Civil Service Said Aid In Police Work

PORTLAND, Aug. 8 (AP)—You'll have to study as long to become a policeman as an attorney or physician in future years, former Police Chief Harry M. Niles told diners at a testimonial banquet in his honor last night.

Niles credited the civil service system with steadily improving the caliber of police recruits. He retired this year after 36 years with the police department and 12 years as its chief.

National forests of the United States provide recreation for more than 80,000,000 persons each year.
