1947 Spud Support Prices To Be Limited To Growers Who Remain Within Goals

Diversification of inferior grades and sizes of potatoes from the consumers' market, and use of every facility available to maintain support to those growers producing within potato goals are major aims of the U. S. department of agriculture in the 1947 potato price support program, according to County Agent C. A. Henderson.

Henderson had just received information on the 1947 program and outlined it in detail today. He said that some of the outstanding provisions of the announcement are:

1. Loans while available will no longer be the principal means of supporting late potatoes.
2. Only growers who plant within their acreage goals may participate.
3. Dealers' assistance in program operations is authorized.
4. Potatoes acquired at support prices will be subject to resale in consumers' markets at less than support price.
5. Growers will be encouraged to utilize all facilities within their control to aid orderly marketing and improve quality.

In this regard marketing agreements undoubtedly will be used, the agent said. A market agreement was voted upon and approved by Klamath growers eight years ago but has never been used. It can be put into effect, however, on short notice.

Other conditions attached to the price support program require not only that potatoes be produced by eligible growers but that potatoes are not objectionable because of disease, insect infestation, frost or other damage; growers will be required to declare maximum quantity which they expect to offer for price support and to pay a nominal service fee on potatoes so declared; no grower will be eligible who plants potatoes on land officially designated by a state or federal agency as unfit for potato production because of disease or insect infestation; growers may be required to indicate by written does not give complete detail of just how the program will operate. It does indicate, however, that major changes have been made from the 1946 program such as limiting support only to those growers who are within their potato goal, permitting sale of potatoes at less than support price that have previously been purchased by the government or their agents at support prices, making use of a marketing agreement to withhold poor grades from the market if necessary; and requiring that potatoes do not have disease, insect infestations, frost or other damage and that land known to contain injurious insects and otherwise unfit for the production of good potatoes, be not accepted by the government after examination.

Family Survives Coal Gas Fumes

PORTLAND, March 21 (AP)—Mrs. June Gilliland, 30, her daughter Carol, 5, and the family's 6-week-old mongrel pup were up and about again today after an escape from what police said were coal gas fumes.

The little girl fell "ill" yesterday and the mother put her to bed. Later the mother, too, began feeling dizzy. She staggered out the door of her housing project home and collapsed.

Rescuers carried the little girl and dog, almost unconscious, to the street. Police said a coal fire, smoldering and tightly damped, apparently was to blame.

Reds Dodge UN Finance Activities

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 21 (AP)—One of the greatest obstacles faced by the United Nations today in the field of long range economic planning is the reluctance of Soviet Russia to participate in the specialized agencies designed to coordinate and improve world economy.

Some delegates to the economic and social council state frankly in private conversation that this eventually may be as important to the future of the UN as President Truman's request to congress for $400,000,000 direct aid to Greece and Turkey.

They point out that Russia's position has attracted very little notice, since it has developed over a long period of time, but that her reluctance to take part fully in world economic activities is seriously handicapping many organizations.

On the other hand, it was said, the United States is playing an important role in all of these organizations despite fears expressed in some quarters that this country is veering toward economic nationalism.

Russia has refused to join such key organizations as the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the International Monetary fund, the Food and Agricultural organization and the International Civil Aviation organization. She also has refused to participate in the preliminary work to set up a world trade organization, which would have jurisdiction over such matters as tariffs, industrial development, restrictive business practices and international commodity arrangements.
