

Navy Restores 90 Per Cent Of Amputees To Civil Life

By HAL BOYLE

MARE ISLAND, Calif., June 26 (AP)—It pays to rebuild war-damaged veterans—to make part-men whole again.

The navy has figures to prove it. Based on 2,000 amputees who have passed through its rehabilitation centers at the Mare Island navy yard here for veterans who lost arms and legs in combat.

"We have found that 90 per cent of the men trained here to use artificial arms and legs are employed and have made a readjustment to civilian life," said Commander Thomas J. Canty, of Milwaukee, Wis., officer in charge of the amputee center.

"About five per cent are having difficulties and require further hospital treatment. The remaining five per cent are failures—men who simply have given up."

Canty said that each failure would represent a lifetime cost to the government of $70,000 to $100,000.

Well Worth While

"So it has proved well worth while to the taxpayer," he said, "to spend the few thousand dollars necessary to rehabilitate the average amputee and restore him to a productive place in civilian life."

"Aside from the financial aspect, of course, this training gives him back his life—his self-respect. And our boys are doing well in every walk of life."

A former marine major who lost a leg in air combat is running an air line in Southern California. A legless marine sergeant is studying agriculture in a Texas college. A marine private who lost a leg above the knee is a bulldozer. They are typical of the amputee school graduates who are making good.

Because civilian manufacturers were unable to supply them with the quality of artificial arms and legs they felt were necessary, navy officers set up their own factory here. Now it is the largest in the country.

"The artificial limb business in America really was begun by amputee veterans after the Civil war," said Commander Canty, "and since then only minor improvements were made."

By substituting aluminum for steel and plastics for wood, the navy has managed to build a more flexible artificial leg and cut the weight from 12 to 15 pounds down to five to seven pounds. A late model now being experimented with even is

Conservationist

Frank Pavelek is here from San Francisco to take charge of the district office of U. S. soil conservation service.

Following the resignations of M. Christenson, district conservationist and Kenneth Dahl, conservationist with the U. S. soil conservation service, Klamath Falls district, a conference of administrative officials was held here this week.

Ronald Elmes, district conservationist of Portland, George Goodine, assistant state conservationist of Corvallis and Antoni Winkle, work unit conservationist of Redwood, Calif., left today to return to their homes after concluding their conference.

Frank Pavelek, work unit conservationist with the U. S. department of agriculture, is here from San Francisco, looking over the set-up and arranging housing facilities for his family. If he accepts transfer here he will report for duty July 7.

Pavelek has served as chamber of commerce president, president of the Holy Names society, Boy Scout master and chairman of the San Mateo recreation committee. He and Walter Jendrasewski, assistant county agent, were schoolmates at Oregon State college in 1928 and his parents live at Woodburn. Pavelek new restrictions placed by the board upon non-scheduled operations.

Walton said the company still will seek a permanent certificate for scheduled service over the route.

US To Furnish Planes For Allies

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—L. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg said today the United States plans to supply other American nations with aircraft if congress approves plans for standardizing arms in the western hemisphere.

The deputy commanding general of the army air force appeared before the house foreign affairs committee in support of legislation to authorize the program.

He made clear it was contemplated that other American nations would pay for some, if not all, of the planes they got, although this point was developed in detail.

He has a wife and three young sons. He is hoping to find a home here and later a small ranch.

Local Scouts At Air Camp

McCORD FIELD, Wash., June 26—Gary Freitag, son of J. H. Freitag of box 753, and Ted DeMerritt, son of T. A. DeMerritt of route 1 box 171, both of Malin, Ore., are attending an air scout encampment at McCord Field, Washington, where no effort has been spared to see that they spend an enjoyable and educational nine days.

Colonel A. C. Strickland, base commander, announced today. In addition to inspecting the parachute and personnel equipment shops, they will tour the power plant, view a survival film and see the crash crew in action.

Athletes will be combined with instruction and practice in link trainers, aerial navigation, radio communication and other operations to provide more serious fare for the young men, said L. S. Christoforo, encampment director.

Klamath County Gives $2411 To Cancer Drive

Klamath county's contribution to the 1947 Cancer Fund totaled $2411.33, according to word received from Virginia Kletzer, state commander of the Oregon division of the American Cancer society.

The 1947 campaign was handled by the 20-30 club of Klamath Falls with Tom Patty as chairman. Malcolm Epley, Klamath county chairman for the cancer society, today warmly praised the 20-30 club for the effort made in behalf of the cancer drive, which is now formally closed.

In 1946, the Klamath county Cancer Fund contribution was handed through the Community Chest. However, the money was not made available until after the first of the year, when a check of $2710 was sent from Klamath county to the Cancer Fund.

Thus, since January 1, Klamath county people have contributed a total of $6121.33 to the Cancer Fund, the contributions covering a two-year period.

"That's mighty fine going," said Mrs. Kletzer in a letter to Epley.
