Pickers Plan Speed Contest
HOOD RIVER, Ore., Aug. 1 (AP)—The speed king of the orchards will be crowned here this fall in match between Henry Wooten, who recently picked more than a ton of cherries in a day, and Lane R. Potter, Pocatello, Ida., who is unimpressed by the record.

Roy Webster, for whom Wooten worked in the cherry harvest, said today Potter wrote asking for a contest with Wooten picking apples, peaches, potatoes or shearing sheep.
Wooten, who left for California a few days ago, agreed to return here this fall for the apple and pear harvest, Webster said. Since he has had a standing challenge to anyone on picking any kind of fruit, Webster said he believed the contest could be arranged without difficulty.

"I don't know Potter," he said, "but in his letter he quoted some remarkable totals for a day's work."
And with the prospect of having his fruit leave the trees like dew in the sunshine, Webster is all for it.
It took 32,000,000 rabbit skins to make 3,000,000 of those big khaki felt hats the Australian army wore in World War II.

Soil Surveyed In Poe Valley

A detailed soil survey of the 27,000 acre Poe valley soil conservation district is under way, with field work advanced to the point where completion of the survey by October 15 seems probable, according to A. M. Christenson, district conservationist of the soil conservation service.
This survey will record, on aerial photographs, the various soil types and, in addition, will indicate the slope, extent of erosion and present land use. The information obtained from this survey will be used in assisting farmers in solving their drainage problems, in determining the feasibility and extent of land leveling, and in planning the best long-time use of their land.
Supervisors of the district, at a recent meeting, adopted a program which outlines their long-time objectives. Since many of the problems are associated with soil types and drainage, the soil survey was given first priority. Additional technical assistance will be made available to the district by the soil conservation service upon completion of the present survey which will provide much of the basic information required in carrying out the district program.
The Poe valley soil conservation district is managed by a five-man board of supervisors with Wilbur Reiling, chairman; A. W. Schaupp, secretary-treasurer; and Rex E. High, George E. Stevenson and V. C. Brown.

be set up. Two meetings have been held since the organization, June 25.
Jack Prewitt, president, who is leaving for Ashland to make his home, has resigned. Virgil Horn is secretary and treasurer.

S. 6th Plans Flag Sockets

The South 6th Street Improvement Association is asking Boy Scouts to visit all business establishments on South 6th to canvass opinions of business men on placing metal flagpole sockets in the concrete sidewalks, to be poured as part of the street improvement program.
The sockets will be furnished at cost at an outlay of 50 cents each and will be delivered by the improvement association. In event someone is missed, a telephone call to George Conner at the Conner Service company will get results. Conner is public relations man for the association. The sockets will also be available at the Swan Lake Moulding company.
The time factor is exacting, Conner stated Tuesday. The contractor has agreed to place the sockets if they are ready at the time the concrete is poured.
This is one of a number of projects that the improvement association is working on for the betterment of the south suburban area.
The association, organized in June, is distributing this week copies of by-laws, and an executive committee representative of the various business groups will
