Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

EVERYTHING appears to be running according to schedule on the proposed developments on the Klamath reclamation project looking to the opening of more land on Coppeck bay late in 1947 or early 1948. The reclamation bureau has sent out a notice inviting representatives of veterans' and other organizations to meet on August 13 to discuss the qualifications of homesteaders and procedures to be followed in the new opening. That is the first step to culminate in the final selection of homesteaders in time to go on the land for the 1948 production season.

EPLEY

The decision now to be made is whether to follow the procedures and requirements which prevailed in connection with the opening held last winter. That experience will be drawn upon to prepare for the new opening.

It is no secret that reclamation officials were pleased with the 1946 opening, and the public reaction appeared to be favorable. At this point, it appears that in general the same plan will be followed in the forthcoming selections. But suggestions for changes are in order at this time; those who liked the job as it was done in 1946 and those who have criticisms or suggestions shouldn't hesitate to make themselves heard.

Plans for the 1946 opening began with some rather warm criticism of the openings of several years ago. A painstaking effort was made to meet those criticisms which seemed justified, and to work out a program that would be as fair as possible to veteran homeseekers. The plan that was used wasn't perfect; none could be. But it appeared to be pretty good, and we are told that it stacks up well with what has been done since on openings on other projects. With a few adjustments and changes, it may be brought even closer to perfection for the coming opening.

Sustained Yield In Town

WE hear a lot about selective cutting and sustained yield to keep trees growing in the open country. What about selective cutting and sustained yield in town? Can we grow enough trees here to keep up with the slaughter that has been going on steadily here for a number of years.

The attack on old shade trees is usually justified by the allegation that they play havoc with sewer pipes and concrete structures, such as sidewalks and streets. The people bent on tree destruction usually claim that the old trees are rotten and dangerous.

There undoubtedly are instances in which the removal of trees is necessary. But we think this cutting should be kept on a highly selective basis to the end that as many as possible of the fine old trees around town be spared.

As for the matter of root destructiveness, it seems to us that this is simply the price to be paid for something that is worth while. It is our opinion that a fine tree is worth the trouble its roots may cause.

Meanwhile, Klamath people should keep on planting new trees to take the places of those which, for one reason or another, are removed. A look at the city from any of the nearby heights shows that there has been a lot of progress in young tree growing in recent years. Let's keep growing ornamental and shade trees.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 31—The "resignation" of Ben Cohen was hardly that. The departure of the old Roosevelt brain truster from his position as counselor of the state department was given out to the public somewhat enigmatically, as if anyone was permitted to attach his own interpretation with no flights of imagination barred. In fact, in one paper I read it on the society page although it was not presented as a social note, but as a small news item which apparently did not fit any place else.

Nearly all the authentic inside stories agree on one explanation for the "resignation," namely this:

Cohen made a speech on the west coast saying Europe should get $5 to $6 billions more a year from us for three to four years. This scared the decimal points out of the treasury people, including Treasury Secretary Snyder who knows Mr. Truman better than Cohen. But it may have been an even greater surprise to the Europeans because a few weeks later all London anonymously asked for was $3 billions a year for three years, or rather that was the first figure to come out of their anonymous "experts examining requirements of the continent in the light of the Marshall proposal."

• • • •

Anonymous Experts

THE newswriters here say privately Cohen may not have obtained an even break in justice on his speech. They looked it up and all he said was that the experts (another anonymous set) who had looked into the situation had said that Europe needed the $15 billion to $24 billion American money he mentioned, on top of the $19.5 billion which we already have appropriated. Thus Cohen had some anonymous experts who said Europe needed much more of our money than the London anonymous experts (quoted in a front page dispatch to the New York Times.)

Whoever Cohen's anonymous experts were they were not official as far as the White House is concerned; or the treasury, where an idea has been expressed that the amount of "more money" needed in addition to the $19.5 billion we have already appropriated would be zero, if Europe adopted the Marshall plan of self-help economically and politically.

But do not deduce from this set of inner circumstances that Cohen just became angry and quit. His resignation is supposed to have been on President Truman's desk since Jimmy Byrnes resigned as state secretary. Cohen was a Byrnes man. He had aided the former secretary with economic advice when Byrnes earlier had been national stabilizer. An insider, authoritative on this subject, has suggested Mr. Truman himself took up the resignation at this time in a polite way.

