Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

THE lively discussion among chamber of commerce directors recently on tourist promotion methods—when farmer members of the board attacked traditional schemes of stimulating travel — got into the public prints and has not escaped the attention of the tourist and travel department of the state highway commission and the highway commission's advisory committee on advertising.

EPLEY

John A. Laing, chairman of the latter committee, has written a long letter to Ed Geary, chamber director who led the assault on the usual tourist promotion methods, and questioned "whether it is good advertising to urge people to come into an area to fish and hunt if they can't catch fish, can't find anything to shoot, and can't find a room to stay in."

Laing told Geary in the letter that the "general purport of these criticisms is fully shared by all the members of the advisory committee, and that a large part of the effort of the highway commission's tourist and travel department . . . has been directed toward stimulating local interest . . . in providing better and more attractive facilities and conditions for the accommodation and enjoyment of tourists."

He pointed out that the highway commission, of course, has no funds for providing living accommodations, etc., for tourists, that being up to private enterprise. Likewise the commission has no funds for improving fishing and hunting conditions (though Geary in his local barrage suggested that might be a good use for highway funds.)

GAME QUESTION

LAING said further that the highway commission advisory committee is interested in the work done under direction of the state fish and game commission along the line suggested by Geary. A meeting is to be held in January to which the chairman and other members of the game commission will be invited for discussion of the problem.

"We do not believe in advertising the McKenzie or any other stream as running over with fish or as a fisherman's paradise, when we have every reason to doubt that such is a fact," said Laing's letter. "If and unless we can confidently advertise fishing and hunting as major attractions for the state of Oregon, we have no right to say much about such possibilities in our attempt to lore the tourist. Oregon is blessed with a wide variety of scenic and other attractions, aside from fishing and hunting, which we are justified in portraying attractively to the potential tourist trade, and it would be dishonest and in the long run prejudicial for us to boast of attractions which exist only in attenuated form."

Mr. Laing appears to be saying the things Mr. Geary said here, in somewhat different words. Others who joined in the local comment urging a changed attitude toward tourist promotion were Dick Henzel and Henry Semon, other farmer members of the chamber board of directors. The farmers seem to have joined in a realistic view of a problem that has aroused considerable discussion in civic circles here in recent years.

• • • •

PRINCIPLES

THE upshot of the discussion points to these important principles in future tourist promotion from local standpoint:

1. Don't advertise attractions we don't have. If those attractions are attainable, develop them and then advertise.
2. Stimulate interest in improvements of facilities for accommodating visitors; these coming largely, of course, through private enterprise based on the profit motive.
3. Continue our determined efforts to develop major highways in this area and to maintain good through highway connections.
4. Develop and maintain the traditional spirit of hospitality in the Klamath region.

Time was when you could give the address of a Henley resident, living on the main highway, as "Merrill road." Not so any more. We did it today, and the Henley resident corrected us. "Say Henley district when you give our address," she said. Wonder if those state champion Honkers could have anything to do with this new and commendable community consciousness.

COMMENT ON JUNIOR

MR. EDITOR: I would like to talk to you about Junior, you are sending us. You said you were short of paper, was the reason we were getting Junior. I wonder, but anyway, you did not say a word about charging us less for Junior. He is awfully little, you know, so, I am going to pay for the paper this month, just like I always do. And then I am going to waite until Junior grows up before I take the paper any more. I thank you,

MRS. F. D. FAUCH,
3340 Bisbee St.

Sir: I have taken the paper since you got the paper from Mr. Murry, but I have read my last one, as I think you are the biggest grafters there is in the w.g. as you have been running a 16-page paper the last three months more or less and mostly advertisements and now you are yelling shortage of paper. I think that you are pretty rotten.

A LONG-TIME READER.

Herald and News: Why worry over Junior H. N. We think him cute, and like all good things, will grow.

MR. AND MRS. J. M. McROBERT.

Newspapers throughout the country which have felt the pinch of the newsprint shortage have demonstrated one of the cardinal rules of newspaper operation.

This is that the subscriber comes first, regardless of the fact that a few advertisements sometimes think they come first. No better example of this could be found than that of the Klamath Falls News-Herald, which last week came out in tabloid form, with the total exclusion of advertising so that the basic needs of the subscribers could be adequately met. This was a graphic demonstration, since it occurred during the natural harvest-festival time of Christmas.—Ashland Tidings.

