

State Department's Right To Lower Tariffs May Be Battle Ground Of Parties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Senate and house republican leaders gave evidence today they may be marching down different roads on one important phase of foreign policy—the state department's right to lower tariffs without consulting congress.

Despite an effort by GOP Senators Vandenberg (Mich.) and Millikin (Colo.) to patch up a compromise aimed at preventing outright appeal of the reciprocal trade agreements act, house leaders ordered a full review of the program after a conference with Speaker Martin (R-Miss.).

An announcement by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) that the ways and means committee will begin hearings February 24 behind closed doors apparently signalled displeasure with the Vandenberg-Millikin compromise.

This proposal, reportedly approved by Under Secretaries of State Dean C. Acheson and William Clayton, would put an escape clause in agreements with other countries and provide for tariff-raising appeals to the president. Thus the president, and not congress, would retain final authority, a point some house members have indicated they don't like.

The reciprocal trade program—aimed at building up world trade—permits the state department to cut tariffs as much as 50 per cent in return for similar concessions from other countries.

Vandenberg is said by friends to regard the republican decision on whether to retain or repeal the trade program as likely to determine whether the bipartisan foreign policy he advanced as an adviser to former Secretary of State Byrnes will continue.

Apparently involved too is a desire by Vandenberg to keep the republicans from laying themselves open to probable democratic attempts to tab them as isolationists in the 1948 presidential campaign. Vandenberg has been mentioned as a possible GOP presidential nominee then.

The Michigan senator, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, enlisted Millikin, who has fought the reciprocal program in the past, in the compromise effort. Chairman Taft (Ohio), of the senate GOP policy committee has indicated he will go along.

Flashes Of Life

CHIMNEY SWEEP
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 6 (AP)—Instead of drawing, Mrs. Alma Carson's stove-flue howled. Mrs. Carson aired out the smoke, put out the fire, and dragged out a cat.

SUCCESS STORY
TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Feb. 6 (AP)—Manager A. J. Meeks of the Twin Falls office of the Idaho state employment service thought the man asking for construction workers appeared familiar.

"Haven't we met before?" Meeks asked.

"Yes," was the reply. "I was in here about a year ago to apply for a job and you got me one at the construction company. Now I own it and I'm looking for more help."

SHORT MEMORY
TOKYO, Feb. 6 (AP)—Remember how the Japanese feared their police in wartime?

Well, today a thief climbed through a second story window of Tsunami police station and walked away with a revolver from a detective's desk.
