

Klamath Bills Fared Well At Legislature Say Solons On Return To Homes Here

Klamath county fared well at the 1947 legislative session on measures of particular interest here, it was pointed out by Representative Henry Semon when he returned from Salem.

Senator Marshall Cornett, Representative Rose Poole and Representative Semon were all home Tuesday after the record-length session, and all agreed they were badly in need of rest. Last days of the session were unusually grueling, they said.

Major measure of local interest was that to finance a technical school at the Marine barracks. After a series of ups and downs, the Marine Barracks appropriation bill for $620,000 came out of the ways and means committee with a favorable report and passed both houses by a large majority.

Semon said that a Klamath delegation, which went to Salem to appear before the ways and means sub-committee in charge of this bill, made a "very reasonable and straightforward presentation." The legislator said that "Klamath people must now take a real interest in making the school a success."

Klamath Basin Roundup association will get $5000 from the state dog racing fund as a result of action taken at the legislative session, Semon said. Thus, Klamath will share with the Pendleton Roundup and other enterprises over the state in a manner not heretofore in effect.

Street Lighting

Another measure of local interest was an enabling act providing for formation of street lighting districts. The South Sixth street area, where such a district is planned, will be effected by this measure, which makes it possible to tax property within a district to provide for street lights. A. D. Collier of Klamath Falls was one of the sponsors of this measure.

Another measure would make possible formation of rural cemetery districts. Some interest in this measure has been shown in Klamath county.

Amendments to a park district measure makes it possible for the Malin park district to put more money in a sinking fund than was heretofore allowed, in order to build up a fund for construction purposes.

Klamath people evinced considerable interest favorable to enactment of a state community property law, Semon said. This law was passed late in the session.

Record Length

Speaking of the record length of the 1947 session, Semon said: "Many highly important and complicated matters were before this legislative session. Distribution of $32,000,000 in school money on an equitable basis, demanded careful study. This legislature was faced with by far the toughest state financial problem that I have seen in 14 years of legislative service. The welfare problem in Oregon has become most serious, in that demands for appropriations are increasing rapidly in what are considered to be good times, and we had to re-visit the whole program to take care of even a minor recession which is reasonable to expect in the biennium. These are just a few of the major issues which kept the legislature long in session. People of Oregon may as well realize that in a session confronted with problems like these, a job can't be done in the 50 days for which it pays its legislators."

More Sugar In Prospect

A moderate improvement in the sugar supply situation is in prospect, according to W. A. Bisbee, representative of the Spreckels Sugar company, who was a visitor in Klamath Falls today. It is possible, he said, an extra 15 pounds may be allotted to housewives later in the year. Bisbee said that domestic production appears likely to show a substantial increase, and more sugar will be coming from Cuba this year. However, the Philippine supply will not start coming in until late in 1948.

G.I. Loan Warning Given

Veterans who purchase real estate with a GI loan and then sell the property to a second party remain liable for the indebtedness until the mortgage is fully repaid, Patrick W. Kilby, veterans administration representative in this area, warned today.

Reports from lending institutions indicate some veterans are selling property without consulting either the lender or the VA and may not be aware of their continuing liability.

Government guarantees are not transferable from one individual to another. Veterans who sell mortgaged property, unless the lending agency voluntarily releases the veteran from personal liability, are legally responsible for the indebtedness.

The VA has no objection to a veteran selling property acquired with a GI loan, since its regulations make ample provision for the transfer of GI loan mortgages by either the veteran or the lender without affecting the original government guarantee. For their own protection, however, veterans should consult with the lending agencies and the loan guarantee officer of the VA before transferring title to a property with a GI loan obligation.

MANILA, P. I., April 8 (AP)—Shoemaker Federico Samodio, digging in his garden, uncovered a gasoline drum jammed with 3,000,000 pesos. Samodio hasn't retired, however. All the bills were Japanese invasion notes.

there are encouraging evidences of growing interest in sugar beet production in Klamath county, with indications that about 2500 acres will be planted this year.

Intersection Crash Damages Two Cars

Two cars were partially demolished in an intersection crash at Washburn way and Johns avenue at 8:30 a.m. Monday, according to state police.

Driver of one of the cars, a pickup, was Lyle Edward Pfeiffer, operating for Dr. W. C. Hunt. Operator of the second machine, a sedan, was Helen Tacker, 3001

Summers lane. Officers said there were no personal injuries and no arrests made, but both cars were so badly damaged that they had to be towed from the scene.
