

Congress Pushes Tough Labor Legislation In Face Of Opposition

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—Congress members pushing tough labor bills signaled full steam ahead today as opponents contended the result will be "chaos and confusion" for both unions and industry.

Here is the picture on Capitol Hill:

The house labor committee, with a ban on the closed shop and other union restrictions already approved, turned to section-by-section voting on the rest of its bill. This includes prohibition of industry-wide bargaining and still more curbs on strikes.

The senate labor group, split wide apart on a slightly milder measure, assembled to start voting on its draft.

Besides agreeing to outlaw the closed shop, which requires workers to be union members to get a job, the house committee voted yesterday to forbid any strike which does not have the secret ballot approval of a majority of the employees in a bargaining unit.

Among other things, the committee also voted to ban union intimidation and pressure against workers, set up a list of unfair labor practices for employees, outlaw involuntary check-off collection of union dues, and create a new labor-management relations board to replace the national labor relations board.

The bill is slated to come before the house next Tuesday. Rep. Hartley (R-N.J.), chairman of the labor committee, said he expects it to be approved "without any substantial amendments."

But the measure is certain to draw the fire of democrats on the floor.

Rep. Madden (D-Ind.), a member of the committee, told a reporter the bill in its present form would "impede reconversion and promote confusion and chaos in industry." He said it would "wipe out all the gains labor has made in the last 12 years" and set unions back "a quarter of a century."

Restaurant Reopens

After being closed for the past two months while extensive alterations were being made, the restaurant of the Klamath Billiards was opened Friday morning to a capacity crowd. The contract for improving the 60 seat cafe was given to Leo Huls, Klamath Falls contractor.

Known for many years throughout the Klamath basin as the meeting place for countless men, the improved restaurant will feature the same fast service and generous portions that were synonymous with its past operation.

Lou Serruys, owner, stated that improvements were made throughout the cafe but that the main emphasis was centered on the kitchen. A new garbage disposal unit, new dish washers, a giant Elkhead hood, and many other pieces of post war equipment were installed. The Elkhead hood is the only one in this locality and is designed to eliminate all steam and cooking odors.
