The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

THAT was a gloomy estimate by Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime conservative prime minister, when he charged in a speech yesterday that England "is being driven into ruin and our empire is being scattered and squandered" by the present socialist government.

Curiously enough the news dispatch containing that statement reached my desk just as I returned from a discussion on the status of British socialism with one of England's clever women who is visiting America. She is Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton—author of many books, a former member of parliament, a former governor of the British Broadcasting corporation, and currently chief of the American information department of the British foreign office.

Unwittingly Mrs. Hamilton had given Churchill a partial answer during our conversation. I had asked bluntly:

"You haven't yet demonstrated that socialism will work, have you?"

No Okay Yet

SHE agreed that the "Q. E. D." still had to be written on the proposition. Thereupon I inquired what would happen if the socialist government, having inaugurated widespread nationalization, found it wouldn't work. How would the country pull out of that grave difficulty?

"We of course are confident that things will work out all right," she replied. "However, the government is proceeding slowly and with great caution. Nationalization will not be allowed to extend to a point which would cause disaster if it didn't work. Actually, the program of nationalization is sharply restricted. (Government spokesmen have indicated a program aiming at approximately 20 per cent of industry being nationalized and the remaining 80 per cent being left to free enterprise.) There is no intention of wholesale nationalization, but, on the contrary, private initiative is to be encouraged. The time never will arrive when, if some part of the program should go wrong, it couldn't be rectified."

Leveling Off

THERE has been a great leveling off in Britain, partly the result of a change in the social outlook of the country, and partly because of the terrific taxation which has wiped out the landed gentry to such an extent that the red-coated huntsman, riding to hounds with his cry of "Tally-ho," is becoming something of an anachronism. Some of this change is due to socialism, although the metamorphosis started long before the present government was elected. Mrs. Hamilton declared firmly that the leveling off process would continue, and ventured the view that the old school tie was much less in evidence these days.

Spud Acreage Figure Named

TULELAKE, April 19 — Siskiyou and Modoc county potato acreage allotments for 1947 have been announced by five-man committees of the agricultural conservation association of both counties, through the Tulelake Growers office, these acreages to be eligible for the government price support program.

Siskiyou county was allotted 3800 acres and Modoc 4000. These figures do not indicate the total acreage to be planted since many of the growers will plant more than the allocated acres.

Some pre-planting irrigation is being done before planting row crops and much of the pasture land, clover and alfalfa land has already been watered because of dryness of the season.

NEW EXCUSE?

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 19 (AP)—It may be a chemical—known as malanin—not dirt that gives a child's neck a darker hue than his face.

Dr. Gene Weltfish of Columbia university's graduate school told a class at Springfield college that the chemical is more abundant on the neck. He ascribed that as the reason many children develop what appears to be unscrubbed necks.

Lumber Issue Stalemated

PORTLAND, Ore., April 19 (AP)—With the CIO International Woodworkers of America and fir operators of Oregon and Washington stalemated over contract negotiations, the U. S. conciliation service stepped into the picture today.

Main issues were the union's proposal for wage increases and establishment of a health and welfare fund.

James E. Fadling, union president, said the fund should cover hospitalization, sickness and death benefits, and provide for the employment of safety experts. He estimated it might cost employers 7 cents a man hour.

We were sitting peacefully in our favorite bottle last night listening to the Orson-Ezra-and-Deems combo playing a soft lilting rendition of "Huggin' and Chalkin'" when our peace was interrupted by hearing our name taken in vain, during the lyrics (which are about how Bill Williams loves his big fat gal), accusing yours truly of being the guy "coming around the other way." The question is, which one of Bill's fat gals is he talking about?

