Around Oregon

Whether or not Portland will have a civic center and whether it should be on the east side or the west side of the Willamette will go before the voters in November if the report of the mayor's special committee is accepted Monday. Deadline for some 80 aircraft operators in Oregon to file application to operate as non-scheduled carriers under a new law has been extended to September 15 from August 1.

While most Portlanders were yearning for the mountains and the seashore Thursday 80 businessmen were treated to a trip around the cooling crest of Mt. Hood in a DC-4 of the California-Eastern line, a coastwise outfit which began hauling freight up and down the coast this week. Cigarette smokers have been warned by Norman Howard, fire investigator for the Portland fire department, to be careful where they flip their butts during the remaining warm weeks. His word came after a rash of grass fires in the metropolis Thursday.

During the past 12 months Portland's accident volume has increased 47 per cent. Eugene has noted a similar trend. An 18 1/2 cent an hour increase in pay, retroactive to June 1, was accepted yesterday by 125 employees of six major food distributing concerns in Portland.

Useful Utensils Big Aid To Busy Homemaker Cook

Home cooking tasks that call for three or four activities at the same time cause many a homemaker to wish for three or four hands instead of the conventional two, according to Mrs. Winifred Gillen, home demonstration agent.

The equivalent of extra hands is not impossible if the homemaker will select utensils and equipment designed for double or triple duty she says. For example, a one-handed flour sifter can now be obtained on the market. This leaves the other hand free to pour or do anything else.

English Girl's Swim Suit Plea Rewarded

PORTLAND, Aug. 9 (AP)—An English girl, who wrote Mayor Earl Riley for a new swimming suit because during the war she had been impressed by several "kindhearted and generous" soldiers from Portland, had one in the mail today.

The 19-year-old Newbury, Berkshire, girl's published request—made necessary because she was going to take a vacation at the seashore and didn't have coupons for the outfit—was filled by a benefactor who picked out the two piece model for which she had asked.
