Child Welfare Group Formed

Action rather than discussion was the keynote sounded by Miss Barbara Seddem, state welfare department consultant, as those interested in child care, health and welfare met last night to form plans for the furtherance of that work here.

Following Miss Seddem's talk, E. E. Hambrick, city recreation director and Fred G. Robinson, member of the city recreation committee elaborated on the program contemplated for the proposed play center to be built on the Will Humphries property in the 1800 block of Main street.

Ex-Royal Barber Files For Mayor

HOQUIAM, Wash., July 19 (P)—The bearded one-time royal barber to the last king of Hawaii filed yesterday for mayor. He was octogenarian Harry Byng, who did the regal shearing in 1886 when King Kalakaua ruled the island paradise and Byng operated a barber shop in Honolulu.

Later Byng became a cook on windjammers that sailed the Pacific. He settled in Hoquiam more than half a century ago, where his long white beard, frock coat and bowler hat are a familiar sight.

Byng's republican filing is apparently his answer to city council action Monday night when the city attorney was instructed to institute court proceedings authorizing the city to raze Byng's ramshackle home, alleging it is a "menace to public safety."

Hillah Drum Corps To Attend Meeting

Twenty-six members of the Hillah temple drum corps from Klamath Falls, will leave here Sunday at 6:40 on the south-bound train to take part in the national Shrine convention and ceremonial in San Francisco July 22, 23 and 24. A number of members are also expected to leave at that time for the session.

The Klamath group will register at the Grand and Clark hotels in the city. Floyd Patty is manager of the drum corps. A large delegation is also expected to attend from valley points, these Shriners also members of Hillah temple.

On The Beat

J. Hawkins Napier, the assistant district attorney, has probably been practicing law as long or longer than any active attorney in Klamath Falls, having hung up his shingle in Poplarville, Miss., back in 1903. He was graduated that year from a college in Huntington, Tenn., and while in Poplarville he was associated in a country law office with Theodore Bilbo, now Mississippi's senior senator. Napier first came to Klamath Falls in 1911 because of his health, and has been practicing law on the west coast for 35 years. He is a member of the bars of Oregon, California, Arizona and Mississippi. The district attorney's office is on Hale Scarbrough's courthouse beat.

Park Meter Failure May Bring Tax

treasury at a time when the council is being pressed on all sides for city expenditures.

Landry said that right now the property owners in town are carrying a direct property levy of more than 100 mills, and the council doesn't feel it can go to the same old gold mine for any more money.

Heavy Financial Demands

On every hand the council is being besieged for more funds for paving, recreation, parks and various improvements. Landry said, and the council is struggling to work out a solution for raising the money.

If parking meters do not go in, he said, the council is thinking of a straight occupational tax such as has been levied in other cities.

That would be a tax of a certain amount per $1000 of the gross volume of business done by every business in town, merchants, restaurants, doctors, lawyers, garages, shops, beer taverns, and all.

In that way, Landry pointed out, the levy would be fair and equitable to large and small business alike, and chain stores, which do a large volume of business but own no property and do not carry any of the property tax load, would be taxed.

The additional money needed to meet the demands for city improvement must come from somewhere, the councilman said, and if parking meters are not brought in and the property owners can't be touched for more, then an occupational tax is something to think about.

tract to Henry George and Sons, was termed of "purely spontaneous action on the part of the crews and was not contemplated or ordered by the union," according to Joe Willis, secretary.

The strike for higher wages went into effect at midnight last night. Under existing conditions, the night shift was off from midnight until 3:30 p. m. today, the day shift from 7 a. m. until 1 p. m. today.

Speaking for the laborers' union, Willis made this statement:

"On January 28, a request for increases for laborers from 95 cents to $1.25 per hour was submitted by contractors and unions to the wage adjustment board in Washington, D. C. On February 26, a decision giving laborers $1.15 per hour was made by this board and the decision was appealed. No action on the part of the board took place and the laborers served a 30-day notice of intention to strike, as required under the war labor disputes act. This brought the United States Conciliation service into Klamath Falls for an investigation.

"Following the favorable report of the conciliator the strike notice was withdrawn and the wage adjustment board took the case for reconsideration and was to have made a decision on July 5. However, the president's veto on June 30 of the OPA, to which wage controls were tied, abolished the board as of that date and many unions, on advice from Washington, took the position that collective bargaining between contractors and unions without government regulation, was legal.

"Accordingly, on July 3, a letter was written to the Henry George company at Spokane, advising that the requested rates should be put into effect, and the company, on July 12, replied:

"We assure you that we do wish to cooperate and will do whatever the balance of the contractors of the area do."

"Since the local contractors had agreed," Willis continued in his statement, "in a joint committee meeting on July 16, to pay the requested rates on July 17, we so advised Henry George and Foster Manning, superintendent of the Worden job, that all other contractors had agreed to the new rate and requested that no American in full possession of his senses would exchange for any other way of life on earth.

THIS writer knows personally neither Representative Slaughter, of Missouri, nor Candidate Axtell, who is running against him.

But if Representative Slaughter's only fault is that he has been persistently against what President Truman wants, this writer hopes the President's attempt to unseat him will fail.

This country will be a better country for our children to live in if congress isn't dominated by the President, if the President isn't dominated by congress and if neither the President nor congress is dominated by the supreme court.

Too much power in any one set of hands is DANGEROUS.

Portland Upset By Toy Pistol

PORTLAND, July 19 (P)—The waterfront end of Portland was a bit abashed today after being thrown into a brief turmoil by a hulking man brandishing a black pistol.

The man, booked by police as Roy H. Hansen, Illinois state prison parolee, attempted to hold up a store; hit the proprietor in the face with the pistol; eluded police in downtown crowds; strode a bit later into another store, picked up a radio and walked out; shook off a pursuer by threatening him with the pistol; ran blocks with a patrolman chasing him.

A brave pedestrian finally threw himself in Hansen's way. The policeman rushed up, grappled with Hansen, handcuffed him, and then, ready to disarm him, found: they also pay it. Mr. George requested a two-week notice, which we could not agree to, due to the short duration of the job.

A black celluloid toy pistol.

"Mr. George wired the International Union office in Seattle and was advised that Klamath Falls local would be required to observe the AGC agreement and the International instructed the local to continue to supply men to the job.

"This policy will of necessity be carried out but the union cannot require any member to work a job, and if the membership does not want to work this job, that is their prerogative.

"The union is opposed to strike action and will only permit this action as a last resort. It is regrettable that this matter could not have been adjusted in a more agreeable manner," Willis concluded.
