or even mention the size of it to see if it would work. You would think his first consideration would have been the size of the project, because he would first have to measure how big it is before he could possibly know if he could obtain the laudable purpose.

Stassen's Plan If Mr. Stassen wants to export 10 per cent of this, he has a $10 billion annual program, which is arguably enough, is just exactly the same size as Wallace's. Indeed it is ten times bigger, because Mr. Stassen proposes to do it each year for ten years.

Mr. Stassen says we should not be expected to be paid in dollars or manufactured goods because the nations have neither. He says we should be paid in raw materials. All right, what raw materials? Name something. Mr. Stassen did not do this.

Good Old Days THIS proposition sounds like the good old days of not long ago, when proposals sounded good and laudable, but no one even added them up in advance to see if they would work or had a chance to work.

The only possible workable suggestion along this line which has come to my attention is that foreign trade expansion start with a survey of the United States to determine how much we could possibly use or store. Start at the other end. See how much more world raw material is usable here.

You would think that India, after all her centuries of subjugation and longing for freedom, would be able to submerge her politico-religious strife and grasp with eager hands the gift of independence which England is offering but, no, the Moslem-Hindu hostilities continue at a pitch which is causing authorities to fear further bloodshed.

The hope is that the civil warfare, which in recent months has taken thousands of lives in various parts of the country, can be confined to isolated communities while the independence program is ironed out. Should it spread the length and breadth of that mighty sub-continent with its four hundred millions, we should see one of history's great tragedies, for there is nothing to equal the ferocity of religious warfare among oriental peoples.

We can add this more positive thought: If there should be an upheaval, the responsibility for it will rest heavily on the shoulders of leaders among both factions. Sparks from the Hindu-Moslem fire in the capital of New Delhi fly far and start flames among the rank and file who, broadly speaking, wouldn't fight among themselves under ordinary circumstances.

Civil disturbances provide a fine breeding ground for communism, and red organizers have been laboring in India for years. Former Under Secretary of State, Sumner Welles said last night in a broadcast (WOL Mutual) that "communism has recently strengthened its hold in all of the cities and is now rapidly spreading into the rural areas."

While this communist crusading is going on the signs are that all India congress, which is predominantly Hindu, and the Moslem League may agree to divide British India into Hindu and Moslem states—Hindustan and Pakistan. Britain finally has acquiesced in this reluctantly, after having fought for a united country under a federal government. The Hindus also wanted this, but the Moslems refused on the ground that they are outnumbered three to one by the Hindus and wouldn't get a fair deal in a central government.

Under such an arrangement it is possible that some 600 princely states might group together and ask for outright independence or, what seems more likely, request Dominion status in the British commonwealth of nations. The princes had been prepared to join in a federal government with the provinces of British India.

What eventually will come out of this bickering and confusion remains to be seen.

WHY WE SAY

By STAN J. COLLINS & L. J. RAWSON

England's famous police force is known as Scotland Yard due to the fact its headquarters are located on the site where an ancient castle once stood. This castle was used by Scottish Kings who came to London once a year to pay homage to the King of England. The short street on which the castle was located was known as Scotland Yard.

THE drowning of two Klamath Falls men on an Odell lake fishing trip Saturday is a tragic opening of the season of week-end mishaps, big and small, which you will see reported in this paper during the coming summer months.

EPLEY

Newspaper people, whose work includes the unpleasant duty of covering these mishaps, alert themselves as the season opens for summertime play, especially play out in the open country.

For play is more dangerous than work. Pleasure is hazardous.

The two men who lost their lives at Odell Saturday were veterans of the recent World War.

While engaged in the serious business of war, they had risked many hazards obviously more dangerous than a fishing trip on Odell lake.

Yet they came through the war safely, and lost their lives on a recreation trip in the peaceful fastnesses of our mountains. Fate plays queer tricks.

Let's not underestimate the hazards in those peaceful mountains. Each year the toll from hunting, fishing, swimming, pleasure driving, and other outdoor recreation mounts into substantial statistics. No warning could or should stop playing, but it is well to play with a full knowledge of the risks involved.

Our lakes, especially, take a high toll over the years. They afford a great deal of pleasure, but they are treacherous playgrounds. Those who use them should prepare themselves at all times against tragedy. That, of course, is the lesson that can be salvaged out of the untimely deaths of two good citizens and war veterans on Odell lake last weekend.

The Fight

FOUR several years, we have been engaged in a personal struggle with wilderness. This particular wilderness surrounds our residential property.

When we first moved there a number of years ago, the wild country came to the doorstep. We were younger then, and we plunged in with a will and with vigor, beating back the sagebrush, the wild rose, the service berry, the wild wheat, the bitter brush, and the immense tufts of bunch grass that thrive in that neighborhood.

At the end of the campaign, we surveyed our work with satisfaction, and determined the next year to carry on further into the wilds.

We must now report we have never gained an inch. In fact, we have had plenty of trouble holding our own. As we have grown older, and more inclined to sit on Sundays than to flay hardy growth with a hoe, the wilderness has become more bold and determined to take back what we won from it.

It looks like a "crosshairs" fight this summer. From our standpoint, it's entirely defensive. We spent our offensive spark in a single year. If we can hang on to what we won then, we'll be doing well.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 26—Candidate Harold Stassen said all the right-sounding words in his Iowa campaign speech advocating loan of 10 per cent of our national production for 10 years to the world. He said we do not want the lightheaded, giveaway, ten billion program of Henry Wallace or the sharper lending of the conservatives, but a sensible, sound program to feed world needs and help our own production.

Unfortunately he did not propose what he said

Art Show Held Here

The largest Klamath Falls all-school art exhibit is being held in the Fremont school auditorium this week, from 1 o'clock to 4:30 evenings and from 7 to 9 evenings.

Students will be on duty at these times to show guests around.

All day Saturday was spent in putting up the displays, showing all phases of art taught in the seven city grade schools, the junior high and high school. Art instructors are exhibiting their own work also.

The exhibit is being supervised by Robert Banister, director of art in city schools, and Al Downs, Fremont junior high art instructor.

S. Scapple, director of the woodcraft shop, is showing work of his students and the Saturday afternoon private art class is also included in the exhibit.