The announcement of the resignation was made after Marshall had been called to the White House by Mr. Truman. The natural implication that Marshall had something to do with the resignation directly may not be entirely warranted. Marshall was consulted about a successor mostly, and he selected his own man to be his state department counselor in Cohen's place. Marshall chose Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, who has been functioning as counselor for a long time on the primary foreign policy, namely Russia, in fact, most state authorities agree Bohlen has been the real working level authority behind the development of the Russian and American policies.

• • • •

He Knows Russians

THE Russians were said (at the time the change was made,) to be all set to circulate in this country a story that some relative of Bohlen's at some time was in the Krupp munitions works, and to make a big ado about Bohlen descending from the von Bohlens who were "munitions barons."

No one thought enough of the story even to ask Bohlen about it, because it had nothing to do with the case. In ideology experience, Bohlen appears to have a background as possibly something of a Bill Bullitt man. At any rate he went to Moscow first with Bullitt, when Bullitt was a sympathizer with communism, not knowing much about it. After he (Bullitt) saw it in operation in Moscow, he withdrew and the book of his reconversion to normality was a best seller last year. Bohlen is a career diplomat who learned by first hand experience, being stationed variously in Moscow as first secretary as late as 1943-44, and lately on the Russian desk in the state department. He is a master of languages and one of the few top diplomats who knows Russian. He attended practically all the world conferences, and presumably met Marshall closely during them.

The Russians will have a hard time trying to deceive him, or anyone else concerning him.

It may seem ridiculous to you, a grown man wearing darts in his butteneer (approximate spelling), and in reality it is, but these two happy people are symbolizing for you the fact "Darts for Dough" is celebrating its third anniversary this coming Sunday. On the left is Orval Anderson, dartmaster, and on the right is Jane Adams, who escorts the contestants to the firing line.

Commander "Romance of the Highways" Scott, who mentions Klamath Falls in his broadcasts often enough and in such a nice way the chamber of commerce refers to him as "our good friend," is going to mention K. Falls again on his August 3 program. The Commander is an early riser from way back. If you want to hear your town mentioned Sunday you'll have to lift the lids by 10:15 A. M.

Someone asked me the other day why I never mentioned soap operas in this column. It is a good question. At a conservative estimate this type of program takes up 25% of the broadcast time over the average network. Yet, no mention is made in this column of this obviously popular type of air show. Well, the first good reason for this omission is that soap opera listeners do not constitute an occasional audience—once hooked, the fan tunes in every day for months and years on end. Since most of these programs have been going for years audiences are more or less constant and it would be a waste of space for me to feature them. The second good reason is even more convincing. It will be featured tomorrow.

For those of you who are interested in the progress of agriculture, a program called "The American Farmer" will be a featured program Saturday morning over KFLW. Subject of this coming Saturday's session will be "woodlots as a source of farm income." It will be beamed to you from Seattle, Washington and a panel of experts will discuss this topic. The time will be 10:00 a. m.

There are 40,320 different possible arrangements for the order in which the major league baseball teams finish the season.

Schoolboys Plan Tour

MIAMI, Fla., July 31 (AP)—A party of Seattle schoolboys, whose leader suffered a sunstroke during a 26-day cruise in the British West Indies, plan to start today on an overland tour of the eastern seaboard, Canada and the Midwest.

The boys, all students of the Lakeside school, Seattle, arrived here yesterday in the 65-foot yawl Wayfarer. R. J. Carbray, Latin instructor at Lakeside, suffered the sunstroke 500 miles at sea, forcing them to put into Miami.

They will leave here in a station wagon for a 3000-mile motor trip to New York, across Canada and the Midwest and into the Canadian Rockies.

The party includes Robert Miller, 15, Jack Conrad, 18, John Franklin, 18, of Seattle; Richard Woodward, 16, 2023 S. W. Montgomery drive, Portland, Ore.; Jack Norris, 8, 685 New Belenda avenue, Portland; and Willis Brown, 16, Independence avenue, Independence, Ore. Mitchell Skeete, of Barbados, British West Indies, made the trip from Seattle with the group, but will remain at his home the rest of the summer.

One Expression Covers Them All

PORTLAND, July 31 (AP)—Twelve-year-old Genevieve Vantrin, who arrived here from France with her mother and grandmother to live with Mrs. Arthur Berbig, an aunt who was a war bride of 1919, has one expression all can understand. It is "mmm-m-m."

