Flowers and Candy For Mother's Day

SOCIETY

By Edna Killmeyer

Their favorite flowers and candy will be given to mothers far and wide tomorrow. As our Mothers of the Week we have pictured those above. Mrs. Edward A. Bailey has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. K. A. Moore, and son, Charles Bailey, and their families, and returned to her home in Portland this week.

Also visiting here for several days with her daughter, Mrs. George Adler, is Mrs. Parmella Bole of Brookings, and Mrs. William C. Orton, of Butte, Mont., is returning to her home in a few days after visiting during the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Louis R. Mann, of 1437 Pacific Terrace. The local mother is Mrs. Paul H. Oldenburg, of 1956 Fremont, mother of Dr. Ray W. Oldenburg.

With Mother's Day rolling around again, we've all at once realized how much of 1947 has gone by the way. Before we know it — Christmas again!

A recent jog to Lake o' the Woods and around the Rocky Point road convinces us that gallons of sunburn lotion must have been poured on lobster-red Klamath arms and backs. Saw a few folks hardy enough to swim in the chilly waters of nearby lakes and streams, but most preferred fishing, boating or just plain loafing.

Mrs. Walter Brown returned this week from a brief visit in Portland at the art museum. She reports that the 21st annual spring exhibit, originally to be held through April, has been extended to May 18. Mrs. Brown has exhibited at the art museum, at Northwest Park and Madison in case you're not familiar with the location, for 10 years, and this year has a still life composition in oil being shown. Although it does not appear with an official title in the exhibit, Mrs. Brown likes to call it "The Teapot from Boston."

A prettier wedding you can't imagine than the Long-Benham rites last Sunday. The lovely theme was of red and white, and Jeanne's gown was just what a bride's should be. Her cap and veil and those of her attendants were made by a friend, Jeannette Young. On Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Long entertained some 50 out-of-town relatives and friends at a buffet supper at the Long home.

Flower contributions to this department—the gorgeous armload of huge lavender and purple lilacs, some of them double, from the garden of Mrs. W. D. Miller—and the enticing little garden of succulents made by Mrs. Will Wood of the Garden club, nestled in a "knot" found on the desert and crowned with two carved birds. Thanks.

Church Rites

In one of the spring's loveliest ceremonies, last Sunday afternoon, May 4, Jeanne Mairee Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas E. Long of Lakeshore drive, became the bride of James E. Benham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wascher, of LaFayette. A large gathering of friends and relatives was present for the nuptials, read at 1 o'clock by the Rev. Father Timothy P. Casey, in Sacred Heart Catholic church.

White stock and red carnations with palms formed the floral setting for the rites, with tall white tapers in candelabra at the altar.

"Pater Noster" and "Ave Maria" were sung by the church choir. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, with the bride escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father.

She was attired in a beautiful gown of white brocaded nylon with small tailored collar, long sleeves and fitted at the waist. The skirt was fashioned with a bustle and ended in a full court train.

Her fingertip veil of illusion net fell from a starched Dutch cap of fine lace. She carried her mother's prayer book topped with a single white orchid and a shower of orrisrhogium.

Maid of honor was the bride's cousin, Shirley Long, of Portland, and bridesmaids were Jean Underwood of Klamath Falls and Jean Halling of Eugene, sorority sister of the bride. All wore identical gowns of white taffeta similar to the bride's. Their caps were also of a similar style, and red carnations formed their arm bouquets.

Best man was William Courtney, cousin of the groom, of LaFayette, and ushers were Frank Robbins, Charles Taylor, Keith Anderson and John Lewis, all of Eugene.

Mendelssohn's wedding recessional was played as the party left the church.

Immediately following the rites, the new Mr. and Mrs. Benham received at the Pelican party room with their parents. Mrs. Long wore an afternoon frock of a cocoon shade with beige accessories. At the shoulder she wore a corsage of Rapture roses. Mrs. Wascher, mother of the groom, was attired in light blue with navy accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias and stephanotis.

Nuptials Read In North

Phyllis White, of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Roy White of Boring, exchanged vows with Lawrence Slater, also of Klamath Falls, in an April 17 ceremony read at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Zion Evangelical and Reformed church in Gresham. The Rev. William C. Ruhl read the rites before a gathering of friends and relatives.

The church was decorated with baskets of dogwood and white lilacs. The sister of the bride, Mrs. Paul C. Asher of Portland, sang "Because" and "Intrigue Me Not to Leave Thee," as guests assembled. Robert F. Field of Portland played the traditional wedding marches.

For the nuptials the bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Paul Asher, chose a princess style gown of white satin with short train and long, fitted sleeves. Her fingertip veil was caught with a halo of stiff net trimmed with dainty seed pearls. Her arm bouquet was of stephanotis with an orchid center.

Maid of honor for her sister was Alice White, who was attired in a nylon frock of aqua, fashioned similarly to the bride's gown. She carried a bouquet of pink and white spring blossoms. Mrs. Asher was her sister's only other attendant. For the rites she wore a yellow gown identical to that of the maid of honor. Her bouquet was of yellow and purple blossoms. Each wore a stiff halo matching her gown.

Mrs. White, mother of the bride, wore an afternoon frock of blue and white print with black accessories. Pinned at the shoulder was a pink rosebud corsage.

Best man was William O. Chase of Portland, and ushers were Herbert O. White and Paul Asher, brother and brother-in-law of the bride.

A small reception attended by relatives and close friends followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kassebaum of Portland. Mrs. Kassebaum served, assisted by Esther Brown, Margery Johnson and Pat Garbarino. At the coffee service was Mrs. Mary Garbarino and Norma Hall presided at the punch bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. Slater are at home at 2036 LeRoy street following a wedding trip which took them by motor down the coast route to San Francisco and the bay region.
