

Boyle's Neck Out Again, With Advice To Family Men

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—Well, Horace, you've got a wife at last. And now you want to learn how to live with her? There is only one sure way—the pseudo-hen-pecked.

This is the only way you can dominate her, and if you don't dominate her you won't have a real marriage.

I see your eyes are a little glazed, Horace. You don't understand how you can dominate the good woman by being "pseudo-hen-pecked." Let me explain:

Biggest Flops
The biggest flops in matrimony are the masterful boys who thump their chests and storm around the house pointing out that they are men and the wife is a woman, and that the Lord made Adam first and Eve was an afterthought.

This is nonsense—"as every woman knows"—and no sensible wife is going to put up with such guff. So throttle down, Horace.

Unless your wife is so narrow-brained her eyes meet like two cars coming together down a one-way street, she thinks of you more as a willful puppet than leader of the herd. You're the fireman, Horace, not the engineer, on this train ride together.

So kid her along in the one long delusion wives never tire of—the one grand dream they hug to their sad little hearts all their lives—that you are just "a grown-up boy" and that they know better than you do.

Whether they really do know better doesn't make any difference. Just water her illusion and keep it flowering, and you'll have a loving slave as well as a happy wife.

Turn Over Matters
Turn over the toy matters of your life to her, Horace. Like money, don't buy her out for buying a dress that cost more than it did to build the department store where she bought it. Let her handle the finances—of course, cash your pay check and take out what you need for yourself first—and she'll scrip and pinch like a miser, and maybe buy her clothes at a rummage sale.

If she does the other way and busts you broke, well, Horace, chalk her down as a liability in your bankruptcy petition and start over with a new wife.

Don't be too handy around the house. That annoys a wife. She doesn't like to think of you as perfect in anything except your job at the office. If she needs another shelf nailed on the bookcase, let her call a carpenter or one of the bachelors she didn't marry. When he goes home after his hammering, you've still got your wife. And what's he got? A sore thumb.

Get your wife when she is really sick. When she sulks without cause or starts yammering just to test her lungs, don't argue. Go out to a movie or a bowling alley and come home late.

Don't tell her she's "the only woman" too often. A husband too affectionate bores a wife. Let her make every decision around the house you can. Just put your foot down once in a while to scare her.

Do all this, Horace, and your friends may think you're "hen-pecked." But you'll know better. You'll have a nice lazy life with plenty of time to think about important things. And your wife will go around purring like a cat that doesn't know the mouse caught her.

Cafe Blast Injures Six
PORTLAND, Jan. 10 (AP)—Six persons were recovering in hospitals today from a downtown explosion that wrecked a cafeteria and blew a waitress under a parked automobile.

Witnesses said a jackhammer struck a pipe and the operator lit a match to find out what damage had been done.

The operator, Robert Shook, 58, was seriously burned in the resulting blast. He also suffered a possible skull fracture.

The waitress, Mrs. Patricia Giles, 54, who had just left the building, also had a possible skull fracture. Another waitress, Geneva Darby, 22, was cut by flying glass. Also injured were John Kallstrom, about 60, and his son John E., 29, contractors; and a carpenter, Carl Peterson, 52.

Knife, Fork To Hear Talk

"What Farming Means to City Dwellers" will be the topic of a talk by Willard Mayberry, self-styled "dirt farmer," before a meeting of the Knife and Fork club January 20 at the Willard hotel.

Country life, country folk, and what they mean in relationship to the people in more urban areas are his main interests. Mayberry is a man of many accomplishments, a farmer, in a small way, he says, he was at one time presidential candidate Alf Landon's private secretary. He is also the publisher and editor of a small newspaper in Elkhart, Kansas, and one of the town's leading businessmen, but most of all he likes to be known as a farmer.

As a speaker, Mayberry is known for being straight to the point and unafraid to pull his punches. He has long been a favorite of Associated club audiences through whose facilities he is being brought to Klamath Falls.

Baltimore Blaze Injures Firemen

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10 (AP)—Six firemen were injured in a stubborn three-alarm blaze that burned out the upper floors of a Purity Creamery building here early today.

Four of those hurt were cut when a large plate-glass window fell to the pavement from a second story window, and one was overcome by smoke inside the burning building.

Basin RC Men Attend Meet

Officers and chapter workers active in planning for the Klamath county chapter fund campaign this March will attend a meeting of 28 American Red Cross chapters in Portland on January 13 to discuss with officials of the national organization and Pacific area staff, San Francisco, the plans for the organization 1947 fund campaign which will start March 1. "Delegates will study financial needs of the expanding community health and safety programs of the organization, and the services to veterans and their dependents," Otto L. Smith, chapter chairman, explained. "National financial aid in this latter service alone totaled $3,500,000 during the past year." Attending from the local chapter will be Frank Sexton, Roy Premo and Mrs. Lena M. Dennis.
