

KUHS Seniors Receive Honors

Always a highlight of commencement exercises is the announcement of the graduates receiving special honors for work done during school years. On this page are pictured 10 outstanding members of the Klamath Union high school graduating class of '47.

Each received honors in his own field, and in most cases, the names of award winners were a close-guarded secret until commencement, Wednesday evening.

Leaders of their class scholastically are Joanne Bennet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bennet, who is valedictorian, and Ruth Landry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Landry, salutatorian. In addition, Miss Bennet received a coveted Seven-College conference national scholarship to Vassar college, as well as being named outstanding student in mathematics and English.

Miss Landry received the good citizenship pin from the Daughters of the American Revolution and the departmental award for her work in foreign languages.

The faculty trophies, given each year to the outstanding boy and girl graduates were awarded to Mary O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. O'Brien, and to Ben Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver B. Larson. Miss O'Brien was selected to receive the American Association of University Women annual scholarship to apply to any institution of higher learning, and is the recipient of the Oregon State college scholarship.

Mr. Larson received the industrial arts departmental award.

Others who placed prominently in scholarship awards and other honors are Joe Zarosinski, the Kiwanis cup for leadership in athletics and an athletic scholarship to St. Mary's college; Katharine Newman, the Soroptimist scholarship for three years of nurse's training in a school of her own choice; Betty Glidden, the DAR homemaker's pin and the departmental home economics certificate; Andrew Bergloff, Eastern Oregon College of Education art scholarship from the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers; Margaret Bullard, tuition scholarship to Reed college; and Robert Macabee, Junior chamber of commerce award for athletic skill and general value to his school.

Klamath Matrons Plan Long Trips

Two well known young Klamath matrons, Mrs. Jack Napier and small daughter, Janet Nell, and Mrs. Embert Fossum with daughter, Janet Martha, are completing plans for the next two years which they will spend in the Orient.

Ruth and Janet sailed Wednesday morning from San Francisco on the Weisell for Seoul, Korea, where they will join Major Fossum, stationed at Seoul with the United States army. Ruth was terribly busy the few days she was here last week, buying clothes and other necessities needed by her family for the full two-year stay. Ruth and Janet Martha were here from Tuesday until Friday morning with Mrs. John Fossum of 303 Pine street and left for San Francisco to complete details of their sailing. They have been in Denver during war years and since Major Fossum went overseas.

Mrs. Napier and 19-month-old Janet Nell will leave sometime in August to join Maj. Jack P. Napier, stationed in Tokyo where he is chief of the public service qualifications division. About this business of packing enough clothing to last two years . . . Mrs. Napier has come up against the problem of just how many pairs of shoes are necessary for 24 whole months!

For some time Mrs. Napier has been in Salem with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McAllister, and has been here the past several days taking care of those many last-minute details of her trip. She has
