

Copco Gets Permit For Dam Project

Confirmation has just been received from the federal power commission of a license granted to the California Oregon Power company on July 19 to build the Toketee falls project on the north Umpqua river, first unit of a comprehensive six-project development of that river and its tributaries. Estimated cost of the plant, including transmission line to Dixonville near Roseburg, is $3,200,000, according to A. S. Cummings, president of the company. Approximately two years will be required for its completion.

The Toketee project was selected as the first phase of the development of the North Umpqua river because of its greater potential capacity. Cummings said. It is based upon a modification of original application submitted to the hydro-electric commission of Oregon and the federal power commission, and calls for a 23,000 kilowatt plant to be operated on a stream flow basis.

Other projects included in the Umpqua development program upon which preliminary surveys and engineering studies have been made, include the Slide creek project, below Toketee;

Firemen Battle Blaze 11 Hours

A raging six-alarm fire that gutted Hotel Broadway in Oakland, Calif., was so intense it took 125 firemen 11 hours to subdue the blaze. Twenty firemen were injured in the spectacular blaze that sent pajama-clad hotel residents to the street. The fire caused an estimated $500,000 loss. (NEA Telephoto).

two above Toketee on the North Umpqua river known as Lemolo No. 1 and Lemolo No. 2, and two are situated on Clearwater river, a tributary of the North Umpqua, to be known as Clearwater No. 1 and Clearwater No. 2.

At the location of the Toketee falls plant, 80 miles by road from Roseburg and 25 miles below Diamond lake, the North Umpqua river flows through a rugged canyon from 500 to 1000 feet in depth. The fall is more than 100 feet per mile for a distance of four miles. The diversion dam will consist of a main earth fill section having a crest length of 350 feet and a maximum height of 45 feet. Connecting this dam with the power house will be 880 feet of wood stave pipe nine feet, six inches in diameter, 3600 feet of concrete lined tunnel of the same diameter and approximately 1500 feet of steel penstock. A surge tank will be constructed near the head of the penstock.

In The Day's News

(Continued From Page One) position to ask favors from them later. That is the bald truth, and we might as well face it.

THIS writer is even so far gone as to believe that ALL campaign contributions should be forbidden and the ban enforced to the full extent of sending violators to jail.

The stock argument against that theory has been that it would FAVOR RICH MEN. Not necessarily. Intelligent voters are always suspicious of anyone who seems to be spending too much money to get elected to office.

They SHOULD BE. The man who spends too much money to get elected isn't apt to be the kind of official we want and need.

IF all campaign expenditures—including those CONTEMPORATED, as well as those made had to be reported and published well ahead of election and if the candidate who spent too much were AUTOMATICALLY BARRED FROM OFFICE, the too-rich candidate would have no great advantage.

ALL this, of course, is idealistic in the extreme. From the standpoint of professional politics, it is the rankest kind of heresy. But it might help in getting SINCERE men into office.

That is one of our great needs.

Whiskerino Grips Chins and Jowls

(Continued From Page One) any—most barbers around town say—that their shave business is better now than ever as beard trim and shaping has once again become a part of the tonorial art.

It seems that a lot of people are whittling around on their own trying to decide what looks best on their faces, then taking the result to their favorite barber to get it straightened out.

The haircutters are doing their level best, too, considering what they have to work with sometimes—it's hard to make a van dyke out of a quarter-inch stubble. But if a customer wants a beard, the whiskers shaped like those of Abe Lincoln, U. S. Grant, Black Bart or any other favorite character, just take a picture of the model in to a barber and he'll see what he can do.

But he's got to have something to start on first. If our barbers could figure out a way to bring out a lush growth where a sparse one blossomed before, they wouldn't be barbers. They'd be millionaires.

Housing's Tough At Cleveland

CLEVELAND, July 30 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians gained an extra outfielder today because of the housing shortage. William Stengel, 56, who says he's a cousin of Casey Stengel, former Brooklyn Dodgers' manager, moved a cot into the center field tent at League park which during games houses the Indians' 15-piece swing band.

"That's how it is these days," said President Bill Veeck.

OPA May Lift Bakery Curbs

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—OPA may decide today whether to eliminate price controls on all bread and bakery products, an official disclosed.

A request of the baking industry for a one-cent loaf increase in bread prices and a 25 per cent boost in biscuit and cracker prices precipitated the issue, said this official who asked anonymity.

Under the new OPA revival law, prices are not controlled on wheat from which most bread is made.

A meeting of top OPA officials, including Geoffrey Baker, deputy administrator for prices, and possibly Administrator Paul A. Porter, was set for this afternoon (3:30 p. m.) to decide whether any effective controls on bread and other bakery products can be maintained.

If the OPA decides to continue the bread price ceilings, informed officials forecast that at least part of the baking industry demand will be granted. This would be justified, they said, because of the termination of federal flour subsidies and recent sugar price increases which have pushed up bakers' costs.

In addition to the bread and biscuit increases the industry has asked a 15 to 25 per cent rise on cookies, doughnuts and similar sweetened products.

Five Portland Teams In Meet

PORTLAND, July 30 (AP)—Five Portland semi-pro baseball teams were still in the 1946 state championship tournament today after the Albany Vets, last up-state team in the play, was eliminated last night.

Ruess said then the state department instructed him to remain inside the embassy because the question of diplomatic immunity was involved.

Capt. Homer Cain To Pilot First Plane From Bay City

Captain Homer Cain will be at the controls of the first north-bound Mainliner from San Francisco when it lands at the Klamath Falls municipal airport on inauguration of United Air Lines' service here Thursday, August 1.

Captain Cain took flight lessons from his older brother, Captain Guy Cain, who also flies for United Air Lines, when the latter had completed his flight training at the Boeing School of Aeronautics and started to fly for United. Homer also attended the Boeing school to get his airline pilot's license and began flying for United in 1939.

On their first aeronautical escapade the brothers got an impressive lesson in caution and safety. While Homer looked on, Guy leaped from a roof of a barn on their father's large ranch at Dos Palos, Calif., near Fresno, using an umbrella for a parachute. The umbrella turned wrong side out and Guy emerged from the crash landing with a broken ankle.

Captain Homer Cain, who has flown more than 250,000 miles on United Air Lines' routes, is based in San Francisco and will be making flights in and out of Klamath Falls.

He is married and has four children.

Love Of Sugar Brings Prison

GRANTS PASS, July 30 (AP)—William Richard Alderman doubtless wishes now that he had acquired a taste for black coffee because his desire for sugar led to his being sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary at Salem in circuit court here last Friday.

By misrepresenting himself and forging a purchase order, Alderman purchased a 100-pound sack of the sweet staple from the Kamper grocery saying that he was buying it for the Del Rogue coffee shop.

Store employees became suspicious when he called a taxicab to transport the sugar, and notified the police.

After a hectic pursuit Alderman was captured at the county fairgrounds.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov was not present in the hall when Byrnes made his speech, an answer to French President Bidault's inaugural address of yesterday. The Russian delegation, which has insisted upon unanimity of the four principal powers on the recommendations to the peace conference, was headed by the vice-foreign minister, Andrei Vishinsky at the moment.

The United States will stand by its agreements in the council of foreign ministers," Byrnes said. "But if the conference should, by a two-thirds vote of the governments here represented, make a contrary recommendation, the United States will use its influence to secure the adoption of that recommendation by the council."
