

Planing Mill Addition To Finish Soon

Nearing completion at the junction of S. 8th street and Allamont drive is a new addition of the Shasta planing mill owned by the Palmerton Lumber company. This unit, which will be occupied by new machinery for precision wood work, will be ready to operate by January 15. Later the mill now in use will be torn down and a further addition built on the grounds. The original building is one of the first built on S. 8th street by Alfred Collier of the Swan Lake Moulding company. It has been occupied by the Shasta planing mill since 1942.

Capacity of the plant will be doubled and the payroll will be increased by one third, it was announced Monday by J. D. Evans, mill manager.

Most of the work now done is custom milling and the mill furnishes much of the fuel, both sawdust and shavings, used by the city of Klamath Falls for heating. Twelve truckloads of two units to the load are taken from the mill daily.

The addition now under construction has a floor space of 96 by 120 feet and a truss roof. Trusses, composed of 4 by 12 timbers bolted, are 94 feet long and weigh three tons each.

Burkhardt and Schortgen, Klamath Falls, are the contractors.
