PALACE NEWS

by "Butch"

Comes a tale today that your good neighbors in the California Legislature have really had the nerve to walk right up and tackle this inflation spiral at its hair roots.

At the request of the Society for Fair Play for Bald-headed Men, California's austere Statesmen are engaged in heated debate on the subject of rationing the charge of barbers according to the hair they cut.

Assemblyman Phillip L. Boyd, practically a hairless wonder himself, proposes that the State Board of Barber Examiners issue hair measurement certificates to any bald-headed citizen seeking relief from excessive charges for haircuts. Shades of Chester Bowles!

The above world-shaking news, with its regimentation tenor pales in significance compared to what we at the Palace Market are doing old free enterprise system, to fight inflation.

This week, 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. we are bidding for first-of-the-day shoppers by reducing prices 10% on all our fancy meats and groceries during that hour. And you don't have to be bald-headed to enjoy the money-saving values at The Palace Market's continuous food festival. Just tickle the ribs of our friendly cash register with the necessary "root of all evil" and save enough dough to lay in a week's supply of your favorite bubble gum. Thus you will help us preserve our glorious free enterprise system as effectively as a colonist shouting against taxation without representation.

That's why they say—it pays to Shop Palace, 524 Main, in the heart of the Ritz Shopping District.
