

Porter Says Some Prices To Advance

based on a requirement of the new law restoring dealers' pre-war profit margins which OPA had reduced.

OPA Administrator Paul A. Porter predicted the new price law will "prevent a runaway inflation" but warned that some prices—particularly of clothing—are going to climb.

While his re-born agency scrambled to issue 30 to 40 new price increase orders on top of yesterday's 143, Porter appeared in an address prepared for broadcast (ABC), for consumer help in enforcing the OPA act.

"Real Protection"

The law "authorizes price increases that neither you nor I would like to see," he said, "but it will provide a real measure of protection for millions of Americans who simply have no reserve with which to ride out an inflationary storm."

"When prices and rents went on vacation a month ago, they gave us a taste of what a serious inflation might be like."

"We're more determined than ever to prevent inflation in the year ahead."

"... If we work and fight together, all of us—businessmen, farmers, housewives and workers—I think there's a good chance the history book will chalk up 1946 as the year in which inflation stuck its tail between its legs and started to slink away."

Home Robbed By Burglar

The burglar who has been giving the police her sleepless nights for the past few weeks went into the home of Robert A. Jones, 1524 Division, yesterday or last night and made off with jewelry and other articles valued at over $600.

The house was entered between 11:30 yesterday morning and 11 o'clock last night, Jones reported, when no one was at home, and entry was made by tearing the screen off a back door and lifting the hook.

Drawers of furniture in a bedroom were ransacked. The missing articles include a bracelet and matching earrings, valued at $300, a table model radio, several rings, earrings, bracelets and other articles of jewelry.

Old-Timer To Give Up Post As California Game Warden

By R. G. GROSS
Editor, Butte Valley Star
DORRIS, Calif., July 27 (AP)—A colorful and familiar figure will soon be missing from the streets of Dorris and Siskiyou county game haunts when Warden Fred Starr relinquishes his post next Wednesday, July 31.

After 20 years of service, Fred says he has come to the end of the trail, and is voluntarily retiring. He is the last of a group of pioneer northern California wardens which has patrolled the northern border area for the past 30 years. Reminiscently, he recalled them—Bill Lippincott, dead; Sam Gilloon, retired; Fred French, dead; and his good friend, Brice Hammell, who died only a few months ago, and who entered the fish and game service with Fred.

Starr's retirement leaves an area in the northern California border region extending from Alturas west to Yreka and south to Dunsmuir, without a game warden.

Starr entered the state fish and game service as a warden on July 19, 1926, and planned his retirement date exactly 20 years later, but because of personnel troubles, consented to postpone his severance until July 31.

An easterner by birth, (Brookline, Mass.), Fred saw the west as a young man after graduation from college, and never lost his love for the wide open spaces.

A graduate of Harvard with a bachelor's degree in 1906, he continued with three years of graduate study leading to a master of science degree in forestry, and went to New Mexico, where he entered the forest service.

Lured by the prospect of big profits in the cattle game, he went into old Mexico, where he ranches until 1911, when he was forced to leave Mexico because of unsettled conditions during the brawling and lawless Madera regime.

He wandered north until he came to Medford and the Rogue River region, where he engaged in fruit farming. This was not for him and he moved eastward into the Klamath river area, where he ranches until World War I interrupted. He spent 26 months in the service, 18 of which were overseas. Returning from the war he resumed ranching at Malin, Ore. Still dissatisfied, he finally found his vocation when he was offered a post as warden with the California Fish and Game commission, a position he has held continuously for 20 years.

During his term he became known to thousands of Californians and outside sportsmen who came north into his domain, as a fearless and just enforcement officer, always seeking to protect the interests of wildlife, which he loved, as well as those of his sportsmen friends. Because of his knowledge and attitude, his advice and views were often sought by those interested in game management and conservation practice.

Starr was particularly partial and sympathetic to the small independent sportsmen's associations, and has always maintained that the future of game propagation and conservation in California rests in the hands of these small organizations. He constantly has maintained that because of the vast extent of the state, its diversity of climate and topography, that game management will never successfully be handled on a statewide basis, and feels that the proper recommendations for the various areas must come from these small sportsmen's groups who understand the problems peculiar to their regions.

This "antiquated, worn-out octogenarian," as he terms himself, says he has been happy in his work, and if he had to live his life again, would choose the same course.

With his wife, Mrs. Billie Starr, he will make his home near Sacramento, where they will raise horses and springer spaniels, his two great loves.

Death Claims Judge's Widow

Mrs. Emma A. O'Neill, widow of the late Judge C. N. O'Neill, died at Hillside hospital early last night of a heart ailment after an illness of several months. She was 76 years old.

Judge and Mrs. O'Neill came to Klamath Falls from Minnesota in 1909, and he practiced law here until the time of his death in 1936.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Klein of Seattle, and Mrs. Barbara Evers of Iowa City, Ia., and several nieces and nephews, among them J. C. O'Neill and Mrs. Jack Franey of Klamath Falls, and Mrs. Richard Hayden, a grandniece, also of Klamath Falls.

Friday Adjournment Asked For Congress

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The house today passed a resolution calling for adjournment of the 79th congress next Friday.

The resolution, which now goes to the senate for consideration, was adopted by a 168 to 3 standing vote. Earlier there had been talk of quitting as soon as next Wednesday.

The adjournment motion was offered by House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts.

Adjournment next week would give congress the prospect of its longest vacation in eight years.

Benefits Provided For War Prisoners

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Hundreds of northwest men who were working for navy contractors at the outbreak of the war and underwent capture and imprisonment by the Japanese would benefit from legislation passed by the house yesterday and sent to the president.

YOUTHFUL APPETITE

BURBANK, Calif., July 27 (AP)—Six young boys paraded before a malt shop with makeshift placards reading: "We want nickel cones, we want five-cent drinks."

Spokesman Richard Price, 11, explained: "We get 50 cents a week spending money. If we have to pay ten cents for a cone, our standard of living is cut in half."

Shop owner W. J. Reagan solved part of the problem, "Come on, fellows," he called, "let's all have a treat on the house." Picketing ceased abruptly.

In The Day's News

decline, the report says, have been:

1. Satisfaction of the feed trade's demands.
2. Unwillingness of millers to compete for grain at the HIGHER PRICES.
3. Pressure of new crop wheat (the new wheat crop is expected to break ALL records).

THUS we see the law of supply and demand in actual operation and WORKING.

OPA or no OPA, prices will come down whenever more of any commodity is being offered for sale than buyers are willing to take at the offered price.
