News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON WASHINGTON, July 2—The British handled the communist-pushed Spanish questions in the security council — and deftly. They worked affairs around so no important action was taken, and the United States merely went along.

Easy For British IN this case, the British had an easy opportunity. The whole Lange-Russian case was founded upon the assumption, as stated, that Spain "is a serious danger to the maintenance of international peace and security" — which everyone knows is not a fact.

No Change Likely THUS the status quo of Spain is likely to continue, with only increased communist agitation within its borders where strikes are reported, and the usual communist methods developing.

Today's Roundup

DEWITT, Ia.—(Travel Correspondence)—Today, we rolled through Iowa's interminable corn fields; past innumerable large square white houses in a cool setting of trees and green lawn; through dozens of towns, big and little that serve this prosperous farming country.

What we saw of Iowa today (we cut right through its middle) was all of a pattern. We've mentioned the farm houses, which look just alike from one end of the state to the other.

Thus fortified, we did what thousands of Iowans and a few others have done: we climbed to the top of the dome. It was one of those endless hikes up winding iron stairs that make you realize your age.

Several thousand visitors have cut or scrawled their names on the walls, floor and railings of the little dome room. Even glass windows are covered with scratched names.

The apparent breaking of the deadlock over Trieste at the Paris conference practically insured that the fire-up there is to be kept localized.

It should also put an end to talk of Trieste as the possible ignition point for a third world war — talk which began recently in connection with increased British and American naval strength in the Adriatic and reports, denied in Moscow, of Russian reinforcements for Tito.

ceed. Now, with growing evidence that Russia recognizes her own limitations, and that her own fait accomplis have brought her to the verge of a break with her wartime allies, it is unlikely that she will wish to aggravate the situation.

Whether the proposal goes through in its present form or not, there is ample reason for believing that the powers have no intention of permitting the Trieste disturbances to spread.

Fiscal Report Due For Banks

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—Federal banking authorities called upon banks today to report their condition as of the close of business last Saturday, the end of the fiscal year.

The federal reserve issued the call to its members, the comptroller to national banks and District of Columbia banks, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to FDIC-insured state banks which are not members of the federal reserve system.

The calls are routine and occur at regular intervals.