The World Today

By NORMAN CARIGNAN
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

THE old ghost of U. S.-Argentine relations is stalking the pale green corridors of the state department again.

In Washington, apparently for a full review of the question, is veteran career Diplomat George Messersmith, U. S. ambassador to Buenos Aires, bearing ideas on what should be done about Argentina.

His views reportedly are at variance with those of Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden, a burley 230-pounder who has charge of U. S. relations with Latin America.

The problem basically is the same that has rankled many a diplomat before and split the state department wide open on a number of occasions.

Crudely stated, the question is:

"Should the United States forgive what it sees as the sins of its sister republics for the sake of maintaining unity?"

As applied to Argentina and her president, Gen. Juan Domingo Peron, Braden doesn't think so. Messersmith, according to his friends, has his own views.

Secretary of State Byrnes is slated to referee the dispute next week when he returns from his South Carolina vacation.

The administration has repeatedly charged and sought to prove that Argentina collaborated with the axis during the war and that axis agents, firms and institutions flourished there.

Byrnes has consistently backed Braden on his administration of Argentine policy. But with the current dispute raging around him, Byrnes evidently will have to step in again and either reaffirm the policy or change it once again.

Public Relations Director Proves Reporters Human

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (AP) — Hello! Hello! Is this Professor Bulgebrow at the university?

It is? Good! Professor, this is Jimmy Pencil, down at the Daily Bugle. Like to ask you a few questions. Yeh, I'm a reporter.

You don't think you want to talk to me? Wa-a-a-a—l-i-it a minute, prof. Climb out of that academic cloister. Dust off that idea that newspapermen are like two-headed students.

It's time you quit backtracking for fear if you say "Good morning" to a reporter that next day you'll find your picture in the paper under a heading, "Educator endorses love nests." No, prof, it's time you big four-degree boys started playing even-stephen with the fourth estate.

Who says so? Lester Nichols. You remember him, prof. You aren't sure? Well, he's director of public relations for the City college of New York, a branch of the College of the City of New York. Yep, that's right, prof. It just sounds a little complicated over the phone.

He's put out a booklet called "How To Tell It! A Guide to Public Relations for Professors," and he says:

Public Relations

"Good public relations is the securing of favorable opinion based on the sum total of impressions received by the general public."

How's that for a five-dollar definition, prof.! Nichols thinks you faculty boys ought to cooperate with the press a little more. And lest you think we reporters muscled into the "homo sapiens" classification on a press pass, Nichols has printed here in cold black type:

"Newspapermen are human."

Well, prof, are you convinced?

And listen, prof, Nichols goes on to say that an interview "if properly conducted is a pleasant and enlightening experience for the reporter and interviewee" and it "is not an inquisition, but a painless extraction of information."

And he opines further, prof, that "an interview should be conducted with dignity but not with stodginess." So come out from behind that schoolroom rhetoric, and give us the facts in the people's language.

Luncheon Date

As a matter of fact, prof, I think I'll trot right up to your classroom this minute and let you take me to lunch. You don't want to, prof? Well, I'm thumbing through the Nichols booklet, old timer, and take my word for it, it says right here:

"It is a good policy to invite reporters to luncheon. However, newspapermen are not expected to pay the bill."

Hello! Hello! The prof must have hung up!

• • •

P. S. to all American university professors: I am too bashful to suggest that every one of you send me a congratulatory telegram on this little article. I merely cite Nichols, first edition, page seven, and leave each Ph. D. to do his duty as he sees it:

"Newspapermen," says that friendly link between gentlemen of the press and the denizens of the ivory tower, "like being told that stories they have written have merit and were appreciated."

Telling The Editor

Letters printed here must not be more than 300 words in length must be written legibly on ONE SIDE of the paper only, and must be signed. Contributions following these rules are warmly welcomed.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—Would you please print this in your column?

I'd like to send a few words of praise through this column to the student body of Klamath Union high school for their promptness and thoughtfulness in giving Mr. Mundy $500. Truly wonderful present at this Christmas season and when it was really needed. Also to praise any other person or order that helps this worthy cause.