One of the worst spot reporting jobs in radio occurred last night as Benny Leonard (one of the greatest boxers of all time) lay directly in front of Bill Corum's mike after the Giosa-Jiminez battle at St. Nichols arena and died of a heart attack. Bill was too stunned to even say more than "It's a terrible thing . . . it's a terrible thing." . . ." It was minutes before anyone knew what had really happened. Leonard was refereeing the match at the time of his death.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—

The snow, the snow, the beautiful snow!
The guy who wrote it, he just don't know
The misery and grief that a logger goes through,
Trying to make a dollar or two.
We fall a tree and it goes out of sight,
We gotta dig it out and our work isn't right.
Our feet are wet and our hands are cold
A little of this will make a man old.
But it won't be long 'til the sun will shine
And the grass will grow beneath the pine
And the snow will melt and disappear
And then will come the spring of the year.
So some people think snow is pretty stuff,
To us timber fallers, it's pretty damn rough.

UNSEEN BEAUTY

I have never seen Crater Lake,
Only gather from what you say
That God summoned the angels
And told them to paint it that way.

And angels worked with rapture
Around the lake of mysterious blue,
That artists have tried to capture
With paints of many hue.

They mixed at night
While the moon shone bright,
Their paints of mist and dew,
They waved their wands
Over the lakeside lands
And froze it into silvery hue.

There, my dear, is a garden
Where angels have trodden
That borders the lake of mysterious blue.

HIGH PRAISE

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—The music department of KUHS presented its annual concert last evening and Brother, if you missed something. I said seeing it. If you heard it over the radio you lost the best part. You've got to see those kids in action to really appreciate it.

A cast of 350, as many as 175 on the stage at one time; playing and singing, everything from negro minstrels up—or down.

The stage arrangement was clever and artistic. Not a single motion or expression to detract and the concentration to the director was perfect. The directors used all the curtisies in appreciation of the applause of the audience and responded with encore after encore.

If I didn't tell you before, I will tell you now, or again, if you missed it Brother, you missed something.

I'm going again tonight.

OLIVER SMITH.

Austrian Frontier Debate Due

MOSCOW, April 19 (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers agreed today at the demand of Secretary of State George C. Marshall to take up the problem of Austria's frontiers tonight.

This involved chiefly Yugoslavia's demand for southern Carinthia. Russia has favored and the western powers have opposed this demand.

A final deadlock on this issue tonight — following up last night's stalemate on German assets—would be about the only thing needed to bury the Austrian treaty for the present.

While Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin have not declared themselves formally for an immediate windup of the conference, both are widely reported to be anxious to leave here as soon as possible in view of almost overwhelming evidence that no agreement can be reached on either a German or an Austrian treaty.

Marshall's move today appeared to be one more test to prove no progress possible without an almost incredible change of policy on somebody's part.

The Big Four got through three routine articles of the Austrian pact today, and while there was some shifting of positions on minor points and much arguing back and forth in the two-hour session, informants made it clear that nothing worth while was accomplished.

Rescue Worker In Texas City Picks Up $10 Million

TEXAS CITY, Tex., April 19 (AP) The next time Paul Stokes finds a dollar bill on the sidewalk, he may not even stoop to pick it up. Yesterday he found $10,000,000.

Stokes, a Houston, Tex., man, has been putting in 24 hours a day as a rescue worker. He was probing the ruins of the Texas City Terminal Railroad company when he came across the company safe.

It looked like a safe cracker had used too large a load of nitro on it. It was a messy job, but efficient.

Inside was a mass of paper. Stokes took them to W. H. Sandberg, vice president of the company.

"Thank God for this," Sandberg said. "This is seven million dollars in company fire insurance policies."

He gave Stokes the keys to other rooms and asked him to look around again. This time Stokes took a sheet with him. He entered room after ruined sroom.

When he came back, he had more paper. They were 500 individual policies of workers, and Sandberg said they amounted to over $3,000,000.

"I had a sheet full of them," Stokes said, removing his tin helmet and wiped his forehead on the sleeve of a white jacket.

Sandberg said their recovery would speed up steps in recovering insurance tremendously.

Stokes earlier had helped recover 86 bodies. Six had been in the first floor of the terminal, and Stokes said "there's more there, but we need heavy equipment to get to them."
