YR is a delightful little village of maybe a thousand people, founded by Scotch folk more than 100 years ago.

We came into Canada over the Blue Water bridge at Port Huron, Mich., and Sarnia, Ont. Border procedure was simple and speedy.

In 3000 miles of driving, we came for the first time upon an automobile accident a few miles inside Canada.

The uninjured American with the Chevrolet was left to his own devices; when we left him, he was very unhappy about a wrecked car and a wrecked vacation.

A YR is a delightful little village of maybe a thousand people, founded by Scotch folk more than 100 years ago.

The houses are large, ancient, built mostly of red or gray brick, and surrounded by fine old trees, lovely lawns and gardens.

This was Dominion Day (July 1) and we attended the exercises held at the village square.

The village "reeve" (mayor) opened the ceremonies; the remainder of the services were largely handled by the local clergy.

JUST back of the Ayr business buildings, down where Cedar creek spills into the River Nith, is the town's bowling green.

We tried a bit of bowling. The idea is to roll the ball across the green, stopping as near as possible to a white ball (the jack) which lies in a marked rectangle.

Not much pomp, but genuine.

News Behind The News

NOTRE DAME, Ind., July 6.—Out here where the football teams come from, I found the American counterpart of the playing fields of Eton from which the traditions have sprung which have held the British Empire together for centuries in the face of many enemies.

EDUCATORS out around the country (not here because the school lives on a campus outside South Bend), told me of the usual difficulties of our age and a new one. Inside the youngsters, some authorities seemed to have detected the presence in varying degrees of what might be called an indefinable resentment.

At Holy Cross college in Worcester, Massachusetts, this symptom was met in a way which might well be copied by colleges and universities throughout the country.

DOES this give you the inspiration of its influence—the joining of what is new with what is old in education to furnish the spirit which is common to all this nation and its many campuses?

My trip into these surroundings climaxed a two weeks journey around the country in which I attended three commencements (receiving three honorary degrees of doctors of laws and letters) and saw the younger generation.

And along that line don't leave out Bill Serruys and Marshall Cornett to who worked like the devil to get the show going, and then started in working all over again to make sure it was smooth and went according to schedule.

BOYLE'S NOTEBOOK

(This is one of a series of columns written for Hal Boyle by representative Germans, expressing their own uncensored views of their nation's future.)

BERLIN, July 6 (P)—I am a fraulein 23 years old, fairly good looking, and still with high hopes in my mind—because I hope this world will someday come to an understanding.

Trouble nowadays consists of two different groups. We are German girls, involved with the problem of national hardship and the fear of what will become of our country in the future.

I would marry an American. I feel I am marrying the man and not his nationality. If I love him I don't care what nation he belongs to, and I will follow him wherever he has to go.

In a way I am a very ordinary girl. I like to go out and do all the things you cannot do now—

And along that line don't leave out Bill Serruys and Marshall Cornett to who worked like the devil to get the show going, and then started in working all over again to make sure it was smooth and went according to schedule.

INFORMATION WANTED KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—Will you please print the following extract from the Constitution of the United States, Amendment 14, adopted July 2, 1868:

"Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States."

The question is, Why do the citizens of the United States who consider themselves patriotic,—and I suppose most of us do,—and the organizations which call themselves patriotic, remain mute, in the face of recent events in Mississippi? I believe Congress might be cited, too. I really want your answer.

Thank you very much. Very truly yours, ALICE M. WALDRON.

ONE OPA WEAKNESS KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—As the ghost of OPA stalks the halls of Washington, D. C., we now witness a great celebration and a certain amount of mourning.

Let it be understood here and now that I still think that the OPA had but one real weakness. That was the element of time. We gave it one year of life at a time. Now a beef critter can be held one year, if there is a fair chance of doubling or tripling the price at the end of that time.

Politically, I don't take much difference between the British and the Americans in their attitude toward Germany. I feel they should not restrict us too much. Let Germany get running again—have its industries working again first—and then take the reparations you and other countries desire.

There is a lot more to say about that subject. These ideas come up every day but they are certainly not the only problems girls like me are worrying about.

