Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY
Klamath's State Representative Henry Semon is definitely displeased at Governor Snell's veto of the bill to sock racehorse bookies with a tax.

In the last legislative session, Mr. Semon was especially interested in two bills aimed at garnering for the state some of the huge sums that annually change hands by the gambling route.

One bill, which he helped sponsor, would have taken 30 per cent from slot machine operations. This bill did not get through the legislature.

The other was the measure to tax the operators of bookie setups on horse racing. This was passed, but got the axe from the governor.

Slot machines and horse race bookies are operating in many places in the state, and the money they handle runs into millions of dollars. Semon says his bill on slot machines was expected to bring around $4,000,000 into the public treasury.

"The sum result of our effort on these bills," said the Klamath legislator, "puts us in this position: The legislature spent 80 days trying to figure out ways of taxing responsible, law-abiding citizens, but it did absolutely nothing about taxing the activities of racketeers and those who operate in the margin of illegality. My own idea was not to attempt to legalize anything; it was to collect for worthy public purposes money from operations which everybody knows are under way, and which apparently are going to continue."

As for the bookies, the state recognizes parimutuel betting on horse races and takes its cut. I can't see enough difference between that, and betting on races that occur somewhere outside the state, to prevent the state from taking a fair tax from the latter operations."

Lotteries
The Klamath representative has been frustrated in a realistic approach to the paradoxical situation that exists in Oregon as concerns slot machines and other gambling devices. Slot machines, for example, are outlawed, but they operate rather widely and regularly; they are taxed by the federal government, but are free of tax by the state but it does not recognize their exist.

Here's something else, while we are looking at the funny angles of the gambling situation:
The law under which slot machines are prohibited is a constitutional provision that reads like this:
"Lotteries, and the sale of lottery tickets, for any purpose whatsoever are prohibited, and the assembly shall prevent the same by penal laws."

A slot machine has been adjudged a mechanical lottery, and therefore held illegal under this provision.
But read it again, and think of the vast violation of this provision which goes on regularly.

Door prizes, quilt sales by church societies, bingo games, civic club drawings, sales of tickets on automobiles (such a sale is under way here right now for a good cause) and innumerable other lottery schemes go on regularly in every Oregon community, without a thought of their illegality under the Oregon constitution.

Looking at all this, Mr. Semon thinks it's about time for Oregon as a state to recognize that gambling exists, and to move in on the commercial and other extensive operations with a sharp cut on their take for the benefit of the public treasury.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, April 24—The most important part of the Senator Malone speech predicting the Greek-Turk aid bill would lead to war, failed to reach the public eye in most press and radio accounts.
The freshman republican senator from Nevada said he had found no military man who said Greece or Turkey could be defended against Russian attack for a week.

The genuine opposition in the senate to Mr. Truman's proposal is founded on this ground, and this opposition is much larger and more doubtful than the sprinkling of votes against the measure will indicate (early checking indicated only 15 votes against). But many an eye will be spoken by senators who were sincerely of Greece and Turkey are the proper places where the line against Russian imperialism should be held. These senators would like to see a more defensible stand taken.

Mental Anguish
INDEED this Greek-Turk affair has caused more mental anguish among senators wrestling between their convictions and politics than any other issue so far, including the union reform bill. Malone is supposed to have called three distinguished citizens of his state on the telephone, for instance, and they advised him to go cautiously. This would have been easy because a freshman is supposed to be seen, but not conspicuously. Instead, he spent all day Sunday in his office, courageously writing out what he thought, rather than what might be considered advisable.

The majority of the senators went through the same experience. Malone told an associate he decided to speak out because his constituents would soon find out the exact situation. He referred to some of the other senators privately as "hedgehogs" which is a new word in the political dictionary alluding to porkers afraid to jump the hedge.

His prophesy of probable war, however, was not necessarily substantiated by the surprising message from General Marshall the same day. Certain fast interpreters raced conclusively to the idea that Marshall considered the legislation indispensable urgent because he needed it for diplomatic effect at the Big Four ministers conference. Yet the general circulated in the senate has suggested the Greek government is getting along fairly well with its military campaign against the communist guerrillas.

No War Fever Here
AS a matter of fact, Senator Vandenberg is supposed to have arranged to get the Marshall message to help the bill acquire the greatest possible senate majority for popular effect.

Neither of these circumstances suggest Malone's prophesy might swiftly become true. Communism and its purposes are rather generally understood throughout the United States, although practically no sentiment exists for going to war against such an inferior system. The communists and their fellow travelers (Republican Chairman Rees aptly calls them "Typhoid Marys"), may want a war and may try to provoke one, but the overwhelmingly popular leadership of this nation merely wants to know what is going on in the world and to dilute its communist infiltrators.

A record showing how foolish the communists are has been built up by Marshall in Moscow. He has shown they will hardly agree to what they agreed to before. When little or no trouble was expected with the Austrian treaty, it has met communist objections which were not thought possible.

