

Rodent Control To Use Gas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Unless the rattlesnakes in South Dakota can find some gas masks right quick, they are in for real trouble. A. M. Jackley, director of reptile control in the South Dakota state agriculture department, is teaming up with the government's fish and wildlife service.

In the fish and wildlife service at Chicago, Clarence Cottam, acting director, told him the Denver office could spare some help and perhaps a squirt or two of gas. He suggested a few: Chloropicrin, some cyanides, and a handy gas cartridge manufactured by the service at Pocatello, Idaho.

Then the clincher came from Justice C. Ward, in charge of the service's office in Denver. He said his people are working with the army's chemical warfare service on some "improved gases suitable for rodent control." He assured Jackley he could spare a man or two for some work in South Dakota this spring and next fall.

Wheat Bill Passes House

SALEM, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Eastern Oregon Wheat League's bill to establish a five-man commission to conduct wheat marketing research and to find new uses for wheat won almost unanimous approval of the house yesterday and went to the senate. Sponsors of the measure told the house that the wheat growers face a critical surplus problem in the next two years, and that the commission would go a long way toward solving it.

The commission would be financed by a tax of a half cent on each bushel of wheat, and would raise about $75,000 a year. The commission's administrator would be paid $10,000 a year.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Feb. 14 (AP)—Four children, left fatherless when Ralph Porritt, 49, was slain for the $12 he had in his pockets, were awarded yesterday to a mother they had not seen in several years.

She is Mrs. Lloyd Lewis, Salt Lake City, who was divorced from Porritt several years ago. Mrs. Lewis said she probably would leave with the children, Dora, 13, Marian, 13, Clarence, 11, and Caroline, 10, for Salt Lake City today.

Superior Judge Charles W. Hall decided in her favor after so many adoption offers had come in that the probation officer lost count of the number.

Among them was one from Mr. and Mrs. Paul Green, foster parents of the 16-year-old boy accused of slaying Porritt on a rural road near Hillsboro, Ore., a week ago.

The youth, Albert Jack Green, waived preliminary hearing yesterday at Hillsboro on a first-degree murder charge. District Attorney Russell Morgan said the boy had admitted firing five shots into Porritt's head in order to rob him.
