

Examiner Recommends Purchase Of OC&N Line By Greyhound Be Refused

It has been recommended by the examiner that the interstate commerce commission deny the application of the Pacific Greyhound Bus company to purchase the Oregon, California and Nevada line from Klamath Falls to Reno and the Inland Stages from Reno to San Diego by way of Los Angeles. It has been learned here.

Greyhound's application to purchase the two lines was the subject of a number of interstate commerce commission hearings last fall and was strongly opposed by Pacific Trailways, which entered the argument that Greyhound's purchase of the two lines would establish a virtual north-south monopoly for that company on the Pacific coast.

According to word received here, the examiner in the case has recommended to the commission that it should find that the purchase of the lines by Greyhound "would not be consistent to the public interest," and that the application should be denied.

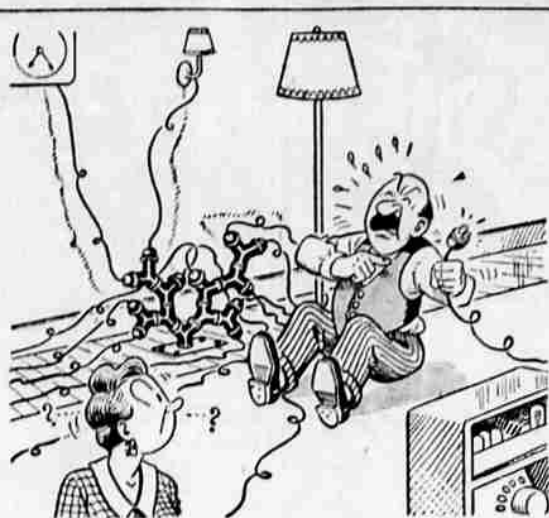

Pacific Trailways has not filed an application to purchase the lines, but it is believed that such an application will be filed when the case now before the interstate commerce commission is settled.

Purchase of the two lines by Pacific Trailways would make a through operation possible from Portland to San Diego by way of Bend, Klamath Falls, Reno and Los Angeles and connecting Lakeview, Burns, The Dalles and other points on the present Trailways system.
