How about the naval air station administration building, which is equipped with communications, etc.?

We're Eager, United

What we are saying to United is that we are glad it got the Klamath deal, and we are anxious to see it get going.

Klamath has suffered for years under an airline discrimination situation. Airmail to and from this city has been slower than regular mail. Air passengers have had to go long distances to get on planes. Air express has been unsatisfactory.

Klamath is a busy town with progressive ideas. It has businesses that compete with other businesses that have better air service. Now that the authority has at last been granted for the remedy, let's have the remedy.

Don't make us wait too long to say "Welcome, United" as the first plane sets down on a Klamath municipal airport runway.

We're eager, United. We hope you are!

News Behind The News
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 31—People in general are awakening at last and asking seriously how we ever got into this strike holocaust.

Mr. Truman has suggested a congressional investigation be held to find out—and presumably to find a way out. This merely follows a recommendation made a week earlier by a number of senators and congressmen.

No greatly unsettled confusion or dispute marks this search. Indeed, God has given us

Malin

A meeting of the Malin Girl Scout troop committee was held May 22 at the home of Mrs. James Ottoman. Plans were made for interesting summer activities for the troop. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses to the following members, Mrs. Otto Ellis, Mrs. Jerry Rajnus, Mrs. Glen Morton, Mrs. Lloyd Mook, Mrs. Ruth Morrow, and Mrs. Elzie Roberts.

Mrs. Elzie Roberts was entertained by her daughters and families on her birthday anniversary Saturday, May 25, with a dinner and theatre party. Present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Vaclav Kalina, Ruth and Ronnie, Mr. and Mrs. John Freitag, Gary and Joan, Elzie Roberts and the honored guest, Mrs. Elzie Roberts.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Weber and family left this week for Portland where they will attend the Rose Festival. They also plan to visit in Washington before returning to Malin.

A skating party was enjoyed by about 50 Boy and Girl Scouts last Friday night at the Broadway hall, given by the Girl Scout troop committee. Hostesses serving for the evening

The unusual gift of seeing ourselves in this matter as others see us. The London Times, reporting our troubles to a labor-conscious Britain, the government of which is in the hands of the socialist labor party, says in a news dispatch (May 20th) the trouble is traceable to "the repeated failure of congress to amend the Wagner labor relations act so as to make its interdiction of unfair labor practices apply to the union and their leaders as well as to the management. After that there are laws and the court rulings over a decade and more which have specially exempted labor from penalties for acts in restraint of trade that apply to all the rest of the community."

This is approximately what a citizen remarked in a hotel lobby when he went to the counter to buy a paper the second day of the strike: "What can you expect when you elect a government for a third and fourth term!"

Strike Fever

To anyone who has closely followed developments here the past 14 years, these generalities measure true against the details of what happened. The unions have strike fever. They have exaggerated their rights until they have forgotten entirely the principles of simple, common justice. They have fed themselves upon increasing power until they have reached the feverish condition in which no rights exist except those which they want. They no longer appeal to public justice. They take. They threaten. They override. It is a state of mind, based upon an accumulation of unprecedented power.

Take the case of Mr. Whitney, generalissimo of trainmen. The inside story of his behavior is told this way in most authoritative quarters: A rival started working to get his job about a year or more back. Since then he has veered away from the brotherhood traditions of restraint and responsibility to meet the urging tactics of his rival. As a radicalized old timer, it was he who fronted for Johnston of the engineers in stalking the White House. Mr. Truman and the administration have become so angry at him (see Hannegan statement) that my information indicates they are after his job. They will have the union kick him out if they can, although they are not after Johnston.

Violates Electoral Justice

NOT even a church could escape public condemnation if it announced it would spend even the $2,500,000 to beat congress, much less the $47,000,000 which Whitney said would not be necessary, and the millions being spent by CIO and AFL for political purposes. If such a plan is not a violation of the law which is supposed to prevent political expenditures by labor unions, but does not (because of immunity of an attorney general's decision) it is a violation of common electoral justice as people in general understand it.

Labor leaders have come to believe they are above all law, not merely the laws limiting campaign contributions, and they announce it to the public. This is, perhaps, not news to any citizen who has not come in late upon the national scene. But it is news that they have become oblivious to the suffering they cause and have mounted above the common law of natural justice to their fellow men, a feeling for common good, for the right of other people to live and eat, to have light, fuel, transportation and telephone service. The natural human instinct of consideration for the other fellow has been obliterated in their projects. The Christian spirit has been lost in the frenzy of newly asserted rights imposed upon the majority by sheer force of accumulated power of a minority.