I am just in the marriage age. I wonder whether I will ever find the right husband. From the newspapers I learn that there are seven girls to every man in Berlin. Lucky guy, but I certainly don't want to share my boy friend or future husband with six other girls.

Generally speaking, I am very much in favor of American-German marriage. I consider this a very lucky solution for the poor girls who otherwise would have to stay single all their lives. Why don't they lift the marriage ban on German frauleins?

I like to have dates, meet nice people, do a bit of flirting, throw a big party. I also like an opera performance, a piano concert, a horseback ride in the morning, a golf game or a boat sail.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 6 (P)—Sandra Blair, 9-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benny Blair, Toledo, Wash., was recovering today after a siren-escorted 50-minute race from Kelo to have a swallowed pin removed from her throat.

The baby was rushed to a hospital late yesterday afternoon in a taxicab, escorted in turn by Washington state, Vancouver and Portland police. The father said she swallowed an open safety pin yesterday morning, and it lodged in her trachea.

She was taken to Kelo, where a physician advised bringing the child here. Hospital attendants said her condition was "very good" after removal of the pin.

Canadian Dollar At Par In Move To Curb Prices

OTTAWA, July 6 (AP)—The Canadian government, in a four-point program designed to combat the threat of rising prices in the United States and to ease the pressures of inflation, has pegged the Canadian dollar at par with the U. S. dollar and strengthened Canada's price control structure.

Finance Minister J. L. Halsey, who outlined the program to the house of commons last night in a surprise announcement in which he referred to the recent abandonment of price control in the United States, said he hoped the new measures would "go a long way toward insulating Canada against unfavorable external conditions and easing the inflationary pressures which now are so strong."

Henceforward, banks and other authorized agents of the exchange control board will buy U. S. dollars at $1 in Canadian funds, instead of at $1.10, and will sell at 1.00, instead of $1.20. Similarly, the buying price for pounds sterling is fixed at $4.02 instead of $4.43, and the selling price at $4.04 instead of $4.45. The new rates became effective at 7 p. m. (EST) last night.

This means that Canadian firms holding U. S. dollars—such as hotels, cafes and the tourist trade—will suffer a loss of 10 cents on every dollar they are holding and American tourists will get only a dollar's worth for their dollar, instead of $1.10 worth.

American investments in Canada, now worth approximately five billion dollars, are worth a half a billion more than yesterday.

The price of newspaper, Canada's biggest export to the United States, probably will be increased. It is now $67 a ton delivered in New York, payable in U. S. currency. This formerly meant $71.70 in Canadian money to the manufacturers but now it means $67.

The government is expected to permit an increase in the price to make up the difference. Newspaper sales in the United States now run at approximately $200,000,000 a year.

The other three steps in the program were: 1. Establishment of a long list of goods and services which will remain subject to price control, including virtually all household articles.

2. Retention of the principles of price control on domestic products, coupled with more stringent price control on imported products.

3. Retention of subsidy payments. Halsey acknowledged that recent developments in the United States were the major factors in addition of Canada's new program.

Reynolds Takes Over Plant At Troutdale

PORTLAND, July 6 (P)—The government's $1,228,600 aluminum plant at Troutdale will be formally turned over to Reynolds Metals company Monday under a five-year lease.

E. J. Appel, Reynolds official who has managed the firm's Longview, Wash., plant since 1941, said operations at Troutdale would begin as soon as reconditioning is finished. Eventually "several hundred" will be employed there, he said.

No Price Hike In Bread Seen

PORTLAND, July 6 (P)—A statement that bread prices—contrary to previous predictions—will not rise at present came today from James Davidson of Davidson Baking company.

He declared that "Portland bakers do not intend to raise the price of bread at this time." Other industry representatives had mentioned a possible 2-cent loaf increase to compensate for the lost wheat subsidy.

The Oregon Dairy Cooperative association, which anticipates a 2-cent a quart milk increase to make up for subsidies, appealed to northwest congressmen to keep the OPA in its grave.

A Portland residential hotel posted a sign saying "Our rent will not be raised. Be of good cheer."
