

Unknown Soldier Of World War II Poses Problem For Army Memorial Division

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—A group of military men are still wrestling with the problem of how to select the "unknown soldier" of World War II.

Officials of the memorial division of the army quartermaster general's office said today the task is vastly more complicated than after the first World War, when virtually all American dead were in one battlefield—France.

The first problem is to decide from which of the many theaters of World War II, spread across the face of the earth, the unknown should come.

When congress passed a law last year to provide for a companion to the World War I soldier who sleeps at Arlington National cemetery it ordered only that the body be that of a "serviceman." Soldier, sailor, marine, airman or coastguardsman? This, too, must be decided.

Meanwhile, the memorial division is pushing forward with its plans to bring home all war dead whose next of kin desire it.

The return of the first bodies is planned for August. War dead will begin arriving then from Pearl Harbor, where the initial casualties of the war occurred.

A few days later the bodies of soldiers buried at Henri Chapelle, in Belgium, will begin their journey home. From then on, theater by theater, the men who died overseas will come back to their family cemeteries or to a national cemetery, as preferred by relatives.

About 385,000 men and women of the armed forces died during World War II of which 313,000 were army personnel, 50,000 navy, 21,000 marines and 1000 coastguardsmen.

The war department will seek to determine from its records the person authorized to decide the question of final burial, then send a letter of inquiry to that person. It will be sent when the time approaches to ship home the dead from a certain area.

US Blocks Red Treaty Move

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP)—The United States today blocked a Russian attempt to write into the forthcoming Austrian peace treaty a clause prohibiting German propaganda in any form.

The issue, cropping up a second time at the four-power deputy foreign ministers conference, was referred to the foreign ministers March conference in Moscow.

British sources said, after U. S. delegates expressed fear such a clause would justify future interference in Austrian internal affairs.

Gen. Mark W. Clark, U. S. deputy, said the question was one of freedom of speech. He was supported by the British delegate.

Russia has dropped objections to active participation of 12 European "little allies" in drafting the German peace treaty, but would limit such non-European nations as Canada, Brazil and Australia to secondary roles.

Miners Stage Sitdown Strike

LANSFORD, Pa., Feb. 13 (AP) A sitdown strike by 14 miners 600 feet underground today led to a sympathy walkout of 1200 fellow workers.

Anthracite diggers reporting at the Lansford colliery of Leighi Navigation Coal company refused to enter shafts after learning of the strike there.

The miners' action, reminiscent of the memorable underground strike of 1937—resulted from what the strikers said was the company's policy of docking their pay when they failed to work a full day. There was no comment from the company.

Huddled together without benefit of blankets in the sub-surface cold and dampness, the strikers said they will remain in the mine "until we are reimbursed for our justified pay."

Leaders of the United Mine Workers AFL who made an unsuccessful attempt to persuade the men to return to the surface, said the sympathy walkout probably will spread to other mines in the area employing 6000 workers.

Rail Companies Ask To Abandon Track

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Southern Pacific and Central Pacific Railroad companies today asked interstate commerce commission permission to abandon operations on Keswick branch from a point near Redding, Calif., to Coram, Calif.

About 13.5 miles of trackage in Shasta county is involved. The petition said the action was dictated by proposed completion of the government's Keswick dam on the Sacramento river, which would make it necessary to remove a portion of the trackage.

Home Best Cure For Delinquents

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13 (AP)—The place to cure juvenile delinquency is in the home, in the opinion of Dr. Joseph L. Baer of Chicago, and that can best be done by holding parents responsible.

Dr. Baer, in an interview, deplored "the breakdown of the family unit" and declared: "Too few communities have enacted statutes assigning blame to parents of wayward children."

Other proposals urged more forestry training in schools, a state-federal campaign on forest diseases and insects and opening of all timber tracts possible under sustained-yield programs.

Greater attention to labor relations and wage ratios and safety programs were urged by speakers earlier in the closing meeting.

Timber Men Ask Radio Use

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 13 (AP) The Paul Bunyons of the big woods want to use more radio communication to help yank the logs out to the mill in jig time.

The Pacific Logging Congress closed its annual convention yesterday with a resolution asking the federal communications commission to grant permanent suitable wave bands for use of the lumber industry.

Other proposals urged more forestry training in schools, a state-federal campaign on forest diseases and insects and opening of all timber tracts possible under sustained-yield programs.

Fremont Ranks 5th In Value

The Fremont national forest ranked fifth among the nineteen national forests in Oregon and Washington in the value of timber cut in 1946 according to a recent tabulation prepared by the forest service.

The value of this timber was $406,494 according to the tabulation. Only the timber cut from the Willamette and Rogue River forests in Oregon and the Olympic and Columbia forests in Washington yielded greater value during the year.

Although the local forest ranked fifth in value of cut, its rank in amount of timber cut during the year was seventh, indicating that the per thousand price was slightly higher locally than for some of the other forests.

The volume cut on the Fremont in 1946 approximated the allowable annual cut under sustain yield management according to James W. Thompson of the local forest staff.

The value of timber cut on the forest should continue to be high according to Thompson.

Realty Board Talks Zoning

At the weekly luncheon meeting of the Klamath board of realtors, Wednesday, Frank Z. Howard, county surveyor, spoke to the board concerning HB88, recently introduced in the state legislature.

Howard gave a detailed outline of the proposed measure, one of vital interest to all property owners in the state and which concerns planning and zoning of suburban unincorporated districts.

The proposed measure would provide for a suburban planning and zoning board, Howard said. He further stated that the bill is general in its form and is in the nature of an enabling act which would allow full control to the county court and the residents in the areas affected.

The local board of realtors will discuss and take a definite stand on this bill in the near future. Robert B. Chilcote, president of the board, presided at the meeting.

Audiometer testings will be given tomorrow afternoon by Mr. Taylor from the state blind school, who will be assisted by School Nurse Margaret Sirode. Most of the hearing ability tests are follow-ups from grade school tests and are usually given once each year. Testing will be made in the county library.