What I am wondering is, where is the fraternal orders which were organized for good in such cases. It is their teachings to help in such needs but they have waited until our "awful" high school children have done their duty as only all people should do to one another at all times. Then the fraternal orders wonder where their membership is. Awaken fraternalism.

I should also like to see how much the Community Chest and Red Cross gives to this needy family.

Man Beaten To Death In Home

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP)—A 34-year-old Brockton automobile salesman was beaten to death in a bedroom of his third floor apartment early today by an intruder who entered an unlocked door.

Police Lt. Harry F. Kearns said that the victim, Rene Cote, died of strangulation and a blow from a blunt instrument that lacerated his forehead from temple to temple.

Police said the attack occurred while Cote's wife, Bertha, 28, and his four-year-old daughter, Barbara Ann, slept in a side bedroom. Authorities found fresh prints in snow leading from the back door of the apartment house.

Kearns reported that the terrific struggle in Cote's bedroom awakened his wife who ran to a lower floor to telephone police. They found the salesman lying in a pool of blood.

Arson Attempt In Synagogue Found

PORTLAND, Dec. 28 (AP)—Fire Investigator William Goerz said today that an arson attempt had been made on the synagogue of congregation Tifereth Israel here this week.

Goerz said evidence of the attempt was discovered last night at the weekly service, with several windows broken, a Jewish flag and religious books burned and altar tapestries soaked in oil and ignited.

The fire had burned itself out after causing damage estimated at $250.

George Allen, Now Free, Will Resume Advisor Role

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP)—George E. Allen's resignation as an RFC director cleared the way today for his return to the unofficial role of presidential "spadeworker" and key consultant.

This was the view expressed by men in close contact with the president as well as by friends of the big, jovial former insurance man.

These sources attributed the resignation to:

1. Financial considerations. They said Allen could have earned $80,000 in 1946 through corporate connections if he had not taken the $10,000 government job. As it was, they said, he drew only $10,000 from a series of private directorships.

2. A desire to stay out of controversies such as his differences with former Housing Administrator Wilson Wyatt over RFC loans for manufacturers of prefabricated housing. Allen, they said, feels that fights which keep him in the limelight hamper his usefulness to the president in the political field.

Until the appointment to the government financial agency a year ago, Allen attended virtually all of President Truman's 9 a.m. staff conferences where important decisions are made.

His trips to the White House had become steadily more infrequent during the last few months, a development attributed to the necessity of spending more and more time at his official post.

Allen made it clear yesterday after a call on the president that he will be available for other government as well as "political" work.

Donald Yancey Arraigned

Donald Fred Yancey, 35, indicted for first degree murder by the grand jury yesterday afternoon, was arraigned in circuit court this morning and given, until Tuesday morning to obtain the services of an attorney and come back into court.

Yancey was indicted for murder in the death of Mary McComb, Klamath county librarian, who was shot in the neck December 14 and died in Klamath Valley hospital December 21.

He has made a statement admitting the shooting, and has been held in the county jail since arrested at the home of his step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Matts, 1702 Crescent, where the shooting took place.

In court this morning Yancey still wore a bandage over the wound in his own scalp inflicted when he turned a pistol on himself after Miss McComb was wounded.

He told Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg that he had no attorney, but that he had a small pension and property at his ski repair shop worth "quite a bit more than $500." Judge Vandenberg told him to try to get a lawyer and be in court again next Tuesday.

Yancey replied that he had tried to hire a lawyer, "but they want too much." He asked for J. C. O'Neill in court, then talked briefly with D. E. Van Vactor, who has been sought as a representative for Yancey.

Also in court this morning Delbert (Dink) Lane, indicted for threatening to commit a felony, entered a plea of not guilty. He is accused of threatening to kill Delbert Manuel Chandler, who died of gunshot wounds Thanksgiving Day.

E. E. (Pete) Driscoll, attorney for Floyd Barlow of Pelican City, asked for and was granted more time to study his client's case. Barlow, indicted for operation of a gambling game and free on $250 bail, was not in court. Judge Vandenberg continued that case until January 6.

The grand jury was in session yesterday, and reported at 4:15 p. m. with the indictment against Yancey. No disposition was made of its investigation into the death of Wilfred Barkley, Klamath Indian who died of a gunshot wound at Sprague River last Sunday, although witnesses in that case were called. The shooting is unofficially considered a suicide.

