

One of the proudest ranches in the Klamath Cow country is the Bar-Y, or the Yamsay ranch owned and operated by D. O. "Buck" Williams. The ranch is located on the headwaters of the Williamson river, 30 miles northeast of Chiloquin in a splendid setting of pine and meadow land. The Yamsay country, far famed for its fine grazing land, feeds several thousand head of white faces. Ranches are healthy places for kids. 1—"Jackie" Thomas, a red brother Paul poke around in a nearby stream at a wiggling water snake. They are sister and brother of Queen Ginger Thomas who will rule the Klamath Basin Rodeo, July 4, 5 and 6. 2—A pattern of shadows cast by the impressive entrance to "Buck" Williams' ranch where two gnarled pines hold a cross bar of curved pine. 3—The attractive Bar-Y ranch house against a background of pines. 4—Future cowhand is Paul Thomas, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J.