Candy, ice cream, pretty dresses and — watermelon — brought the same expression of enjoyment yesterday as the non-English-speaking girl spent the day on a shopping tour with Mrs. Berbig.

Fisherman Is Alarm Cause

PHILADELPHIA, July 31 (AP)—Alarm bells clanged within the grim walls of Eastern State penitentiary. Giant searchlights glared across the damp lawn.

Neighbors, recalling the recent escape of five men who tunnelled under the penitentiary wall, had reported that a man was digging nearby.

Prison guards finger their guns as police cautiously approached the man who, flashlight in hand, was industriously turning the soil.

The man quickly explained.

He was, he said, planning a fishing trip today and had gotten up to dig worms after a midnight thundershower.

Reservation Site Asked For Hearing

Klamath chamber of commerce has suggested that the forthcoming hearing to be held on the matter of liquidating the Klamath Indian reservation be moved from Klamath Falls to the reservation itself. The action was recommended by the Indian affairs committee, and approved by the executive committee. No answer has been received from the public lands committee which will hold the hearing, starting August 19.

The Indian affairs committee, reporting at Wednesday's meeting of the chamber board, pointed out that the Indians feel the reservation liquidation is a matter of first concern to them, and that more of them could attend if the hearing is conducted on the reservation. It has been formally slated for the courtroom at the courthouse.

The chamber, already on record favoring the investigation which the public lands committee is making, has taken no definite stand on the question of liquidation. It was indicated the chamber will consider the issue after facts are brought out in the public hearing.

President Phil Hitchcock said that the chamber will be active in entertaining the visiting U. S. senators and helping them in transportation and in seeing the reservation and basin area. The Indian affairs committee and the inter-city committee will help in this project.

At Wednesday's meeting the board, by a 6-5 vote, went on record as favoring an "equitable adjustment" of the RFC loan given Henry Kaiser for construction of the Fontana, Calif., steel mill. The action is in line with that taken by the San Francisco chamber of commerce, and was recommended by the industrial development committee of the Klamath chamber as an encouragement to development of a western steel industry.

Drunken Driving Campaign Asked

PORTLAND, July 31 (AP)—Northwest monopoly liquor states were urged at a meeting of liquor administration men to push a campaign against drunker driving.

George H. Lunt, Utah liquor commissioner in charge of enforcement, said liquor officials are not blamed for automobile accidents involving intoxicated persons, but that their administration is criticized.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Britain's drastic decision to reduce its global military commitments, in a further effort to overcome the economic crisis gripping the country, is a potent reminder that the United States is the last of the great democratic powers still capable of fully manning a war-machine—and that this can be a mighty lonesome world.

Makes me think of the time in World War One when I was plodding across a field in Flanders to reach the front line and got caught in the middle of a terrific German barrage. It wasn't exactly lonesome, but I had a yearning for the company of someone who knew barrages and would have a sympathetic understanding.

Which is by way of saying that, after all, England has been America's staunch ally in two world conflicts, and remains the chief base of Western Europe for the defense of democracy. It's tough to see her striking-power reduced even temporarily in these explosive days.

This reduction of military commitments was one of the concessions Prime Minister Attlee promised the labor members of parliament, meeting in secret caucus yesterday to listen with critical attention to an accounting of his stewardship. He has been under heavy fire, not only from his conservative opposition but from many of his own followers, because of dissatisfaction with the government's progress in dealing with the economic upheaval.

Determined Defense

The prime minister defended his position with determination, as this column yesterday said he likely would do. The result was that he won a virtual vote of confidence from the caucus.

The prime minister is reported not only to have promised to cut down military commitments in Greece, Italy and Germany, but to reduce the number of men under arms and send them back into the ranks of labor to meet the demand for workers. Thus he got over one of the high hurdles.

But that wasn't his only promise. It is said that he will call on Britain's coal miners to work an extra hour daily in order to get the production which is so badly needed to stimulate badly lagging industry. Lack of coal is the crux of the economic crisis. It is suggested that the miners get time and a half pay for this overtime.

Advocates of this plan say it would increase the coal output some 300,000 tons a week, to swell the present production of about 3,700,000 tons. The government's target for the year is 200,000,000 tons.

