Londoners To Celebrate Victory With Big Parade

LONDON, June 7 (AP) — Millions of visitors jammed the English capital today for tomorrow's victory celebration, expected to be the greatest show this nation has seen since the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in May, 1937.

As flags bedecked the ancient streets, softening the scars of war, authorities prepared to handle 10,000,000 or more people in London from long before dawn until far after midnight as masses continued to pour in from all parts of the kingdom, freed from their normal routine by the long Whitsuntide holiday.

At a cost of approximately $620,000, the government has devised a spectacular entertainment in official token of the allied triumph, 13 months after the victory in Europe.

Royal Family to Parade

The victory will be commemorated especially by the day's first major event—a parade of marching columns and mechanized forces, led by the royal family in a state landau, escorted by cavalry.

To the accompaniment of martial music, men and women of the homeland, colorfully uniformed representatives of all parts of the empire and contingents of allied armies will move past the huge reviewing stand in the Mall, a wide thoroughfare between Buckingham palace and the admiralty arch.

Civilian veterans of the blitz and railroad men who ran trains despite the luftwaffe attacks, will march along with those who fought from African deserts to the wreckage of Germany.

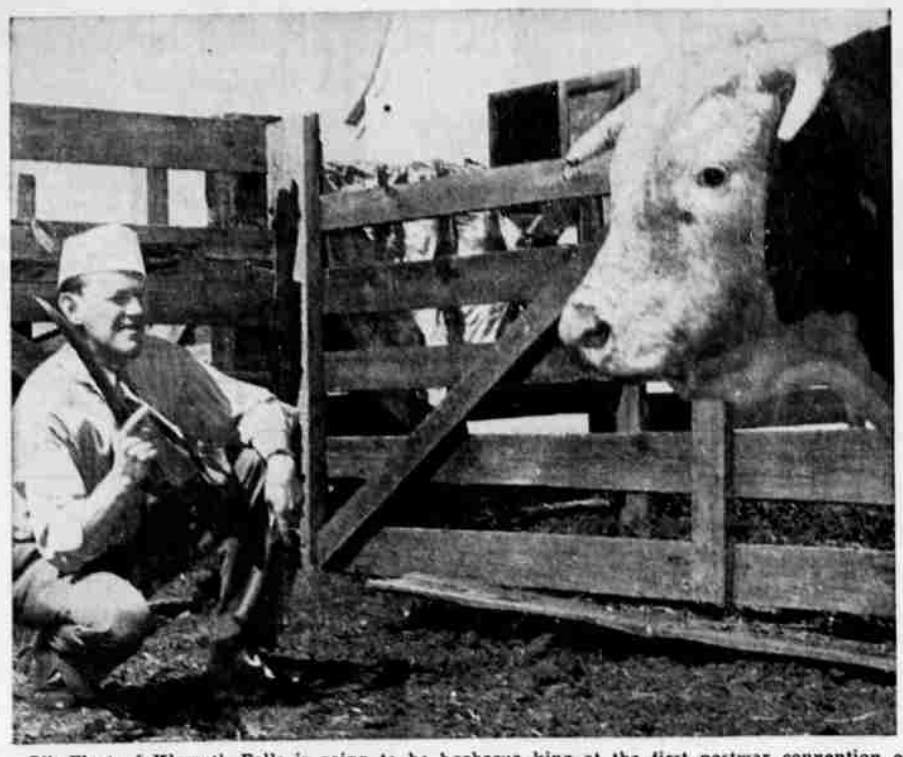
RAF Overhead

Over them will fly old and new craft of the RAF, heavy bombers, famed in the war years and jet-propelled ships, of later fame, sweeping low to salute the sovereign.

The greatest disappointment for Britons is the absence of Gen. Eisenhower, who advised Prime Minister Atlee that pressure of work in the United States prevented him from accepting the government's invitation to attend. The American army, navy and marine corps will be represented, however, by high ranking officers and detachments of men numbering in all about 130.

Three allied countries will not participate in the parade—Russia, Yugoslavia and Poland. It was announced last night that the Polish government had notified Britain that a Polish contingent would not be in the march. A week ago the Poles, accepting a British invitation, had said their army, air force and navy would be represented. Reasons for the reversal of decision, it was said, would be set forth in a note to be delivered to the British soon.

Gib Fleet and the Doomed Whiteface



Gib Fleet of Klamath Falls is going to be barbecue king at the first postwar convention of the Order of the Antelope on Hart mountain in July. Gib learned the art under the late Joe Shirk, and Antelopers can expect luscious beef to emerge from the pit in front of the entrance to the Blue Sky hotel atop the mountain. In this picture we see Gib, a wicked looking bit of cutlery over his shoulder, giving the eye to a big whiteface—or is the big beef-still-on-the-hoof giving the eye to Gib?

Vets Urged To Check Policies

Due to certain "war clauses" in some commercial insurance contracts, returned ex-servicemen should check with their insurance agents to reinstate any clauses which may have been suspended because of active military service, the department of veterans' affairs advised this week.

Certain special benefit provisions such as double indemnity, waiver of premium or disability income in commercial policies may have been automatically terminated or suspended and veterans should apply in such cases to have these provisions restored, it was advised.

Furthermore, veterans who served in the armed forces before Sept. 2, 1945, but failed to report their status, may have paid premiums for provisions which were no longer in force, and it should be possible for them to obtain refunds, according to notices being sent out to policy holders by some sompanies.

Veterans' affairs officials said reinstatement of suspended provisions will not be made until the veteran notifies the company that he is discharged from the service, by terms of certain commercial contracts.

Trinity House Sympathizes With Coast Guard Parents

An interesting letter has been received by Carl Colvin of this city from the corporation of Trinity House in London.

Colvin's son, Jack, was one of five coastguardsmen who lost their lives in Scotch Cap lighthouse in the Aleutian islands in the tidal wave on April 1.

Trinity House, the English organization which directs the maintenance of coast installations, lighthouses, buoys, and dockyards, in a letter written just eight days after the tragedy, conveyed its sympathy to the relatives of men lost at Scotch Cap lighthouse.

The original letter was sent to the commandant of the coast guard in Washington, D. C., and photostatic copies were forwarded to the individual families of the men.

Trinity House was authorized by Henry VIII in 1514. From the first it has been an association of English mariners who maintain coast installations and lighthouses. First located in Trent, Trinity House now has its headquarters in London.

In effect, the letter signed by the secretary of Trinity House stated, "I am directed by the Elder Brethren to acquaint you that in the press reports of the tidal waves which occurred on April 1 in the North Pacific they have observed with profound regret a statement that among other casualties the Scotch Cap lighthouse was overwhelmed with the loss of all lightkeepers."

The letter went on to say, "I am desired to convey from the corporation of Trinity House to the United States coastguard service an expression of their sincere sympathy in the loss which the service has sustained in this tragic occurrence. If the opportunity should present itself for doing so, the Elder Brethren will be glad if a suitable message of condolence may be conveyed from them to the relatives of the men who lost their lives at Scotch Cap lighthouse."

Airport Open At Lakeview

The Lakeview airport is now open and ready for business, according to word from Jack Main, manager of the Lake County chamber of commerce.

Main said that numerous inquiries have been received from Klamath fliers about landing on the Lakeview field, and he expects the air travel between Klamath and Lakeview to expand rapidly, now that the port is open.

The Lakeview field was developed by the navy as an auxiliary facility. It was used as a refueling base for planes from the Klamath naval air station on air-to-air gunnery practice missions over the huge gunnery area east of Lakeview.

Recently, the city got it back on an interim permit. Dale Williams and Glen Plato are co-managers of the field.
