Local Club Reviews Convention Events

Gertrude Moore, newly elected president, presided at the Soroptimist luncheon meeting on Thursday, and the members heard interesting and humorous reports of the convention in Estes Park, Colo., given by Mrs. Moore and Mrs. George Hillis, who represented the Klamath Falls club.

The delegates reported that the place chosen for the convention was most scenic and the whole trip was very beautiful. However, they found everywhere that transportation and hotel accommodations were overcrowded and difficult. The convention meetings were held at the beautiful Hotel Stanley, and delegates were housed there and at Chaiet Rancho. Several delightful trips were planned for the guests, and they found the Rocky mountains' breath-takingly lovely.

The award dinner was one of the highlights of the convention when the special Soroptimist award of $1000 was presented to the most outstanding woman from a standpoint of service. The winner of this award was Dr. Bertha Lutz, Brazilian representative to the San Francisco Peace Conference.

The greatest thrill of the evening was when the president announced that the American Federation of Soroptimist clubs was granting an award to the most outstanding club in the federation for service rendered and general activity, and asked that the president of the Klamath Falls Soroptimist club come forward and receive that award.
