

Tedious Task Lies Ahead Of Atomic Control Group

NEW YORK, July 6 (AP)—The United Nations atomic conference hopes to complete the first phase of their deliberations by next weekend but it was apparent today that world atomic control could be established only after long, painstaking preliminaries.

Grocers Open New Quarters

On next Monday, Parks Grocery will open for business in a new location on S. 6th and Shasta way. The new building will contain over 5000 square feet of floor space, with an 80-foot frontage on Shasta and an 80-foot frontage on Division. It will be just 40 feet off South 6th when the new highway is put through.

The store has been designed and built with an eye to customer convenience. New type "island" display counters run the length of the store to a 35-foot produce rack at the rear, which also houses offices and cashier's cage.

An 18-foot meat counter with an 8 by 12 walk-in box are the show spots of the meat department. There is also a large refrigerated box for produce in this area. Frozen foods will be handled in new type open-top display cases. Another feature of the store will be a smoking and magazine stand and lounge for the convenience of shoppers.

The Parks firm is one of the older ones in Klamath, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parks having first gone into business here in 1925 at 2279 S. 6th. Two years later the store was moved to 2222 S. 6th where it remained until completion of the new building. The new store, which is of brick backed with hollow tile, was designed especially for convenient grocery service by J. H. "Jack" Jewett, who manages the store, and was built by Angelo Doveri. Mary F. Parks is still owner of the store.

In addition to Jewett, the firm will have Paul Poteet and Everett Vickers in the meat department, with W. E. Allen in charge of the produce department, and Evelyn Gehrmann will handle the bookkeeping and accounts.

Kentuckians Protest End Of Price Control

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 6 (AP)—A buyers' protest against the end of government price and rent control gained momentum here today as leaders concentrated on plans to send 150,000 postal cards, letters and telegrams to Representative Emmet O'Neal and United States Senator Alben W. Barkley.

Meantime, plans for picketing merchants and landlords who raise prices were held in abeyance. Mayor E. Leland Taylor told representatives of the committee that he does not favor such activity.

that "only a very optimistic view" would support the idea that any concrete atomic program may be ready for submission to the security council in time for action at the month or longer meeting of the general assembly scheduled to begin here September 3.

The United States delegation said that even after the adoption of atomic controls "the process of putting them into effect will necessarily extend over a considerable period of time."

"It will have to be done by stages . . . and according to pre-arrangement schedules based on sound and logical sequence leading to full and effective establishment of all controls," a memorandum from the Americans said.

Course Charted However, the preliminary work cleared away thus far under the fast-paced leadership of Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt has resulted in a nearly complete outline charting a course through the areas of mutual dissent in the separate United States and Russian plans for atomic control.

Evatt himself, after a strenuous two months as leader of the Australian delegation to the security council and atomic groups, begins on Monday his last week as chairman of the 12-nation atomic energy commission, its full membership working committee and its six-member subcommittee No. 1.

Under the monthly rotation system, the gavel passes to the nominee of the Brazilian delegation after July 14. Evatt was expected to remain a few days after he retires from the chairmanships and then go to Paris for the peace conference.

Subcommittee No. 1 will meet for probably the last time Monday afternoon, with Evatt presiding, but will remain on call as a coordinating factor while the working committee sets up other organs to handle subsequent jobs such as the drafting of the subcommittee outline.

Holiday Labors In one of his last acts as chairman of all the atomic groups, Evatt kept the United States delegation working through the July 4 holiday on a detailed elaboration of the American plan calling for a world monopoly over the sources and disposal of atomic energy.

This would provide for an all-nations control of the rare uranium-bearing minerals and thorium deposits over the world and "complete and absolute ownership of all uranium and thorium actually produced."

Such deposits occur in Canada, the United States, England, Russia, Austria and elsewhere including Spain, which is barred from U. N. membership. The United States suggested also that the authority might manufacture all atomic power and sell it to individual nations rather than encourage national development as proposed by Russia.

Evatt yesterday asked the president of the security council to place the provisional rules of the atomic commission on its "urgent agenda" for approval on a procedural basis at the council meeting scheduled for next Wednesday.

Pick-Ups Busy In Rodeo Ring

Pick-up men for the Klamath rodeo have been Jack West, Clarence Adams and Bill Pentecost of Klamath Falls, and Emmett Kendrick of Phoenix, Ariz. These four men, who have been helped by many other riders at the show from time to time, have done a splendid job of work, keeping the arena clear, picking up their riders promptly and bringing back saddles, ropes and flank straps from the catch pens at the south end of the arena.

The pick-up men have also assisted in handling all loose stock in the arena, including the Brahma bulls, and in carrying boards and judge's sheets back and forth from the chutes to the judges' stand.

Touring motorists spend 19 cents of their dollar for gasoline and other transportation needs, according to the National Association of Travel officials.

5 Independence Day Babies Born In KF

Five Klamath babies will decorate their birthday cakes with flags and firecrackers for the rest of their lives, having the advantage of arriving on the Fourth of July at local hospitals.

At Klamath Valley, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Free, 1309 Sargent, and a girl to Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Sharp, 1905 Summers lane.

VFW Discuss Vet Problems

Veterans' problems and benefits were widely discussed at the recent silver jubilee encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Oregon at Corvallis.

Among resolutions passed was one calling for the war assets administration to withhold sale of the Klamath Marine Barracks until such time as the state of Oregon sees fit to purchase the property for a veterans' college.

A number of local men formed the delegation for post 1383, Klamath Falls, including H. J. McGilvary, district commander; E. V. Zell, post commander; J. N. Brochtrup, deputy inspector; Frank Sabzac, past post commander; Martin Jenkins, chaplain; John Mullins, Art Meyers, Herman Roufes and Doug Ambers.

Stock Theft Agent Makes Office Here

Chester Liechty, livestock theft investigator for the state department of agriculture, has established offices in Klamath Falls at his home, 826 California, and will have as his district seven Oregon counties including Klamath, Lake, Jackson, Josephine, Douglas, Coos and Curry.

Liechty takes the place of Evan Martin, for many years investigator in this district and now doing similar work in Arizona. Both are known to the stockmen as "gasoline cowboys" as they investigate cattle thefts using trucks as their mounts.

In addition to his work as investigator, Liechty also is inspector of slaughter houses for brands and checks auction sales stables and is supervisor of brand inspections generally. This is his first assignment in theft prevention work, although Liechty is not exactly new to the business. He has been with the Oregon state police for 10 years, three at Pendleton and the rest of the time at Coquille and other coast points. He came directly here from Coquille with his wife and two sons. Stockmen may contact Liechty by calling 7346.
