

Handless Harold Russell Given Hollywood Acclaim; March, DeHavilland Tops

By RALPH DIGHTON
HOLLYWOOD, March 14 (AP)—Fredric March was chosen as the best actor of the year, Olivia de Havilland was named the best actress—but Handless Harold Russell stole the show at last night's 19th annual presentation of awards by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Russell, the veteran with the hooks in the "Best Years of Our Lives," which won the "best picture" award, went home with two Oscars tucked under his arm.

His "Best Years" role, his first in motion pictures, brought him Academy acclaim as the best supporting actor, and a special award by the academy's board of directors. The board did not know he would win the supporting award, because results were kept in a sealed envelope until announcements were made from the stage.

It was March's role in "The Best Years of Our Lives," depicting problems of returned veterans, which won him the Oscar, while Miss De Havilland took home the coveted statuette for her performance in "To Each His Own."

March was not present to receive his Oscar. He is in a New York stage production and his statuette was accepted by Cathy O'Donnell, Russell's sweetheart in "Best Years."

Miss De Havilland, gowned in a strapless light blue tulle, said she intended to place her Oscar on a table in her bedroom.

"But I don't know," she said, "whether my husband (Novelist Marcus Goodrich) will object to having another man in my bedroom."

Other major awards went to Anne Baxter, for her supporting role in "The Razor's Edge."

and to the director of "Best Years," William Wyler. Miss De Havilland's sister, Joan Fontaine, former award winner, presented March's Oscar, but she was noticeably absent from the crowd which gathered to congratulate Olivia Ray Milland, who won an Oscar last year for "The Lost Weekend," presented Olivia's award.

Applause and cheers rent the air each time Russell accepted an award. Russell's few, embarrassed words were poignant to the few who knew that "Best Years" was not only the ex-paratrooper's first movie—but his last.

He is on leave of absence from Boston university, where he is studying advertising, until June, and is making a "pep talk" tour of amputee wards in army hospitals.

Russell, manager of a chain grocery in Cambridge, Mass., before the war, lost his hands when a half-pound of TNT he was carrying exploded at a paratroop training camp June 6, 1944—the day allied troops invaded France.

INCOME TAX CONFUSION
CHICAGO, March 14 (AP)—Nigel Campbell, collector of internal revenue, has a pile of mail from taxpayers who enclose notes with their income tax payments.

One man, who claimed a $600 deduction for medical expenses, wrote the collector: "I have been cut of the city for the last three months. I am traveling for my wife's health."