If war comes it would come from that source, by provocation or direct attack, neither of which could be formidable. (On this the military men also agree.)

Above is the citric phiz of Fred Allen who, according to teletype reports is leading the revolt of the big names from NBC. It seems that Fred has lately been reorganizing the network, and the big boys in the back office have put the thumbs down on his biting the hand that feeds him. (Trammell must not be trampled.) During a recent Allen show, several minutes were switched out of the program, which made Mr. Allen very mad, as he does not like performing for nothing, especially when he doesn't even know it. Allen, in his wrath, assembled his cohorts, Fibber McGee and Missus, George and Gracie, and Jack and Mary, and now says that they will not be dictated to by the network. They intend to pan the great NBC as much as they wish, and if Niles Trammel doesn't like it he can "can" them. In the meantime the other networks, ABC, CBS, and Mutual, are all standing around with arms spread. Let the comics fall where they may.

Are the various car give-away contests causing the shortage of new automobiles, or if not, where are they getting the cars to give away? Currently four different groups are raffling cars in the Los Angeles area with three more being presented over the air nationally.

C. P. Lamb, 725 N. 2nd, popped up as the winner for the 11th time of "Stardust Melodies" give-away record program. So far Lamb has won 10 records and one record album, not bad, huh? The question on everyone's mind is not how he knows the tunes, but how he gets through the telephone lines to the station so fast. Lamb is a station agent for the Great Northern.

Town Meeting tonight discusses "Does Our New Foreign Policy Lead to War or Peace?" Speakers will be Landon, the man for whom the Landon button was named; Senator Glen H. Taylor of Idaho, leading hill-billy vocalist in the present government, successor to "Pappy" Orndel of Texas; Max Lerner of the staff of PM (stands for Poor Marshall Field), a defunct New York paper, and James Burnham, who has never run for president, played a guitar, or worked for PM.

Crater Lodge Plans Big Year
Preparation for a big summer season are under way at the Crater Lake Rim lodge. The sno-cat has been operating to open the road as far as the lodge and the rotary machine will finish the job this week. A limited crew is working on the cleanup job at the lodge and redecorating and remodeling work will be started in the cafeteria soon, according to Charles Fyock, resort manager.

Recreations are already coming in for the summer season which will start June 15 with the lodge opening. Two new buses have been purchased by the association to make the run from Klamath Falls to the lake this year and they will commence operation also on June 15. Mr. and Mrs. Fyock have just returned from a trip to Oregon coast universities where resort has been engaged for the season.

Jerry Ambler To Return To Klamath
Jerry Ambler, top cowhand and winner of the bucking contest at the Red Bluff Roundup this past week-end, told Klamath folks who attended the big show that he intended to return to Klamath Falls to make his home and that he would take part in the annual Klamath rodeo here this Fourth of July.

Among those who attended the rodeo were Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Read and Mrs. Mary Alice Ray, John Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Jack McAuffe and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Paddock of Bly, who drove over from Williams where their stock is on pasture.

Logger Suffers Injuries To Hand
Lester E. Samples, 46, employee of the Squaw Valley Logging company, suffered a painful injury and loss of fingers on his right hand when the hand was caught in the gears of a machine on which Samples was working early Wednesday morning.

Samples was admitted to Klamath Valley hospital at 7:45 a. m., and the attending physician found it necessary to amputate the thumb and index finger and partially amputate a part of the middle finger.

Team Work—The Eagles auxiliary officers and drill team will meet for practice Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the upper FOE hall. It is important for all to be present.

High Ranking Spot Seen For School

The state school at the former Marine Barracks plant can be made one of the famous technical training schools in the United States, and the state vocational education department has been every year in that direction, Winston Purvine, state director of trades and industry education, told chamber of commerce directors Wednesday noon.

Purvine emphasized that the distinctive feature of the Klamath school will be the training it will offer in the technical field just below the professional level, such as computers, draftsmen, inspectors, optical technicians and many other position titles. The trade courses, such as auto mechanics, body and fender work, will eventually have regional rather than statewide application, but in the technical work, trainees will come from throughout the state and probably from many other states.

Purvine is here with Cliff Mudd, state property custodian, to confer with war assets administration officials on the state's assumption of the property at the Barracks, and the turnover will probably occur in a few days. Purvine said the state is anxious to get to work on putting the property into shape for its new use, and that considerable repair and reconversion work is to get under way immediately. There is none too much time to do the job, he said, between now and mid-July, when it is planned to start the first courses.

The chamber speaker, who also addressed the Lions club yesterday, said that it is hoped to take registration for the first classes on July 10. He said that the garage building and equipment at the plant are already in excellent shape, and auto mechanics classes may be the first to get started.

