

New Insect Toxicant Said To Give Perfect Control Of Grasshoppers, Pests

A recent release by the U. S. department of agriculture on the effectiveness of the new insect toxicant, chlordane, in louse control is of particular interest here because chlordane has been found by authoritative official tests to give 95 to 100 per cent control of grasshoppers in 70 hours.

Recent government maps issued by the grasshopper division of the entomology branch of the department show this county and nearby areas to be among those already infested or now threatened with hopper infestation.

Immeasurably more effective than poison baits—hitherto the most potent means of controlling this destructive pest—chlordane's killing action on grasshoppers is reported to last three weeks or longer, depending on acreage dosage, crop and climatic conditions. Thus, succeeding invasions of 'hoppers are definitely halted.

Immediately following applications of chlordane dusts or sprays to infested areas, the grasshoppers are reported to stop feeding and to be seen falling to the ground. In 24 hours, 50 per cent of the infestation is said to be destroyed. It is also declared that in effective dosages, and when properly applied, chlordane insecticides are not harmful to plants.

Chlordane's tests in louse control, in which it is found superior to 7500 other compounds tested, turns the spotlight on one of the most amazing insect toxicants yet to come from a chemical laboratory.

This product, bearing a long chemical name, but called chlordane for short by the U. S. department of agriculture, is now being manufactured on a commercial scale in Denver, Colo., under the brand name of Oeta-Klor.

Oeta-Klor, or chlordane, is understood to be equally effective against a wide variety of other agricultural pests, including Lygus bugs, alfalfa weevil, corn ear worm, army worm, cabbage looper, Colorado potato beetle, and soil-inhabiting insects such as wireworms, white grubs and white-fringed beetle larvae.

Against insects attacking domestic animals, it is reported to have shown superior toxicity to such resistant pests as ticks, chicken lice, stable flies, ox warbles, horn flies, tabanids and chrysope.

This chemical is said to be of exceptional value also to housewives in ridding their premises of roaches, ants, spiders, bed bugs and moths. For these purposes Oeta-Klor, or chlordane, is claimed to be many times more powerful than the much-publicized DDT, and superior in effectiveness, because of its physical and chemical properties.

Chlordane formulations are considered ideally adapted to indoor use since they are practically odorless, non-staining and leave an invisible, non-crystalline film that remains insecticidally active in protected situations for many months following application.

Oeta-Klor is a product of the West. It is being manufactured by Julius Hyman and company at the Rocky Mountain arsenal, the huge chemical plant operated by the government in Denver during the war. It is being formulated in finished concentrates and ready-to-use insecticides by many leading formulators and should be promptly available throughout this region.

Charter Vote Due Tomorrow

Siskiyou county voters go to the polls tomorrow to make known their pleasure concerning a new charter which has been drawn up to govern the county and would supplant the present supervisor form of government.

For the past several weeks a hot controversy has been raging in Siskiyou over the charter proposal—advocates declaring that it will take the reins of government away from the "courthouse gang" while opponents fear the charter would bring in an administration the people could not touch by ballot.

Main provision of the charter is for the hiring of a county manager. A board of supervisors would be elected, and in turn appoint a manager who would be responsible to them rather than to the voters.

All newspapers in Siskiyou have been branding the bill as a "hoax" and "a hot air balloon" in effect.

Hessig Sends Cards Home

Several interesting letters have been received from J. H. Hessig of this city, en route to Atlantic City, N. J., to attend the Ben Ali Shrine convention.

There was everything aboard the train, "including a brass band," Hessig wrote, and mentioned the "beautiful Southern Arizona country, famous for its inspiring canyons and tablelands, rich in Apache lore, with spectacular varieties of cactus, abundance of sunshine and clear, beautiful air. The heart of the dude ranch section."

Writing from San Antonio, Tex., Hessig said, "This town straddles the river of the same name and forms a beautiful park all through town. The famous Alamo shrine of Texas liberty is located here. The Rio Grande, the river that marks the boundary between the United States and Mexico, associated with song and story, with daring exploits of the Texas rangers, is west of town."

Hessig left Klamath Falls on May 16.

Hollywood's Gain

Hollywood's beauty barometer rose a notch or two when British actress Patricia Medina signed up for her screen debut. Wife of movie star Richard Greene, she will appear in the film, "Moss Rose."