I will have more to say tomorrow in development of this theory that it is an abnormal state of mind with which government and the people are required to deal more than laws and regulations in this matter, and I will recommend a solution—the restoration of principles of simple common justice.

Poe Valley

A wonderful rain visited the valley here recently, ending the long dry spell which almost dried up all the pastures and gardens, also retarded the grain crop.

Dale Van Meter of Klamath Falls is spending a few days at the home of his grandparents, the Joe Norks.

The potato planting season is about over here now. The Reilings, Will Tuback and Bo Tuckers finished this week.

Joe Nork and Johnnie Van Meter came home from Eagle Point to spend the weekend. They went back Sunday night.

Elmer Fisher, who has recently been released from a navy hospital, is visiting with relatives here. He expects to be married in the near future.

Sympathy is extended to the Tipton family on the death of their wife and mother by the community.

Mrs. Joe Nork and John, and Mrs. Victor Nork and children narrowly escaped injury while on their way to Klamath Falls Thursday, when a big bird flew against the windshield of their car, shattering it. Owing to the shatterproof glass, no one was injured though small splinters of glass flew on those in the front seat.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Anderson were callers in Olene Thursday.

and Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. Rolf Pielke, Mrs. Albert Christy and Sharon Christy, Bonnie Gieger, Rose Marie Floyd, Mary Monks, Ann and Jean McKell, and the guests of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watterston of Oakland, Calif., were guests this past week of Mr. and Mrs. Grear in Chiloquin. In honor of their guests the hosts entertained at dinner last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil R. Holloway and daughters, Jeanette, Nancy, Sammye Lee and Diana, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren.

Mr. and Mrs. William Priebe and daughter Georgia drove to Butte, Mont., this week where they are visiting Priebe's relatives. Ivy Miller is working for Georgia at the Pioneer Drug store.

Friends of Gaynel Hanlan will be interested to know that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. "Mickey" Hanlan of Chiloquin have recently announced her marriage to Boyd Winward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Winward, prominent ranchers of Lakeview. Accompanied by the bridegroom's parents, the young couple were married in San Francisco February 18, but withheld announcement until now, because both Boyd and Gaynel were members of this year's graduating class of Lakeview high school. Young Mrs. Winward has one sister, Patricia Hanlan, of Chiloquin.

Hanson To Sail For Australia

Jack Hanson, Klamath Falls boy, will leave soon for Australia. He will sail from San Francisco for Sydney June 21. A farewell party in his honor will take place in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Saturday, June 1 at 8 p. m. A program of interest to all of his friends will be held for one hour in the chapel. The remainder of the evening will be spent in dancing in the church recreation hall.

Jack will serve as a missionary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints while in Australia. He will be in Australia about two years.

Well known in Klamath Falls, Jack is a graduate of KUHS. He was in the school band for three years. He served in the army three years and was in the army air corps band most of this time at the Portland army air base and also in Alaska.

Jack is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hanson Sr. of 635 Division. All of his friends may say goodbye and bon voyage to Jack Saturday night. He leaves for Salt Lake City Sunday, June 2, where he will attend a great gathering of the church young people being held there next week. He enters the mission home in Salt Lake City June 10.

Jack Oliver Hanson is set to leave on a mission to Australia for the Mormon church this week.

Olene

Pageant Meet At Chiloquin

CHILOQUIN, May 31—Citizens interested in the Centennial celebration of the opening of the Old South Road to be held in Klamath Falls this fall, met Monday night to discuss Chiloquin's part in the affair.

Mrs. Kenneth Roberts offered the theatre box office as a collection spot for names of those desiring to take part in the actual pageant. The local committee has been asked to turn in to the Centennial committee in Klamath Falls the names of all residents of Chiloquin and surrounding country who are willing to be in the pageant, whether as actors, singers, or members of tableaux. Those interested are urged to leave their names at the box office of the Chiloquin theatre as soon as possible.

Those attending Monday night's meeting were Mrs. Roy Gieger, Mrs. Kenneth Roberts, Mrs. Gerald McKell, Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. William Morande, Mrs. Rolf Pielke, and Bill Lorenz. Lorenz has been delegated to secure pledges of local residents willing to help underwrite the celebration.
