

Concession To Be Run By Highleys

Managing the concession at the Red Cross auction, July 14, will be Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Highley, who have offered to give their time toward the Red Cross.

Contributors to the concession stand are Swift and company, Bratton Packing company, Johnson Packing company, Mason-Ehrman, Pacific Fruit and Produce, Beck's bakery, and Fluhrer's bakery.

Because of the shortage of sugar, pies and cakes will be scarce unless people wish to bring a cake or pie, or both, to donate at the time they come to the sale. Frank Hurd, who is undertaking much of the planning for the sale and program, states that a number of people have called him wanting suggestions of things to contribute. Hurd urges that people coming to the event bring a pie or cake so that the necessary 250 pies and 100 cakes will be available.

Pictures of Smokey, the Red Cross horse who is the main attraction of the auction sale, will be on display soon in local stores. Pictures were taken by the Shutter shop as its contribution to the Red Cross.

West Coast Airlines has purchased three army surplus DC-3s, which will be converted to carry 24 passengers each, Gifford said.

Return—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ostendorf and their daughter, Jean, returned Friday evening from Oakland, Calif.

Whipping Cream Fate In Balance

The fate of whipping cream is still undecided and as yet no move has been made to take it off the market. Klamath Falls creamery operators advised here today. Dairy men have been expecting an order from the U. S. agricultural department since early June which would stop the commercial sale of whipping cream. This order would not effect table cream, and milk would still contain the same percentage of butter fat.

Some creamery owners think that it is possible the ice cream producer may also be limited in an effort to turn more cream into butter channels.

House Sustains Truman's Stand On Price Curbs

(Continued from Page One) would start the value of the dollar falling and keep it falling. Far from helping production it would retard it. In the end this bill would lead to disaster.

Hanging on the swiftly moving developments was the answer to the question whether there would be a continuation of price and wage controls after midnight Sunday. OPA is scheduled to die then unless there is a further action by congress to keep the agency alive.

The second war powers act, by which the government has authority to ration commodities, was amended in the senate June 21 to provide that nothing in it could be construed as authority for fixing price ceilings.

Stop-Gap Sought
Mr. Truman asked congress to take stop-gap action to keep controls alive, by resolution, at once. Then, he said, the house and senate should consider an extension of price control authority which would provide "adequate assurance of completing a successful transition to a sound peacetime economy."

Should the house or senate uphold today's veto, OPA could survive after tomorrow night only through special emergency legislation.

Economic Stabilization Director Chester Bowles, who dramatically resigned last night after the senate passed the compromise extension bill which Bowles said was full of inflationary "booby traps," hailed the presidential veto of the bill, asserting: "Every citizen in this country ought to deeply appreciate the courage of President Truman vetoing this impossible price control bill."

Bowles made his statement to the Associated Press just after he had been informed by the office of the president's veto.

Fremont Fire Curbs Go On

LAKEVIEW, June 29—Fire season restrictions within the national forest areas will go into effect Monday, July 1, according to L. K. Mays, Fremont forest supervisor. These provisions that campfire permits are required for camping parties on the national forest except in developed and fire-proofed camps. Campers in the forest traveling by car or with horses are required to have with them an axe, shovel and water bucket. It is also unlawful to smoke while traveling within the forest area. Campfire permits may be obtained at the local forest office, at ranger stations and at other points throughout the forest where forest service personnel are stationed.

Forest camps on the Fremont forest where campfire permits are not required are as follows: Willow Creek, Booth Park, Chandler Park, Thomas Creek, Happy Camp, Campbell Lake, Deadhorse Lake, North Creek, Lee Thomas, Marsters Spring, Currier Camp, Sprague River and Dog Lake.

A series of lightning storms hit the Fremont forest over the weekend and caused six lightning fires. In most sections there was a good rain which materially aided the foresters in controlling the fires, all of which were kept to small size. However, the effects of this rain will soon be over and the foresters are warning that everyone who uses the forest should use extreme caution with fire from now on.

Improvement Sought For Lava Bed Roads

The roads to and in the Lava Beds national monument came in for discussion before the tourist and roads committees of the Klamath County chamber of commerce yesterday with the hope that the federal government may soon do something about improving the roads in that area.

So far during the month of June 3200 persons have visited the monument, representing 28 states, the District of Columbia, British Columbia and France. The total is four times as great as the total of visitors for June of last year.

Disorderly GI Gets Suspended Sentence

Pvt. Martin Robert Rasmussen, an army cook being transferred to Camp Beale, Calif., from Ft. Lewis, Wash., was given a 30-day suspended sentence for disorderly conduct this morning after he was taken from a south-bound train here last night.

The 18-year-old soldier was said to have been drinking and raising a row on train 13 and the conductor, George D. Newton, couldn't make him behave. He was arrested by SP officers at the depot and lodged in the city jail last night. This morning he pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct in justice court.

Police Identify Escaped 'Cons'

(Continued from Page One) had been advised that the two were suspects and with Night Patrolman Bob Fischleigh started out after the car. They were followed by two other officers, William Clendenen, special police, and Peter Sorenson, deputy sheriff and Tulelake constable.

Police pursued the car one and one-half miles south of town where it was stopped and the two hitch hikers taken from Welch's machine. They were immediately lodged in the city jail and information called to state police here. Two of the officers left Klamath Falls at 2:30 p. m. with fingerprints and pictures supplied by the state penitentiary. They were further identified by tattoo marks.

Officers were of the opinion that the three had stolen a car at Salem, but later were involved in an accident and there Cleveland and Strain separated from Keller.

Salem advised that the three got away from the work gang and while under armed guard they ducked behind a barn and fled into a nearby wooded area as guards fired three shots at them. A search of the area and an alarm throughout the state followed immediately.

Keller was imprisoned October 6, 1945, and the other two on April 29, 1946.

Come to Corvallis
Few Oregon communities can rival the beauty of Corvallis, whose name, "Heart of the Valley," reveals its location near the center of the fertile Willamette region. Westward the green hills rise gently into the lower reaches of the Coast Range, and to the East, beyond the valley, lie the rugged Cascades.

Oregon State College, one of the nation's foremost educational institutions, has brought fame to Corvallis, and visitors to the Northern forest areas all hold special memories of this pleasant city.

Corvallis is county seat of prosperous Benton County and headquarters for the U. S. Siuslaw Forest. The state game farm boasts an average of 20,000 pheasants.

A year-around mild climate, thriving industries, and a web of modern highways help keep Corvallis progressive. Along these highways Greyhound performs a vital service, linking Corvallis to other Oregon communities with the best in local transportation.