Cooperative Program
It is the purpose of the state department, Purvine said, to work out cooperative programs with the community for use of various facilities at the plant, such as the swimming pool. He emphasized the need for community assistance in making the new technical training institution a success.

Purvine will be interviewed on the Managing Editor's Report program on KFLW tonight (Wednesday) at 8:15 o'clock.

Tax Probe On In Late Sales
SALEM, April 24 (AP)—The state tax commission said Wednesday it is investigating 200,000 sales of farms, homes, timber tracts and businesses made during the past three years.

The commission said it believes no income taxes were paid on many of these sales, and it already has a big force at work checking warranty deeds filed with county clerks in Multnomah, Marion, Polk and several other counties. The check will be continued until all counties have been covered.

State Tax Commissioner Earl L. Fisher said he thought the state might obtain between $500,000 and $1,000,000 in income tax revenues as a result of the investigation, which is the first of its kind ever made by the commission.

"We have found," Fisher said, "that many persons who have derived from 50 to 100 per cent profit on realty and timber sales have overlooked filing a state tax return on such profits. In many cases, out-of-state ownership of timber lands has been responsible for the failure to pay state taxes."

CLAYTON NAMED
WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—President Truman Wednesday nominated Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton to represent the United States on the economic commission for Europe.

The commission was established by the economic and social council of the United Nations.

PALACE NEWS

by "Butch"

One of our Scotch friends was telling us today he hadn't been feeling well lately, so he went to see his doctor. The Doc looked him over and prescribed some pills to be taken at bedtime each night. The Doc also told him to eat a nice thick juicy steak at least once a day.

Six days later the patient called on the doctor again, stating he was feeling no better. "Have you done exactly as I instructed?" the doctor asked. "Well Doc" our good friend replied, "I may be a wee bit behind w' the pills but I am three weeks ahead w' those choice Palace Market steaks." That's the trouble with our steaks. They are so good you are tempted to eat too much.

This Scotchman is one of my best meat customers, so whether the Boss likes it or not, it seemed to me only common sense to tell him he better slow down on the intake of meat a little and eat a more balanced diet. At my suggestion Corrinne took him under her wing and fixed him up with a nice armload of fresh fruit and Garden Fresh vegetables from her beautiful refrigerated self-service case. He departed all smiles, and I'll bet the next time he comes in those black and white steaks will have him in top shape. You see, we try to look out for our customers and give them personal service. That's why they all say--It pays to SHOP PALACE.

If you want to really save money, Eddie, in the meat department, has pure lamb at 29c, Smoked picnic Hams 39c, A & AA Shortribs 29c and cubed steaks at 15c each. The Palace Market, 524 Main, in the heart of Klamath Falls' Ritzy shopping district.

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Former Vice President Wallace has produced a heavy crop of question marks and exclamation points by his declaration in Paris that Soviet Russia should get ten to seventeen billion dollars worth of goods and services under a fifty billion dollar world construction program which should be financed mainly by the United States through the United Nations.

Any such program would be the height of incongruity to those who agree with the Washington administration's policy of aiding weak nations to stand off communist aggression. If both plans were in operation simultaneously we should have the weird spectacle of America sinking billions to restore Russia's war potential and at the same time expending other vast sums to combat a communistic offensive on the grounds that it might lead to another world war.

Of course, Wallace's proposal doesn't present any incongruity from his standpoint, because he is campaigning against President Truman's plan for aiding Greece and Turkey to withstand the red avalanche. The former vice president would give aid to Russia, and to other war stricken countries, including Greece.

Halt Called
As a matter of fact there wouldn't be any incongruity in this assisting Russia if she gave a satisfactory quid pro quo. The quid pro quo obviously would have to be that Moscow would halt such world-wide activities as have given rise to the Greek-Turkish situation.

It has been the western world's dislike of and fear of communism which has so often dampened international relations since the Soviet government was established. It wasn't until 1933 that Washington recognized the Soviet Union, and then a promise was exacted from Moscow that it wouldn't inspire any further communistic activities in America. But things have changed mightily since then.

In advocating the huge aid for Russia, Mr. Wallace makes the proviso that Moscow should be required to forego her heavy reparations demands on Germany and to become a member of the international bank. He adds:

"The world cannot afford to allow reparations claims to shift from devastated Russia to Germany the misery and deprivation that create in Europe a cancer spot."
The former vice president and secretary of commerce also stated in Paris yesterday that the United States would face the gravest business depression in history unless it took the lead in world economic reconstruction. He predicted that this will be one of the most serious depressions the United States ever has had, a most amazing phenomenon which will affect the whole world.

So far as concerns Russia's huge losses in life and resources during the World War, they have aroused the keenest sympathy throughout America. Uncle Sam has rendered aid to our ally, and done so gladly. And you can bet your last dollar that he would go all out in giving further assistance to Russia if she would announce that she finally had reached the end of her colossal program of expanding her zones of influence, and agree to remove her political pressure from other countries.
