Arkansas Proves To Be No Hillbilly State Any More

By HAL BOYLE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 29 (AP)—Arkansas—yes, you still pronounce it "Arkansas"—is just plain getting country-tired of being kidded as a hillbilly state.

The folks down this way have taken a lot of kidding about living on a barren ridge land populated by flea-bitten hound dogs, tick-ridden mules, razorback hogs and rangy moonshine-swilling mountaineers who subsist on hominy grits and wall pork and marry off their barefoot daughters at the age of seven years.

But the long tolerance of the Arkansians is wearing thin, and their home state pride is high. They think somebody ought to bring the radio comedians and the Joe Miller joke books up to date on just what is going on in Arkansas.

No Razorback hog as a mascot for our state university football team we had to send out of the state to get him," snorted one incensed native son. "We don't grow that kind of animal here anymore."

So let's see just what is going on in Arkansas, which always liked its nickname of "The Wonder State," but now prefers to regard itself as "The Land of Tomorrow."

The state is 53,102 square miles in area, as large as Pennsylvania and New Jersey combined, and has a population of almost 2,000,000. The per capita income rose by 108.9 per cent from 1939 to 1942, almost double the 58.1 rise averaged throughout the United States.

Agriculture is breaking away from the old "one crop" system. Cotton is still the main income producer—Arkansas stands third among the states in its production—but it also ranks second in strawberries, fourth in rice, fifth in peaches and third in spinach for processing. It also ranks high with a dozen other crops.

If you think of the Arkansas as a gangling pellagra-sapped Jeeter Lester, think again. Deaths from pellagra dropped from 264 per 100,000 population in 1930 to 2.9 in 1944. A U. S. census report showed Arkansas had the fewest number of deaths per thousand and population of any state in the union. It's healthy.

Hot Springs Trade Tourists spend $70,000,000 a year or more in Arkansas—and they don't come to watch the mountaineers scratch themselves. Some 500,000 alone come to Hot Springs to take out the rheumatism they got in another climate.

Others come to fish and hunt in one of the best developed recreation centers in the country. The state has 22,000,000 acres of forested land and a $125,000,000 a year lumbering industry—eighth largest in America.

A few other things Arkansas are proud of about their state: It produces 95 per cent of all the domestic bauxite or aluminum ore processed in the state.

It has the only diamond fields in America—although there are still fewer than can be found on Park Avenue.

It has a reserve of 1,512,000,000 tons of coal, and natural gas and oil production is booming. Power rates are among the lowest in the nation.

The new Norfolk dam, sixth largest in the country, has a 500-mile forest shoreline.

Its bank deposits jumped from $200,817,000 in 1939 to $768,348,000 in 1945.

Its population is 99.4 per cent native-born—73.6 per cent white, 25.8 per cent negro.

500 High Schools It has 500 high schools, nine state-supported coeducational institutions of higher learning and more than a half dozen private colleges.

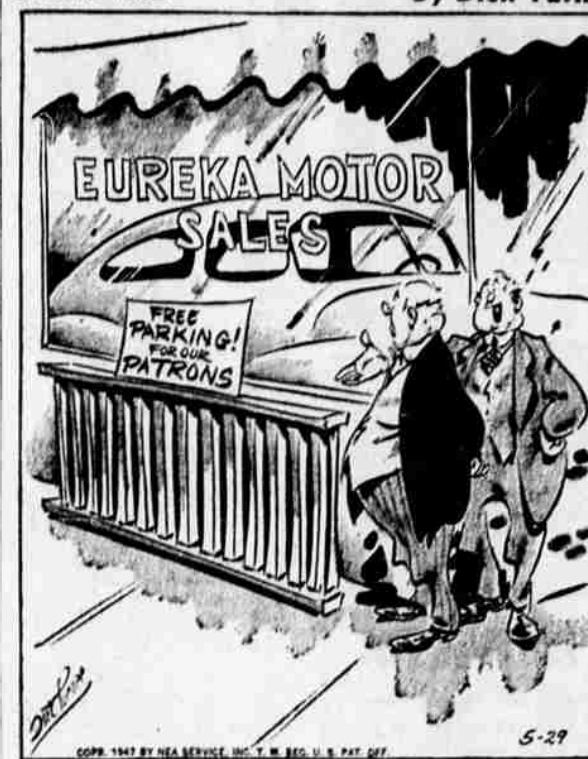

It is the birthplace of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Arkansas is popularly regarded as an old southern state. It regards itself, however, as being in the southwest. One editor said:

"We'd like our critics who regard us as politically backward to know that Arkansas doesn't elect demagogues such as Huey Long. It takes

Veteran Guide Dies In Crash

SPRINGFIELD, May 29 (AP)—John Milliron, veteran McKenzie river guide, was killed and two other persons injured last night when an automobile driven by the guide overturned five miles east of here and skidded into the path of another car.

