

Snowbelle Takes Campus By Storm

on April 9. They are en route to Scotland for a stay of several months. Mrs. Smith is the mother of Bill and Dick Hayden of this city.

Another Klamath student busy on the University of Oregon campus—Jim Bocchi, frosh student, who is on the committee making arrangements for the freshman assembly sponsored by the class of '30.

Best seller material in the letters from Thelma Van Vactor Norrie, sister of Dayton E. Van Vactor of this city, now in Berlin. Thelma not only paints a picture with a brush but her pen describes equally as well. Everything from the house which the Norries occupy in Berlin, the rubble which makes up a major portion of the big city, the barter mart, the way of life now facing the German people after years of war. Such material should be printed now while it is still "hot" and not wait until American occupation is a thing of the past. Something else will be on the skillet by then.

Klamath folks were interested in the wedding of John R. Hay, son of Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Arthur D. Hay, when John took as his bride pretty blonde Dorothy Hardie of Salem, the nuptials performed at St. Paul's Episcopal church in Salem Saturday night of last week. Mrs. Bob Napier of Corvallis, the former Peggy Hay of this city, sang at her brother's wedding, and Douglas Hay of Eugene was his brother's best man. The bride's quaint gown was of white satin fashioned with paniers and a full skirt ending in a court train. She carried her great-grandmother's prayer book, marked with a white orchid. Mrs. Hay wore a turquoise crepe gown at John's wedding, a panel of flame color from shoulder to hemline for unusual color. Her flowers were flame colored Watsonias. The reception was held in the Hay home.

Perfect time for a holiday was chosen by Merlon Albrecht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Albrecht, who sailed Friday morning from San Francisco on the Matsonia for Honolulu. Merlon will fly back on May 18. She was accompanied by Meryl Swift of Bakersfield. On her return from the month-long vacation, Merlon will return to her work with the importing firm of Ous-McAllister in San Francisco.

News from Medford tells us that Mrs. Wilbur Arnold is very busy in the valley city, being president of the Roosevelt PTA over in that town, the job being not too new sounding as she was a Roosevelt PTA president over here. Son Dick is a fourth grader come next fall. One of the teachers in the school is Mrs. Eda Adamson, formerly of Klamath Falls.
