Deep Sea Fishing Urge Breaks Out In The City

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, April 17 (AP)—There is a strange fever this time of year that runs through this city of pent-up millions and seizes more victims than a plague in Gathay.
It is the annual subway circuit urge to go deep sea fishing.
"Let's charter a boat," some busy-body suggests to helpless co-workers in ten thousand skyscraper offices.
And straightaway the palfaces decide to go down to the sea again—to the lonely sea and the sky that have struggled on without them all winter long.
Two things the Lord never gave me were a rich uncle or a desire to go fishing. I think fishing is calm, healthy, harmless and fine exercise. I like fishermen too. I will listen to them tell tall tales for hours and never doubt a word.

No Escape a word.
But I have no desire to go fishing with them. And that brings up the only thing wrong with all the fishermen I know: Sooner or later they invite me to come along. They love to inflict their sport on unbelievers. And you can't escape them.
So I know that some balmy morn soon I will have to submerge to Sheepshead bay or catch a fisherman's special on the Long Island railroad and clamber aboard a rolling boat with a couple of dozen other dime store whalers.
It happens every year when German submarines aren't off the coast.
The last time I was trapped into a fishing expedition I didn't get seasick for 15 minutes—par for Sheepshead bay. The small sailing craft didn't smash through the waves like a sensible ship. It rolled and wallowed, pitched and bobbed, rocked like an uneven playground swing.

"What you need is something on your stomach," said a nature lover. He handed me a glass of warm, sudsy beer and a mushy ham sandwich with pickle. That finished what the boat had begun.
The rest of the day I spent swallowing my stomach as it shuddered up and down my spinal column like a jerky elevator. U-u-p, down; up, down-w-n. U-u-u-p, down-w-w-w-n!
Beneath the troubled surface the fish swam about unseen, serene, peaceful. I envied them as I dropped my baited hook into their twilight world. I would gladly have bitten on a hook myself if somebody would just let me down gently over the side and never haul me back into that boat.
Two on One
"Look! You got two fish caught on one hook!" said one fisherman at midday. "Some fishing, boy!"
"Wonderful," I agreed, straightening up from the other side of the boat where I had been feeding marine life free for 15 minutes.

Then it came time to go home. There were at least two dozen fish aboard. The fishermen started to toss them away. I objected.
"I don't eat the darn things," said one man. "I just like to pull them in."
So two hours later I staggered up my home stairs—sun-blistered, exhausted—carrying the entire catch in a wet gunny sack.
"Didn't you leave any in the ocean for next week?" asked my sympathetic wife.
For six days running she served me fish—baked fish, fried fish, broiled fish, stewed fish. I was beginning to breathe through my ears in the bath. Cats rubbed up against me on the street and howled outside our windows at nights. The neighbors suggested we take an apartment in the Fulton fish market.
Please don't anybody invite me to go deep sea fishing this year.

Umpqua Dragged For Missing Body

REEDSPORT, April 17 (AP)—The Umpqua river was being dragged today for a possible second victim of an automobile accident which killed a man identified by police as William T. Ardis, 22, believed of Scottsburg near here.
State Police Officer Clifford Johnson reported a Ford sedan bearing a Texas license plunged off highway 38 and crashed at the edge of the river, pinning Ardis under the wreckage.
Papers belonging to a salesman from a Dallas, Tex., electric firm were found in the car.

DANIEL AND THE LION
COLUBA, Calif., April 17 (AP)—Daniel met a lion yesterday and couldn't understand why circus folk laughed as the lion pawed him.
District Attorney Daniel E. Weyand tripped over a circus stake to which the lion was chained and the lion began pawing his chest.
When the laughing circus workers pulled the lion off, they explained the animal had no teeth, no claws—was just being friendly.

King Christian's Condition Same

COPENHAGEN, April 17 (AP)—An official bulletin said today that King Christian X, who suffered a heart attack on Easter Sunday, had spent a quiet night and that his condition generally was unchanged.
Crown Prince Frederik told a cabinet council yesterday that there was "little hope" for the 76-year-old monarch's recovery and physicians said his strength was dwindling.

tering his home, Lynch said he heard "threats" in connection with the use of guns in an adjoining room.
The police stationed themselves at the doors and ordered the "gunmen" to come out. They did. They were Lynch's son, Charles, 10, and his friend, James McCormick, 16, who had been playing "cops-and-robbers."

Naselle School Head Quits

NASELLE, Wash., April 17 (AP)—The superintendent of the Naselle schools and a board member have resigned as the result of a strike of high school students protesting dismissal of two teachers.
E. W. McCoy, the superintendent, said his resignation was the culmination of minor differences with the board over several years, but Harry Larson, the resigned board member, said the strike repercussions had affected his dairy business.

The student strike began after dismissal of David Duvall, coach, and Mrs. Marian McKnight, a music teacher. The students re-
