

Rock Market Stages Rally

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—The market for rock today was a rally from the past month's low, with prices closing at a level 10 to 15 cents higher than a month ago. The market was buoyed by a report that the Federal Reserve Bank of New York had raised its discount rate to 3 1/2 percent, the highest since 1933. This move was expected to stimulate the economy and increase demand for raw materials, including rock. Prices for various types of rock, including granite, marble, and limestone, all showed gains. The market is expected to remain strong for some time.

Wheat Price Hits Gain

CHICAGO, March 3 (AP)—A strong short-covering movement got underway in the wheat market today, sending prices up to a level not seen since last fall. The gain was due to a combination of factors, including a report that the Russian government had agreed to purchase a large quantity of wheat from the United States. This news, along with a general improvement in the market, led to the rally. Prices for both hard and soft wheat are now higher than they were a month ago.
