Let's Talk Turkey
ABOUT
FOOD PRICES

In all the current talk about lower prices, don't forget this: No one (except such New Dealers as Chester Bowles) has yet learned to lift themselves by their own boot straps.

Week in and week out, no retailer does a better chore of keeping prices down than your food merchant. And no food merchant does a better chore than The Palace Market.

Although we have sold a lot of food during the last six years, our net profit has averaged less than 1 cent on each dollar of sales. If we were to operate our business without any profit this 1 cent would amount to a saving of less than a 5c cup of coffee a day on the total food bill of the average Klamath Falls family.

We sincerely believe that because of our affiliated business ties The Palace Market has the lowest distribution costs of any retail business in Klamath Falls. Our operating costs and profits are already cut to the bone.

While many food prices have already been lowered we must all realize that no substantial general reduction in food prices is possible until the cost of food to the retailer is reduced.

If you want top quality you have to pay for top quality—we do. If you want mediocre merchandise, there are stores that cater to that class of trade. But it is not the cheapest—all things considered.

As any housewife knows, for 42 years The Palace Market's business has been built on quality food at the lowest practical price.

We pledge to our customers not to alter that business principal. We will continue to lower our prices as fast as reductions in costs to us and economies in our operations permit.

And you may be assured that when anyone has learned to lift themselves by their own bootstraps—we'll know the trick too.
