Miller of Vancouver, Wash., son of the late Mrs. Lulu Miller of Sioux City, Iowa, took place last evening in Westminster Congregational church, with the Rev. Thomas Craig McQueen officiating.

In a candle-light ceremony in front of a bower of tapers and white gladioli, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white train-length satin gown with bodice and sleeve capped in seed pearls. Her veil was fingertip length. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and ranunculus and also a battenburg edged handkerchief more than 70 years old that was sent from Providence, R. I.

ers were Edward Clay and Ernest Roberg.

A reception was held in the garden of the Hill home. About 70 close relatives and friends were guests.