EARTHQUAKE

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic, Dec. 28 (AP)—A strong earthquake was felt here last night, but there was no damage here, and no reports had been received today of damage in the interior.

Paoting Siege Tempo Grows

PEIPING, Dec. 28 (AP)—Chinese communists today stepped up their fierce attacks on three sides of Paoting, capital of Hopeh province.

The communists were reported to have captured one village five miles east of Paoting, to be fighting bitterly for another city five miles south, and to be engaged in a big battle northwest of the city.

Government sources said another force was closing in on Wantu, 23 miles south of Paoting, climaxing a four day and night battle.

The military organ, Hsin Sheng Pao, said large numbers of communists were massed around Chohsien, 33 miles south of Peiping. Paoting is about 90 miles south of Peiping.

The communists trapped a government garrison in Paoting nearly three weeks, but reinforcements arrived to prevent capture of the city.

Police Seek Two Armed Holdup Men

SALEM, Dec. 28 (AP)—State police today sought two gunmen who robbed a grocery store safe of $2200 a half-mile east of here last night.

C. T. Farmen, route 6 Salem, told police he had closed the store and was stepping into his car to go home when the pair forced him at gunpoint to re-enter and open the safe.

They tied him up with a ripped apron and escaped, Farmen said. He worked himself free of the bonds shortly and called police.

ACCIDENT

SANTA FE, N. M., Dec. 28 (AP) A call that there had been an accident brought police on the double to the Changito club, teen-age hangout.

With long poles Patrolmen Manuel Moya and Pete Montoya removed a dead skunk.

INTENTIONAL ERRORS

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 28 (AP) A Des Moines department store manager, surveying hundreds of women who headed for stores to exchange such Christmas gifts as slips, dresses and gloves, blamed it all on the men folks.

"When men guess about sizes they usually guess too small," he said. "I imagine it is flattering to the wife and girl friend."

The manager said he had no complaint about the rush to the credit counter. The exchanges also bring more sales, he said.

Basin Ski Prospect Good

It looked like a fine week-end for winter sports enthusiasts with ice freezing over on the ponds and Crater Lake national park reporting excellent skiing conditions.

The temperature dropped to 3 degrees above zero in the park early Saturday morning and stood at 6 above at 8:30 a. m. today. Skies were overcast but park officials said it looked like it would clear. There is a depth of 53 inches of packed snow with a 10-inch covering of new powdery snow which makes for ideal skiing conditions, according to T. C. Parker, assistant park superintendent.

Those planning to spend either the week-end or Sunday at the park are advised that roads are slick, snow covering an ice base,' and that chains should be put on at Annie Spring headquarters. There are a few overnight accommodations available for women but most of those reserved for men are taken up. Park officials said they were anticipating the largest crowd of the season this week-end. Anyone going into the park for the first time will get their first entry permit which is good until October 1, 1947.

Lillian Redkey of the KUHS staff, is going to the lake today to remain for the coming week and will instruct rangers and others in first aid in event of injuries at the park.

A man just called in to ask "what in H——l kind of a column're you writing?" It seems that yours truly mentioned something about a Signor Graziano and a Mr. Reuben Shanks engaging in a bout of fisticuffs which were to be broadcast Friday evening. The informative gent let me know that the bout mentioned had been called off about five days ago. So at this time we take pleasure in announcing that the fight which you heard over your radioes last night was not between Graziano and Shanks, but were a bunch of amateurs at New Orleans trying to dodge each other. Salaam.

A woman called in to complain, "I still have to pay the same amount for the paper but only get about a quarter as much paper and I don't think it's fair!" I agreed with her. It used to be that one Herald and News could be used to start the morning fire, lay on the floor which you've just mopped, wrap two packages for Aunt Minnie and have enough left for a couple of paper dolls. Now it takes two Juniors just to get the fire going. Of course, some people who have nothing better to do, actually buy a paper just to read the news in it. Oh, well.

As most of you know, Dick is KFJI's top special events announcer, and a member of the Sacred Heart congregation. Somebody evidently didn't believe her to their loss. Well, Dick, what kind do you smoke?