State police reported Milliron had attempted to avoid a trailer bearing a load of hay pulled by a truck. His own trailer, hauling a boat, jack-knifed and overturned his car. The second car ploughed into the top of Milliron's automobile, killing the fishing guide and critically injuring his companion, William John Shaw, of Yamhill.

Mrs. Lillian Wilson, 28, Springfield, was injured. Police said she was driving the second car. Her 3-year-old son, John, was a passenger.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 29 (AP)—Heavy mountain snows followed by warm rains are slowing Alaska highway traffic with the worst flood conditions in years, Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, commanding officer of the Northwest highway system, said today.

That kind of talk is downright unpopular now in Arkansas.

HIGH SCHOOL

News Notes and Comment

By MARY O'BRIEN
Pelican Ski club, the girls' organization which got its start this past winter, has received a supply of emblems and students who have their dues may now purchase them from Advisor Lillian Redkey for 50 cents. A clever little number, about five inches in diameter, the emblem is done in red and black on a white background and shows "Pel" on his skis. The emblem was designed for the club members by Shirley Dalton. Carmen Jones was ski club prexy this past year.

At today's Spanish club meeting, officers for the ensuing year were announced. Edith Wisenbach will have presidential authority next year and will be assisted by Dolores Moon, Merlene Burningham and Cherie Mahan. The last three will fill the office of vice president, secretary and treasurer, respectively. Foreign languages teacher, Genevieve Oppen, serves as Spanish club faculty advisor.

At this time your columnist, being a senior, has little advance information on the Junior-Senior Prom tonight. The juniors are keeping these plans under their hats except to say they will follow the "Moonlight Memories" theme and will be done in a blue and white color scheme.

Committee heads are as follows: Decorations, Dortha Cogdill; refreshments, Virginia Oberg; publicity, Pat Williams and Bob Mahoney; patrons and patronesses and entertainment, Pat McMillan, and programs, Darlene Knowles.

Programs in the shape of a crescent moon are also in white with blue lettering. The names of the class officers, Don Zarosinski, John Epley, Mary Lou Case and Trudy Bessel, with the name of their advisor, Eva Burkhalter, are printed on the first page. Patrons and patronesses for the affair are Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Gralapp, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Zarosinski, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Case, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mahoney and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Thompson.

Sheet music, including the words and accompaniment for KT's school song "Mighty Pelicans" is on sale in the main hall for 25 cents. The project is under the auspices of the Latin club and Advisor Helen Hoff. Students are reminded that the traditions committee now plans to make the learning of the school song compulsory next year.

HEALTH SERVICE
NATURAL METHODS
220 N. 7th Klamath Falls
Something New Has Been Added
We have just installed a new Sensational Health Method which is specific in its ability to control and correct infections and diseases of the stomach and intestinal tract. This method owes its efficiency to the fact that we utilize Nature's greatest healing agency, OXYGEN.
When OXYGEN is properly introduced into the intestinal tract, it kills infections and decay-producing causes.
This method not only heals infections, but it also heals ulcerations, dysenteries, tubercular infections, at the same time producing a greatly stimulated construction process in the body. This method has been perfected and used with startling results, and the installation in this office marks a great step forward in this community. We are justly proud to be the first to offer you this New Health Service.
You and members of your family are offered a free, complete physical examination during the week of June 2 to June 7, inclusive. You are under no obligation whatsoever.
During this week we will be assisted by Dr. Armin B. Copen, Chiropractic Physician, and Chief Diagnostician of the Clinical Research Institute of Kansas City, Missouri.
I suggest you call early for an appointment, as due to our present rush, it will be possible to make this service available to a limited number of cases only.
