

Shivery New Year Ends Holidays

The holidays are over, which means the family is almost back to normal, and mother can relax in peace and have her nervous breakdown. Even the most staunch, gaiety-loving hearts are left a bit limp after the mad onslaught of Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's.

Reports from all over the country said that New Year's Eve was quiet by comparison to other years. If the weather had anything to do with it, Klamath people know why it was quiet... it was just TOO cold. A season low temperature of five degrees last Monday started Klamath folk wondering if they weren't entering a new ice age.

Lt. and Mrs. W. Stuart Nelson were visitors at the home of Mrs. Nelson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Johnson, 841 Pacific Terrace. Lt. Nelson left Friday morning for Pensacola, Fla., where he is stationed. The Nelsons spent Christmas in Salem visiting his family before coming here. Mrs. Nelson, the former Barbara Johnson, and their small daughter, Genevieve Ann, will remain here for about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Janz and children, Phyllis, Bobby and Billie, returned to their home in Portland, Thursday, after spending the Christmas holidays with the parents of Mrs. Janz, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cleghorn, 219 High street.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Jones, 203 High street, Sunday night, were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Haworth of Parma, Ida., and B. S. Haworth of Boise, Ida. The Haworths were en route to Pittsburg, Calif., to visit their son-in-law, daughter and granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur W. Jones and Sharon Lee Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Albrecht of 319 Pacific Terrace, returned Friday afternoon from a visit with their daughter, Merlon, in San Francisco. The Albrechts left on December 24. While in the bay region they attended the East-West football game. Merlon is employed with an import and export firm in San Francisco.

Britta Lion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Lion of 1505 Pacific Terrace, left this morning, Saturday, for Stanford university. Miss Lion has been home for the winter holidays from Willamette university at Salem, and this term is transferring to the California school.