The vote of confidence means that the question of Attlee resigning the prime ministership doesn't arise, at least pending developments. There had been a demand in some quarters that he give way to other leadership, and Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin was mentioned as possible successor.

Marcantonio Misses Full Party Count

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP)—U. S. Rep. Vito Marcantonio, of the American labor party, failed yesterday to elect a majority of the members of the democratic county committee in Manhattan's 18th congressional district which he needs for that party's designation in the next election.

CRASH DEAD

EUGENE, July 31 (AP)—Arthur James Black, 27, Eugene, was killed yesterday when his motorcycle crashed head-on with a car driven by C. L. Miles, Eugene.

BEAT the dishpans, sound the bulls-horn, crescendo the dinner gong, and bring out the bottles!

TODAY'S the day! Let everybody rejoice, including Sam Snack who has stomach trouble.

YES! today's special is luscious grain-fed U. S. Government graded good and choice steer steaks at 65c per pound. T-Bone, Sirloin, Round, etc. All at 65c per pound. The kind that melt in your mouth.

THESE kind of steaks, if anybody else had them in Klamath Falls would cost you up to 89c per pound, and more. In other towns they are getting more than a buck a pound and the dyspeptics can't afford them. That's why they're dyspeptics.

BUT at these prices you can afford them. And if you want to be healthy, wealthy, and wise, you'll waltz right up to our ultra self-service cases and pick yourself out a steak.

REMEMBER, the price is right and the quality—oo, la, la. (We still have those French crepe suzettes in brandy on our mind.) The only time this T-Bone catalogue can remember that they were cheaper was when they gave them away at the Elk's picnic back in 1921.

DID you know that Government statistics reveal that less than 3% of the beef killed in America are good enough to grade Good or Choice? Think what that means, Mr. and Mrs. Consumer. Less than three out of 100 are good enough for The Palace Market requirements.

When we buy this beef for you we conscientiously feel that we are acting as your personal agent. And we only select the top of the top grades that are properly processed and aged. Could you ask for anything more?

Is it any wonder that we say, "Beat the dishpans! Sound the bulls-horn! Bring out the bottles!"? Think of it. Grain fed U. S. Good and Choice T-Bones—65c per lb. Compare and you, too, will learn—

That's why they say—It pays to SHOP PALACE, 524 Main. In the heart of the Ritzy Shopping District.

"Miss Lizzie" Still A Radical After Many Years

By HAL BOYLE

BALTIMORE (AP)—"Miss Lizzie," now in her eightieth year, is one of America's unusual women.

A blue-blooded socialist from the social register, Elisabeth Gilman is Maryland's grand old lady of dissent—a follower of political lost causes who has won her city's heart by long integrity and warm charity.

Of her someone once remarked:

"Baltimore is entitled to one liberal."

"Miss Lizzie" also has been called a reformer and a "hound of heaven extraordinary." She has been six times voted down in tries for public office on the socialist ticket—she's run for sheriff, mayor, governor and senator—but many critics of her politics believe she would easily win any poll to pick Baltimore's outstanding woman.

She is loved—her politics aside—for the selfless way in which she has fought for people in trouble, and the vigor with which she carried out her lifelong slogan:

"If you see a thing that's right, do it."

Partly deaf and now a semi-invalid, she must rest at last with her goal still uncompleted: "To Christianize the social order."

The daughter of Daniel Coit Gilman, first president of the Johns Hopkins university, she learned unorthodoxy from her father, a "mugwump" in both politics and education.

"I first began to 'wump' in 1916," she said, recalling her dawning belief that the evils of poverty and recurrent unemployment could be cured only through major changes in the social order.

She left her own fashionable home to organize food kitchens during mill and coal mine strikes and on occasion marched on the picket line herself carrying a placard.

A small and sprightly woman with great energy, she threw herself into socialist-sponsored campaigns for slum clearance, public ownership of utilities, labor gains and old age insurance. Two years ago, cheerfully foreseeing defeat in her second campaign for governor, she said:

"Franklin Roosevelt stole a good deal of our thunder, but all of us in the United States should be grateful for that."

Her activities cost her some old friendships, but she kept her sense of humor and insisted that it was fun to be a "radical."

"We are not obliged to stick to the dull tracks of conventionality," she wrote, "but can go off independently. Who would stick to a trolley car for a pleasure trip if he could go in an automobile?"
